A Word of Praise.

The nomination by the republicans of Hon. B. L. Eddy of Tillamook as one of the judges of the third judicial district, will be very pleasing to a large number of Washington county people. Mr. Eddy is a Washington county boy, having been born and spent his early years on a farm north of Hillsboro. Since he has been practicing law and been in politics at Tillamook he has frequently been over this way and made many friends who are glad to see that his worth is recognized in a larger field. As a member of the legislature for two or three terms he showed marked ability and was looked upon as one of the leaders of the House. After the death of Congressman Tongue Mr. Eddy was favorably mentioned as a candidate as his successor.—Forest Grove Times.

Meat Trade With Germany.

Recent advices from Berlin state that as the result of one year's experience under the German law regulating meat imports, sales in that country of American packed meats have ceased. An attempt has been made in Germany to produce canned meats equal in quality to the American and Australian product, but it has achieved no definite success. A Berlin paper says that German canned meat cannot be for Germany what the corned beef was—a good and cheap food material for the people, and adds: "A fundamental reason why it has not been and cannot be possible to produce an equally good and cheap product is the lack of the indispensable cheap beef. It was a great mistake in our economic policy to prevent the importation of the American and Australian canned meats. Sanitary objections do not exist and our agriculturists derive no advantage from the prohibition, but, on the other hand, the laborer is deprived of a cheap and nutritious food product."

Not only is this the case, but the effect of the policy has also been to deliver the people of Germany into the hands of a meat trust, the extortion of which is a matter of general complaint. It is pointed out that as the German mill operative is accustomed to a meat diet, which has hitherto been largely made up of the canned meat of this country, there is great indignation in all urban communities, which is likely to make itself felt very effectively whenever there is a new Reichstag elected. It is likely to show itself in a large increase of all shades of the radical vote and make a great deal of trouble in the empire, where there is already a very unpleasant divergence between urban and manufacturing interests on the one hand and rural and agrarian interests on the other. If it be true, as stated, that the German agriculturists are deriving no advantage from the prohibition, but only the trust is profiting by it, it would seem that the policy must be short lived, though there is no intimation that the government is likely to depart from it, at least in the near future. In time the meat trade with Germany which this country has lost will perhaps be restored and in the meantime it will be the masses of the German people who will be injured by the exclusion of American canned meat. The great body of workmen in that country are the sufferers from this prohibition, which has not proved a particularly serious matter to the American packers, who are able to find markets elsewhere for their product.

Use of Rural Carriers.

There is a disagreement between the two houses of congress over the rural carriers on the free delivery routes. The house raised the pay of the carriers, but prohibited them from soliciting business or receiving orders of any kind for any corporation, firm or individual, or carrying any merchandise for hire, during their regular hours of employment, exception being made if patrons on the routes request such service and it does not interfere with their regular work. The senate committee on postoffices has decided to modify this restriction of rural carriers and allow them to deliver merchandise for hire and receive subscriptions for newspapers and deliver papers, magazines and other periodicals upon the request of patrons, when such service does not interfere with their work for the government.

We think that very generally the position of the senate committee will be approved and it certainly will be with practical unanimity by the rural population which has found the carriers a great convenience in other ways than the delivery of mail. As the Cleveland Leader points out, their delivery of newspapers has resulted in shortening the time required to get papers to the readers and they have saved farmers uncounted journeys to the nearest towns, by taking orders for merchandise and delivering goods, this causing no interference with their government work. "The question is simply one of the greatest good in the greatest number," observes the Leader, "and that end will be served by a broad and liberal policy."

Our Beet Sugar Industry.

At the recent meeting of the American Beet Sugar association an official of the Department of Agriculture gave an account of the visit of an agent of the department to Europe who investigated the workings of the beet sugar seed farms in Germany, France and Austria. It was stated that the result of the agent's observations would be an effort to develop the home-grown sugar beet in several of our states, chiefly Colorado, Washington and Nebraska. The opinion was expressed by the agent that a seed could be produced from which could be grown a beet containing 20 per cent of sugar, which is said to be over 4 per cent greater than the average of Europe, or a production of eighty pounds more sugar to every ton of beets than has heretofore been obtained.

A recent report of experts regarding the beet sugar industry in the United States is not on the whole so encouraging for the future as could be wished, yet it does not warrant a wholly pessimistic view respecting the future of this industry. There seems to be no doubt that the concession given to Cuban sugar in the reciprocity treaty has had the anticipated effect of curtailing interest in the home industry, though this is serious extent. There are some facts that show that American beet growers are by no means yet disposed to abandon the enterprise and also that capital has not altogether lost interest in it. A San Francisco paper remarks that it is yet too early to predict the ultimate outcome of the competition of beet with cane sugar in this country, but until the production of Cuban sugar is equal to the requirements of the United States the reduction of the duty on Cuban sugar need not effect the price of sugar beets.

According to a recent report of the American Beet Sugar company there has been a decline in output, but it is not alleged that this is wholly due to the Cuban competition, which has really not yet been very important. It is perhaps mainly due to an apprehension of what this competition may be hereafter, the natural tendency of which is to deter farmers from going into the business of sugar beet culture and also to cause capital to keep out of investment in the manufacture of beet sugar. Nevertheless there is reason to believe that the beet sugar industry of this country will continue to make progress, though it may be slower than has been expected, and that ultimately it will attain to very large proportions, even if it shall never supply, as has been hoped, the demand for home consumption. With what has already been accomplished and with additional facilities there is certainly not a hopeless outlook for the American beet sugar industry.

Sermons Boiled Down.

Regret cannot unprofit wrong. Doubts make a poor refuge from duty. It takes more than a fence to make a garden. Present character is a prophecy of future condition. Man's noblest right is that of given up his rights. Rest is religion's opportunity for rein. vigation. There is no clean thinking apart from clean living. Respectability may be quite different from righteousness. He who loses no love for others loses all life for himself. Nothing blinds the soul quicker than blinking at sin. Platitudes against sin are as harmful as applause for sin. In the divine scale a dime often weighs more than a dollar. The worst blasphemy is that of profession without practice. God cannot blot out our past, but he can prevent its blight on the future.—Chicago Tribune

A Great Sensation.

There was a big sensation in Lees. ville, Ind., when W. H. Brown, of that place, who was expected to die, had his life saved by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. He writes: "I endured insufferable agonies from Asthma, but your New Discovery gave me immediate relief and soon thereafter effected a complete cure." Similar cures of Consumption, Pneumonia, Bronchitis and Grip are numerous. It's the peerless remedy for all throat and lung troubles. Price 50c., and $1.00. Guaranteed by L. Clough, Druggist. BILL IS DOOMED.

House Committee Will Block Land Returns.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20.—The House committee on public lands is to hold an executive session Friday to take action on the Senate bill repealing the timber and stone act and authorizing the sale of public timber to the best bidders. It has been apparent during the course of hearings that has been given on this bill that the House committee is overwhelmingly opposed to repealing the timber and stone act, and an adverse report is looked for which will mean no remedial land legislation this session. A month ago there was a possibility that the House committee might report this bill, although a deal had been made between the Senate committee and the leading members of the House committee to quash the measure and prevent it getting before the House. At this time, it is said a majority of the members of the House committee favored the bill and stood ready to report it, if given an opportunity.

There has been great reversal of sentiment, however, due to the admissions made by George H. Maxwell, president of the National Irrigation Association. During the hearing on the bill he told the committee that transcontinental railroads and large holders of script had been contributing $50,000 annually to maintain his association, and that these contributors looked to the organization to exert itself to secure the repeal of the timber and stone, desert land and homestead commutation laws.

This admission has been generally taken by members of the House to mean that these scripholders have been making systematic attempts to secure legislation which would compel persons seeking timber lands and large holdings of others to buy from the railroads or purchase blocks of script. In other words, members generally believe that agitation for land reform is instigated entirely by the railroads and scripholders with a view to increasing the value of their lands and providing a ready market for them. So strong has become the belief that all chance of passing the Senate bill through the House, even if it could be reported, has been destroyed.

Chairman Lacey, Representative Mondell and other prominent and influential members of the House committee are determined that the Senate bill shall not be reported, and their influence is such as to prevent action at this session, even though adverse sentiment had not grown up as a result of Maxwell's admissions.

Quaint Features of Life.

After weeks of torture Oscar Leonard, of Philadelphia, born without a nose, but desirous of having one, is on the road to success. A finger, which is to supply the place of the missing organ, was cut away from his hand and Leonard will soon have a full fledged nose. The operation was performed in the Pennsylvania University hospital.

There is in Morristown, N.J., a bed quilt which beats the world for eccentricity. It is made from patches collected from the hats of 14,600 brides. Now if the collector had but had the presence of mind to request a sentiment suitable to the occasion to be inscribed upon each patch what a valuable human document that same quilt would be.

Things matrimonial being a trifle dull in Hamilton county, Missouri, Probate Judge Martin has undertaken to start a little boom by publishing "testimonials" which descant on the joys of wedded life. Among the advertisements is this: "One fire will do for two. Matrimony, like Bethlehem's star, is guiding the men and maidens of the east and of the west to the only condition under which human existence is complacent. I have tried it for more than fifty years and have never found marriage a failure yet."

Henry Wahlert, of Jersey City Heights, is a somnambulist. He retired at 9 o'clock. Two hours later William Herlihy, who was on his way home, saw Wahlert on Ogden avenue, Jersey City, near the edge of the cliff at Franklin street, clad only in his night clothes. Before Herlihy could reach the sleep-walker he had fallen over the edge of the cliff, which at that point is eighty feet high. Luckily he struck on a ledge twenty feet below, was rudely awakened by the shock, and was rescued by Herlihy.

SHERIFF KILLS BOY.

Chester Keady Was Resisting Arrest at Corvallis.

CORVALLIS, Or., April 24.—Chester Keady is dead, ex-Chief of Police of Corvallis, is perhaps fatally shot; David A. Osburn, ex-Sheriff of Benton County, is dangerously shot, as the result of a pistol duel that took place shortly after midnight this Sunday morning.

Keady is aged about 18 years, and is the son of George B. Keady, head of the printing department of the college. He was shot in the head and instantly killed by Sheriff Burnett while resisting arrest. His body now lies at the morgue. Osburn and Dunn are at the Occidental Hotel, where surgeons are probing for bullets.

Osburn's wound is in the neck, the ball having entered the left side of the neck and is probably lodged under the right shoulder blade.

Dunn's wound is in the abdomen, two inches to the left and below the navel. The surgeons are now in the midst of an operation to determine the character of his injuries.

The trouble began shortly before midnight when Keady, after leaving a restaurant, fired off his pistol, and ex-Sheriff Osburn, who is night officer of Corvallis, undertook to arrest him. Keady was under the influence of liquor, and when Osburn approached he drew a gun and ordered Osburn to halt.

There was some parleying and in the process of the attempt to arrest Keady the pursued and pursuer passed from Chipman's restaurant to the Postoffice, a distance of a block. There, as Osburn advanced, Keady fired, and the officer, shot through the neck, fell in the arms of bystanders.

Sheriff Burnett was sent for, and in due time arrived. James Dunn accompanied him, and the Sheriff, approaching Keady near James Taylor's residence took Keady by the arm and ordered him under arrest. Keady whipped out a pistol and began to fire. The first shot went wide of the mark, and the second, also aimed at the Sheriff, took effect in Dunn's abdomen.

Then Burnett fired, and Keady fell with a shot in the head. Dunn fell into the arms of a companion, firing two shots from his pistol at Keady as he did so. Burt Turney, aged 22, is in custody as an accessory with Keady.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure not known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.
