Vote for Principle.

Probably most every voter has decided who he will vote for next Monday, and all the political talk that is now going on will have very little effect in changing votes one way or the other. What is the situation in Tillamook and how is the election likely to terminate? To answer that in few words, we would say there is going to be a regular republican land slide for President Roosevelt, in which Tillamook will join and roll up its regular republican majority. There is no doubt whatever as to that, for the county is overwhelming republican and will remain so because republican policies have enhanced the value of dairy products, and but few dairymen want to go back to low prices and stagnation in the labor and money markets, with all its attending hard times. Here, then, is the situation in a nutshell, and it is now left to the voters of Oregon, and of this county, to decide whether they want republicanism, democracy, prohibition or socialism to prevail. As it is admitted that the prohibitionists and socialists are hopelessly in the minority, the fight is between republicanism and democracy, so the voters have the choice of the two old parties again which they want to place in power, and as Oregon fires the first political gun, the result of the election on Monday is waited with keen interest in most every state in the union, for if Oregon rolls up a big majority for President Roosevelt other states will follow suit. Unfortunately for the republican party in Tillamook, it has not been able to present a united front for many years on account of so many wanting public office, and failing in this quite a number of them have been unwilling to bow to the will of the majority and fall into line, as they should have done had they possessed political sagacity. On account of this, these dissatisfied republicans have more or less scratched their own candidates and in a few cases they have hobnobbed with the democratic party for the purpose of defeating the republican party. Other counties in the state have undergone political strife, and now that the "knockers" have gone through the experience that more they "knock" easier it is to knock them out in a political fight, hence they have fallen into line, and on that account the republicans will be much more united all over the state than for several years, and on that account there will be a regular republican land slide in Oregon on Monday, for it is party principles of the four political parties, not for the different candidates, that the voters are asked to express their opinion upon when marking their ballots in the booth. As we previously stated, it is unfortunate for Tillamook politics that the minority will not submit to the will of the majority, and in some few cases republicans have allowed some petty thing or some political lie to influence them against some of the candidates. The republican convention nominated clean and capable men to fill the public offices, and on that account it is good politics for republicans to vote for them, because they represent republicanism in the fullest extent of the word. Socialists will vote for socialist candidates because they are socialists in principle. Prohibitionists will vote for the candidates who believe in prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicants. Democrats will vote for democratic candidates because they believe in democracy, and prefer democratic hard times to republican prosperity. Republicans will vote for republican candidates because they represent republicanism and republican prosperity brought about by the policy of that party. That is the reason the HEADLIGHT has advised republicans to vote a straight ticket so as to ascertain the party strength. As the other three parties will vote for their respective candidates because they represent their politics, there is just as much logic in the argument that republicans should support their candidates with as much enthusiasm and loyalty as the other parties will their candidates.

As to the result of the election, there is not the least doubt but what the entire republican ticket will be elected, if the reports from the different parts of the county are correct and reliable. There appears to be the same amount of opposition and from the same "knockers" who fought the ticket two and four years ago, and if we are able to judge public sentiment we find that very few republicans who believe in the principles of republicanism are chewing the political rag. When they vote they will vote right and vote for republican candidates and republican principles. On the other hand, it is those who are doing the most talking, for they know full well that if they succeed at all they must obtain republican votes, and to secure them they are trying to bring about dissension in the republican party by trying to persuade republicans to scratch some of the republican candidates, and in that way the democrats expect to win and turn Tillamook into a democratic county—if they can persuade enough republicans to scratch republican candidates. But that political trick will not work, and it is only right that republicans should resent being led into such a political trap as that which is laid to defeat them. Our advice to republicans is to vote for republican principles and candidates who represent them, so as to ascertain whether this county is enthusiastic for Theodore Roosevelt, who stands for the same principles as every candidate on the local as well as the state republican ticket. As a last appeal, we want republicans to stand pat for ALL the republican candidates and republican principles.

Tillamook's Favored Son.

Every man who has ever accomplished anything in any community has made some enemies. Mr. Eddy is no exception to the rule, unless it be in this, that his enemies appear to be of a specially vindictive and unscrupulous kind. They appear also to have a great deal of spare time on their hands in which to invent and circulate falsehoods. Some of them will be seen on the street corners from now until the polls close abusing and cursing Mr. Eddy. The public knows them and is learning to shun and despise them. If they were to put into their respective occupations the same energy which they expend in abusing others they would succeed better, forget their envious and jealousies and enjoy more of the respect of the community. As it is, they will find in the long run that they have injured themselves more than any one else. Reports from the outside show that there is no possible doubt of Mr. Eddy's election to the office of Circuit Judge. Tillamook can and will swell the majority and show her appreciation of the honor conferred upon one of her citizens. She has never before received such distinguished recognition. We are sure Tillamook will do herself credit by turning down envy and malice and falsehood, and standing by the man who has always been loyal to Tillamook, and who has never hesitated to expend his time or money in the public interest. It is to be remembered that Mr. Eddy has never before been a candidate for a really lucrative office, but in serving as mayor, as school director and as member of the legislature he has necessarily sacrificed his time and means for the public good. In the legislature he has stood faithfully by every interest of Tillamook. We shall at this time call attention to only a few instances, in which he has shown his loyalty, namely: 1.—In casting his vote for United States Senators, the first qualification in Mr. Eddy's eyes was friendliness to Tillamook harbor improvements. Every one knows that both Senators Mitchell and Fulton are firm friends to Tillamook, and that Mr. Eddy took a prominent part in the election of both. Again, when Mr. Hermann was nominated for Congress a year ago, Mr. Eddy, at the request of Mr. Hermann went to the Willamette Valley and made speeches for Mr. Hermann. This was done because of Mr. Hermann's friendliness to Tillamook, and was done at Mr. Eddy's personal expense. Again, it might be mentioned that when the National Rivers and Harbors Committee visited Oregon and Tillamook desired a hearing by them, Mr. Eddy was one of those chosen to go to Portland and travel

Danger in Co-Operative Enterprise.

The rock upon which most rural co-operative enterprises are wrecked is distrust—lack of confidence in members of the co-operative association or the active manager, says the Orange Judd Farmer. To prevent this as far as possible, great care should be exercised in selecting members for the association. Only farmers of good standing should be included. They should have unspotted reputations for honesty, and if they possess good business ability, so much the better. Then the manager must be a good business man and an honest and honorable one. "With these two items carefully looked after, there should be no reason for suspicion. Stand by your manager and board of directors. If the profits of the business are sometimes not as large as you think they should be, do not condemn until you are sure there is just cause for complaint. Even then be just and do not endanger the enterprise by organizing opposition. Rather try to remedy the evil by advice and help. The very fact that farmers are free and independent managing their own business militates against co-operation. Being born to independence, the farmer naturally hesitates about delegating any of his business to a second party. He thinks he can look after it better than anyone else. To a certain extent this is true, but the complexity of modern methods makes a division of labor imperative. Other kinds of business succeed under this plan, and there is no reason why the marketing of crops should not, and possibly also the buying of supplies. First secure good officers, then stand by them. Self conceit is self deceit.

Canal Zone Government.

Those who have deprecated the fact that congress devolved upon the president the duty of providing for the government of the canal zone, on the ground that it gave him autocratic power over the inhabitants of the strip on the isthmus controlled by the United States, will hardly find fault with the proclamation of General Davis, appointed governor of the zone, setting forth the policy of administration that will be carried out. There is in this nothing to which any American citizen can reasonably object and that it will be beneficial to the people of the zone is not to be doubted. Social conditions there at present need reforming and this will be done, while the people will also be taught respect for law. This may not be welcome to some of them, and possibly some severity will be necessary in order to teach them, but they must learn the lesson however reluctant they may be to do so. Of course it was utterly absurd to assume, as some of the critics of the action of congress have done, that President Roosevelt might exercise despotic rule over the canal zone, and it must be presumed that these critics now see how ridiculous their professed apprehension was. There could be no conceivable motive for the president applying there other than established American principles, for which no man has a higher or stronger regard than Mr. Roosevelt. It goes without saying that the government of the zone will commend itself to all our people.

Vaseline in Milking.

An Australian dairymen, who has a remarkable record for milk that keeps sweet gives the following method of milking: How do we do this? you may inquire. Not by any red tape, white suit, covered pail, or dry-teat milking. We conduct too large an establishment to waste time or money in gingerbread extras. When a dairymen tells me he practices dry-teat milking, I know he either does not milk cows himself or does not state facts. It is physically impossible to milk any herd of cows and keep their teats dry. There are a few cows in every herd that can be milked with dry teats, but they are exceptions. I visited a dairy herd some time ago that advertised in a neat booklet that they milk with dry teats. The proprietor of this herd is a stickler in his methods, but all the same I saw his men wipe their hands on their overall legs repeatedly to keep them dry when milking short-teated cows. We take a small amount of vaseline on the fingers of the right hand, sit down to the cow, and with the left hand brush off her flanks and udder; then anoint the udder with the palm of the hand. This fixes any dust or bacteria that might drop off during milking, and the case of milking will astonish any one who has not tried this method, and the more surprised party will be the cow herself, if she chances to belong to a dry-teat advocate.

Liquor and Labor.

If a laboring man buys $100.00 worth of boots and shoes, he buys $20.71 of labor. $100 worth of furniture.....$23.77 $100 worth of hardware.....$24.17 $100 worth of clothing.....$17.42 $100 worth of cotton goods.....$16.91 $100 worth of men's furnishing goods.....$18.34 $100 worth of worsted goods.....$13.55 $100 worth of woolen goods.....$12.86 In every $100 worth of liquors, he buys but $1.23 of labor. If eight laboring men spend $800 for furniture, hardware, clothing, cotton, worsted and woolen goods, and men's furnishing goods, they contribute $147.43 to labor; and at the same time that they bring valuable supplies to their families, they stimulate business and add to the demand for labor. If the $800 is spent in the saloon, only $9.84 goes for labor; the families are made wretched; and the men themselves are made worse physically, financially and morally; their jobs are imperiled; and they have wasted their money. Liquor is labor's worst enemy.
