AND WHO'S CONTEMPTIBLE?

The Editor Throws Back the Gauntlet at Mayor Talmage.

Mayor C. W. Talmage, at the meeting on Friday night to discuss the water question, was the only person in the house who descended to personalities, although one or two other persons were inclined to be a little personal. Mayor Talmage used the occasion to "rub it in" on the editor of the HEADLIGHT.

But to make it a little more plain so that our readers can understand, it was like this:

After the resolution was declared lost at the meeting on Friday, Mayor Talmage made a little speech and complained about the citizens not attending the city council meetings. He made reference to the meeting when the ordinance regarding bonding the city was passed, and said that besides the members of the city council, only one citizen was present. Mayor Talmage told the meeting that that citizen was asked his opinion about the ordinance but refused to give it and then criticised it in his newspaper. The mayor told his audience that it was most contemptible of that citizen.

Fred C. Baker, editor of the Headlight, we have much pleasure in saying, was the citizen referred to by the mayor.

One side of a story is always plausible until the other side is told, and as Mayor Talmage had such a small congregation we did not deem it wise to answer his accusations, but will do so now so that the whole of the citizens can hear and decide who is the most contemptible person.

At the city council meeting referred to the editor was given the ordinance to read before the meeting was called to order. He read it down casually without expecting to be asked his opinion upon it off hand and without carefully considering it, for it contained over half a column of reading matter. Neither is the editor aware that the mayor was very anxious to have the editor's opinion, for had he so expressed himself the editor might have read in more carefully and expressed himself. It seems remarkably strange that the mayor should now accuse the editor of refusing to give an opinion. When the city council was called to order the editor did not join in the discussion nor was he asked to express an opinion.

Another thing, the editor attended the meeting as a newspaper man, and as such it is plain to most everybody who have watched our course of action, we have purposely abstained from taking any part at public meetings and have held our whist as much as possible at the city council and other meetings. Although that is directly opposite how other newspaper men in this city act, we prefer to keep mum on such occasions and allow attorneys, bankers, business men and others to advance the arguements they have read from time to time in the columns of the HEADLIGHT, as they did at the meeting on Friday evening, which amused the editor.

So Mayor Talmage told his audience that the editor was a most contemptible person for refusing to give his opinion and then criticising the ordinance in his newspaper. As a newspaper men we use our own judgment when and how to criticise matters of public importance, and Mayor Talmage has no right to interfere with the freedom of the press and characterize our act as contemptible. It has come to a state of despotism in this city if the HEADLIGHT man is to called contemptible at a public meeting for express an opinion in his newspaper on a matter of that importance.

Now, as to the criticism which makes us so contemptible in the estimation of Mayor Talmage. We had forgotten, when listening to the mayor when he undertook to "roast" us, how we had criticised the ordinance, but since looking the matter up, it was this:

"There are two things in the ordinance which passed the city council on Monday evening to submit the bonding question for a new water system to a vote of the taxpayers that stands out conspicuous, viz.: The power to borrow $58,000 and its lack of any provisions to pay it off, not even a sinking fund of $2000 a year to wipe the indebtedness out by taxation within the 30 years. Is the proposed bonding system for a new water system to be a repetition of the old and new school building bonded indebtedness, only greatly enlarged upon and a far heavier load for the taxpayers of this city to pack? It would seem so. But, then, some people don't care a whoop how the money is to be repaid as long as they can gratify their ideas and have the taxpayers vote to place their own heads into a 30 years' yoke of bondage. If for no other reason, because the ordinance does not provide for a sinking fund, the taxpayers should consider well before they commit another mistake by having to pay thousands of dollars for interest and with no money to pay off the principal."

We ask any fair minded person whether they think this is contemptible criticism? And whether Mayor Talmage was justified in calling the editor contemptible for acting as he did under the circumstances.

If that trifling incident is contemptible, what can be thought of Mr. Talmage, who, having taken an oath of office and becomes the mayor of this municipality, allows gamblers to openly violate the law without exerting the dignity of the office of mayor and who has done nothing that we are aware of to stamp out the special privileges to gamblers to violate the law, and has done nothing to stamp out one of the biggest curses that was ever allowed to get foothold in Tillamook City—not that Mayor Talmage is to be blamed for its introduction in the city, for it was a condition of affairs he found when he first took office—but allows it to remain, being re-elected to office by those who do not want certain laws enforced.

Truly, some men can swallow a camal and strain at a knat when they have an ax to grind or want to keep up the continual clatter of "roasting" the HEADLIGHT man. It must be getting awfully insipid to the public.

As Mayor Talmage has been fit, without the least provocation, at a public meeting to characterize the editor of the Headlight as a contemptible person over a very trivial matter, let us ask a fair minded public what it thinks of this.

After Mr. Talmage was first elected Mayor, one of his duties was to appoint several persons to serve on the Port of Tillamook Commission. One evening the mayor and the editor met in Mr. Browne's store, and in the presence of that person, Mr. Talmage asked the editor if he appointed him on the Commission whether he would accept. The editor told the mayor that he was not desirous of the appointment, for being a newspaper man, he thought it better for him to keep out of public office. Mr. Talmage replied that as the editor had taken such an active part in advocating harbor improvements he would be a good person to appoint, and he wanted to avoid all factional differences. It was entirely at the solicitation of Mr. Talmage, after a pleasant talk on matters of a public nature, that the editor finally consented and the mayor agreed to make the appointment. Mr. Browne can verify every statement we have made above.

A week or so later, Mr. Talmage called the editor into his office and said he was in an embarrassing position and wanted to be relieved of the promise to appoint the editor on the Commission. He gave as his reason that the members of the Commission would turn his recommendation down by not confirming the appointment of the editor, and he wanted to be relieved of that embarrassing position. The editor told the mayor to appoint anyone else, for he had not sought the appointment, if it would relieve him of any embarrassment.

The editor was not quite satisfied, being a little curious to know who it was that was going to turn him down, started out to interview each member personally.

The first person interviewed was Mr. F. R. Beals, and in the presence of Mr. Talmage, the editor asked him this question:

"Have you any objection to Mr. Talmage appointing me on the Port of Tillamook Commission; and if he did make the appointment would you turn it down?"

Mr. Beals' reply was:

"No; who said I would. I would like to see Mr. Baker on the Commission."

The editor left the mayor and Mr. Beals together, and did not wait to hear Mr. Beals express himself further on the subject as we understand he did so.

About the same kind of reply came from all the other Commissioners, who were in town, with one exception, that of Mr. Claude Thayer, who gave as his reason that he did not think it was policy for the mayor to appoint the editor. That satisfied the editor that Mr. Thayer was the power behind the throne, and he alone was the person who raised the objection to what Mr. Talmage had agreed and decided do. As to turning the appointment down, the editor has the word of the Commissioners that they knew nothing about it, but, on the other hand, would confirm it if it was made.

Truly, embarrassing, wasn't it, for Mr. Talmage, but the editor would have been content to have let this incident pass unnoticed had Mr. Talmage not made the break he did on Friday without the least provocation on the editor's part, and as the editor is forced to take up the gauntlet thrown down by the mayor, he does so reluctantly.

The editor does not loose his equalibrium on such occasions nor allow petty personalities to control his actions, for he has been made the kicking post for the "knockers" for quite a time, but with futile effect. The editor has always treated Mayor Talmage with due courtesy, and if he has allowed Mr. Thayer to "dare" him do what he made up his mind to, we feel sorry that the mayor has not more spunk and independence.

But as to-morrow is Christmas day and we have not the slightest ill feeling against Mayor Talmage. Mr. Thayer, and the perpetual "knockers," we wish them all a merry, merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous new year.

Tax Law is Corrected.

SALEM, Or., Dec. 22.—Good progress was made in the transaction of business in the Oregon Legislature today and the outlook is favorable for adjournment Wednesday night or Thursday.

The defective tax law has been corrected, the $300 tax exemption has been revived, the law relating to executions at the Penitentiary has been amended so that it is thought Pleas Armstrong can be hanged, and a law has been enacted fixing fees to be charged by Recorders of Conveyances.

Republicans will caucus again tomorrow at noon. They met today, but immediately adjourned. They are more harmonious that last night. Three important matters remain for consideration: The Celilo canal right of way, the shortage of railway cars, and flat salaries for state officers. A bill fixing the time and manner in which suits may be brought to recover fees illegally collected by Recorders will probably also be passed.

Dairy Strippings.

Good roads and dairying are closely connected when profit is considered. The question of time in going to and from the factory is important. Often with good roads not half the time is consumed as would be required with deep mud. Where dairying has been carried on for a length of time the roads show a great improvement.

The largest creamery in the world is located at Lincoln, Neb. It makes 7,000,000 pounds of butter annually. This is an average of a ton and a half of butter a day, the churns running night and day, with two shifts of men. The creamery has 6,000 patrons in Nebraska and cream is brought 450 miles. There are eighty skimming stations. Four thousand hand separators are in use by its patrons.

Wooded churns are to be preferred to metal. Metal churns are more subject to change of temperature than the wooden. The temperature of wooden churns can be held at the desired point for some time, usually long enough to churn a batch of cream. The butter does not adhere to the churn when made of wood, while there is a considerable loss with metal churns.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contains Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and compleely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

COULSONBURG.

A merry, merry Xmas to all.

Will Thune, of Blaine, visited friends at this place the first of last week.

Albert Linnaman and wife, of Spruce, were the guests at Norman Dye's Sunday.

Mrs Abbie and Linnie Coulson have returned to the "burg" after a pleasant sojourn at Blaine.

Master Jonnie Borboa has gone into the cattle business and that quite heavily. He purchased one yearling calf of H. Coulson Wednesday, consideration "two bits" or 25c. Good luck to you johnnie.

Miss Blanch Bailey, Messrs. Frank Dye and Lon Kinnaman, were the welcome guests at N. Coulson's Sunday.

Clarence Coulson, who came here from Iowa a few days ago, has been employed by J. D. Jones of "Jone's Falles."

D. F. Coulson and family are visiting Mr. O. W. Kinnaman's of Boulder Creek.

NEHALEM.

Nehalem Lodge, No. 199, Fraternal Union of America, elected the following officers to serve the ensuing term: Fraternal Master, Wm. J. Roehmer; Justice, Mrs. Ada Norris; Truth, Mrs. Mattie Oliver; Merry, Miss Marie Lange; Protector, Mrs. Mary Snyder; Secretary, Wm A. Oliver; Treasurer, Wm. N. Reddaway; Guide, Hugo Klein; Sentinel, Willie Effenberger; Sentinels, H. V. Alley, C. V. Preston and Fred Lange.

At the regular meeting of White Clover Grange, held Dec. 17th, at the grange hall, the following officers were elected: Master, E. K. Scovell; Overseer, George Loerpabel; Lecturer, Felis Roy; Secretary, Mrs. Lily Zaddach; Treasurer, B. A. Todd; Steward, H. Sweeney; Asst. Steward, F. Zaddach; Chaplain, Mrs. L. Sweeney; Gate keeper, C. Christensen; Fomona, Mrs. A. Crawford; Ceres, Mrs. M. Snyder; Flora, Mrs. Mattie Oliver; Lady Asst. Steward, Mrs. L. Todd. Three new candidates were conducted through the mysteries of the first degrees, and after a bountiful dinner, the grangers absconded.

GLENORA.

Our school is progressing finely, with Miss Agnes Hess in charge a lady from the East, an experienced educator.

The Oregonian often tells of the North Yamhill roads' condition, of its being impassable, and no way to get to Tillamook except on horseback. Why does not some interested person let it be known in the papers that the Wilson River road was only blocked for teams a very short time after the November storm and since then has been open for travel.

Mrs. J. F. Reeher is quite sick with asthma and bronchitis.

S. J. Smith is visiting his parents at the present time.

Mrs Maggie Illingworth has been staying at Harris' place for the past two weeks.

J. R. Harris has been in Portland for nearly a month past.

The mail carriers report the road in fair condition between here and Gales Creek.

Miss Grace Reeher is at present at Los Angeles, California.

Every one is complaining of bad colds.

BOULDER CREEK.

Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Coulson, of Wolfe Creek, who have been visiting at O. W. Kinnaman's for several days past, returned to their home Monday.

H. L Jensen and family were guests at L. P. Gray's last Sunday.

Mr. P. B. Lucas has moved into his new house.

Robt. Maclay and Will Ray, of Blaine, passed here en route to Tillamook last Monday.

Mr and Mrs. H. A. Chopard and son and Mr. H. Bays took dinner at Mr. Geo. W. Lucas' last Sunday.

Mr. Ayer, of Blaine, went to Beaver last Saturday. The teacher for Boulder Creek is expected in a day or two. School will open Monday, December 28.

Mr. Hamilton Bays has gone over to his brother's to spend Christmas.

The air is full of whispers concerning a certain wedding to be celebrated soon if not sooner. "Murder will out," you know, in spite of caution.

The Christmas tree and entertainment at Boulder Creek school house have been abandoned.

Confesses to Arson.

ALBANY, Or., Dec. 21.—The little town of Lebanon was visited by a fire of incendiary origin at an early hour this morning, and almost an entire business block was consumed. The fire started in a room occupied by Gross & Rogoway, who were closing out a bankrupt stock of merchandise. The saloon of Jennings Bros., confectionery store of H. Smith and barber shop of J. H. Lutz were destroyed, together with the stock of Gross & Rogoway.

The citizens became suspicious of the actions of Oscar Rogoway, one of the partners, and fastened a rope around his neck. Rogoway was led to a telephone pole, protesting his innocence, but when the rope commenced to tighten around his neck, he confessed to starting the fire, but alleged that his brother-in-law, A. Gross had compelled him to commit the felony. He was taken to the City Jail.

Gross, the brother-in-law and alleged accomplice, left Lebanon shortly after midnight, about an hour before the fire broke out, and drove to Albany. He took the 8 o'clock train back to Lebanon, but only remained a few minutes, returning to this city, where he secured an attorney and went to Lebanon again.

The preliminary examination of young Rogoway was held at that place this afternoon, and he was placed under $2000 bonds, but was unable to secure them, and was brought to this city and placed in the County Jail. The prosecuting attorney, Percy R. Kelly, maintains that there was no attempt to lynch Rogoway, and that the confession was not procured by force or threats.

Dr. P. J. Sharp, the experienced dentist is located in Dr. Wise's dental parlors, and is prepared to do nothing but first class work and give the best of satisfaction. If your teeth need fixing call upon him.

Five Minutes' Sermon.

A five minutes' sermon was preached at the Catholic Church on Sunday by Rev. L. A. Le Miller from St. Luke III., 5, 6.

"Every valley shall be filled and every mountain and hill shall be brought low."

A valley is a depression in the land. It represents a deficiency, a defect, something that is wanting, which can be supplied only by bringing hither what is wanting from elsewhere. A valley or depression, morally speaking, is a want or deficiency in the heart; it represents our various negligences of duty, which have to be supplied; these depressions in the heart must be filled up. Divine worship is a duty so necessary, that God will not and cannot exempt us from it. Next to this is the duty of the love of our neighbor; these two forming the sum and substance of Christian life.

There are many defects in the human heart that form, as it were, deep depressions in the heart and character of man, principally among which may be named lukewarmness and indifference; these are a slave to the soul. For what faith is unless it be active and firm, what love is without zeal and prayer without devotion, such is the soul in the state of lukewarmness and indifference.

In the valleys are gathered together vermin and noxious insects of all kinds, there may be found marshes, mud and filth in fulness and plenty, where a mixture and conglomeration of foulness and dirt may always to be found, all commingled and caluclated to raise a stench and produce a pest in the region round about. To these morbific contaminations and hideous infectious in nature, does the great preacher of penance and forerunner of Christ compare the various vices of the human heart, as lewdness, intemperance, brawls, hatred and infidelity, which cause, so to speak, these deep depressions in the souls of men. Into such hearts Christ will not enter; of such men God is no respecter. He will not be a renumerator of the undutiful, the vicious, or the sluggish and inert. Therefore we are admonished to replace, to fill up every deficiency, every depression of the heart; to remove the debris, to fill up the valley, to put out of the way what is in the way, so the heart may be prepared for Christ to enter in.

"Every mountain and hill shall be brought low." A mountain or hill is just the opposite formation to a valley. It may be said to represent something in excess, the one, something that is wanting, the other an impediment. A hill or mountain presents an impediment to the traveler, that may be very bothersome, and even a hindrance to his onward journey. Therefore the Baptist, St. John, draws a very striking comparison, mountains to hills are elevations, figurative of the pride of vanity of the heart. Vanity may be called the source and root of all deadly sins, and the sepulcher of every virtue. Vanity is an insurmountable mountain between the human heart and its God. It will not permit the refreshing dews of Grace to cross over. It is a huge embankment, a giant wall that shuts off all intercourse between man and the Creator, thereby preventing contrition of the heart and peaceful communion with God. Vanity is a foolish pride, it gives rise to an inordinate desire for possessions to wealth, and arouses unholy aspirations for power and influence, forming a moral barrier to the progress of spiritual life. Take away this mountain, pull down this rugged hill that stands in the way of God and the human heart! To break down this massive obstruction, is simply to learn of Christ, to be meek and humble of heart.

"And the crooked shall be made straight and the rough ways plain." To find one's way out in crooked ways is very often a difficult and disagreeable task, and not unfrequently we are led astray. As concerns the heart, all perverse actions are crooked. To lie, to cheat or to defraud is crooked, whether it be in the bearing of false witness against our neighbor, taking advantage of the ignorant in trade, the giving of false weights, measure or merchandise, or in defrauding the honest hireling of his hire. Fearlessly and with a dreadful judgment has Christ denounced the liar, the cheat and the defrauder. To be straight in our dealings, honest in purpose, upright and truthful and just in all ways, is what the Holy preacher admonishes us, by saying, the crooked shall be made straight. If we are Christians, followers in the footsteps of our Divine Savior, and faithful practical members of his church on earth, we will earnestly heed that admonition, to make the crooked ways straight and the rough ways plain.

As the rough ways belabor the traveler, and retard the progress of his journey through life, do those smaller imperfections and shortcomings keep back our onward march. These two are to be put aside or leveled down; as the planer smoothes down an object with the plane, so we by striving for perfection make plain the rough ways of the spiritual life.

"And all flesh shall see the salvation of God." This is a very consolatory promise. Consolatory to all those who heed and obey the words of the great preacher of penance, who make their lives conformable to his teachings and admonitions, and who enter with him in spirit into a true penitential life and conversation of the heart, for it is to such that the promise is made. These are they who are of good will, and for whom the great feast of 'Xmas is not an empty dream, or a mere day of recreation and pleasure seeking, but a day full of grace, happiness and blessings.
