Hugh Cronin is Drowned.

Hugh Cronin, who was well known at Nehalem, having lived there with his parents, was drowned at McGowan, on the Columbia river, on Thursday morning as the result of an accident. The body was taken to Astoria in the afternoon to await the arrival of the deceased's sisters.

Young Cronin had been a student at Mount Angel and went to Astoria on Tuesday in search of employment. He found a position with P. J. McGowan & Sons as mate of the sloop Rambler and left at once for the north shore to work.

About 8 o'clock on Thursday morning Cronin attempted to climb down a ladder to board the Rambler, but the ladder gave way, precipitating the young man into the water. He did not rise to the surface after striking the water and the body was not recovered until 10:30, despite the efforts made to rescue the hapless young man.

Examination of the body showed that Cronin had, in falling, struck his head against the rail of the sloop, the force of the blow rendering him unconscious and accounted for his failure to come to the surface after falling into the water. Justice of the Peace Dalton held an inquest over the remains, the jury returning a verdict of accidental death.

Cronin's parents are dead, but he is survived by three brothers and two sisters—Joseph and Francis Cronin, of Astoria; James Cronin, of Swensen; Miss Theresa Cronin, of Portland; and Miss Mamie Cronin, of Oakland, Cal.

BOULDER CREEK.

G. T. Coulson hauled three loads of shale timber down Boulder from O. W. Kinnaman's last Friday for H. A. Chopard.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Lucas went to Blaine, and spent Saturday and Sunday with Mr. M. Curly's family.

R. Y. Blalock and family went to Tillamook Monday.

Mrs. H. A. Chopard and son Norman came home Saturday after two days visiting Mrs. Chopard's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Getchell, at Hebo.

Mrs. Elsie Kinnaman, we are sorry to say, is on the sick list at present. She is with her mother at Wolfe Creek.

W. D. Gladwill butchered a fine beef Monday.

"All the world and his wife" went to Ocean Park to celebrate the glorious Fourth.

A picnic party from Blaine came down the river Monday and had a fish fry on the bank of the river near here.

Mrs. Jennie Lucas and Emmanuel Borba, were out calling in this vicinity the first of the week.

O. W. Kinnaman has moved down to help his father put up his barn.

Everyone will have to let the bark rest until they get through haying.

Mr. H. Plummer, the cascara speculator, was in from Dallas last week.

M. T. Soares spent the Fourth with his friends the Chopards.

We are pleased to record that Mr. John Borba, who has been very ill, is able to be up and about the house again.

"That day is best wherein we give A thought of other's sorrows; Forgetting self we learn to live, And blessings born of kindly deeds Make golden our to-morrows."

—Rose H. Thorpe.

An old lady of New Hampshire, who recently celebrated her eightieth birthday by giving an elaborate supper at which every article including the cheese and butter was made with her own hands, thus explained the secret of her vigor and health: "I never fret over things I cannot help; I take a nap, and sometimes two, every day of my life; I never take my work to bed with me, and I oil the many wheels of a busy life by an implicit faith that there is a brain and heart to this great universe, and that I can trust them both."

—The Housewife.

Trying Against Trusting.

So long as we try to worship God to the proposition of "what must we do to be saved," we will find ourselves trying, it is not until we look to "what has been done" that we can learn to trust. This is the difference between belief and unbelief. It is purely a case of love, in which God proffers his son a free gift, if we accept him, and trust him, we accept God's love, but if we reject him we reject God's love, and our only hope is based on our trying. I shall never be satisfied until there is a public organization that stands for trusting against trying. J. C. GOVE.

Quaint Features of Life.

In those lands where horses are the food of men, all manner of flesh goes the way of the sausage machine. Recently there had to be slaughtered at Ghent an elephant well known in Belgium by the name of Jack, the last inhabitant of the zoological garden, and his flesh, which is stated to have weighed 3,800 pounds, or nearly two tons, all went to the sausage makers.

Daniel G. Burr, aged 84, a survivor of company H. Fourth regiment, recruited at Paris, Ill., June 4, 1846, for the war with Mexico, has held a reunion by himself in the fair grounds at Paris. As he had done annually for forty years, he called the roll of his company from the original roll he had written with a quill pen and of which he had custody as orderly sergeant of the company. He spent the day in meditation, eating his picnic dinner alone.

In certain parts of the Himalaya Mountains the native women have a singular way of putting their children to sleep in the middle of the day. The child is put near a stream of water and by means of a palm leaf, or a tin scoop the water is deflected so as to run over the back of the child's head. The water pouring on the child's head apparently sends it to sleep and keeps it so, while the mother proceeds with her work in the fields. No one seems ever to fear that the baby may be drowned.

Governor Warfield, of Maryland, who urges girl graduates not to wed early, and says he shall not allow his daughters to be married before they are 28, is taking great chances of getting his name into the papers as father of one of a pair of elopers. His address was of the nature of a "dare" to his daughters.

In a murder trial in Lancaster, Mo., last week State Attorney Smoot asked a woman witness some question about her domestic affairs. The witness resented the asking of such a question, saying, "I reckon a woman has a right to boss her own house." Mr. Smoot asked what she meant by that, whereupon Judge Shelton interposed: "The remark made by the witness is perfectly clear, and I am confident the jury understands what she means. They are all married men."

A telegraphic wire chief was the victim not long ago of one of the funniest "bulls" that ever agitated his division. He had sent his lineman out to trace a break in a wire near New York and repair it. Presently a report came to him from the flats of Jersey: "Patched 45 East with 10 West—tell Pat O'Reilly." "Patched means 'spliced,'" but who was Pat O'Reilly, and why was it any business of his? No O'Reilly of that name was known to the service. Investigation followed mystery, and "tell Pat O'Reilly" proved to be only "temporarily."

"Persons walked about Seaside, L. I., during the last few days have stopped and looked with amazement on two children whose combined weight is nearly 350 pounds. The children have pretty faces and are the picture of health. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Louis Eggert residents of Newark, N. J., where the children were born. Harry is not quite 6 years old, but tips the scales at 215 pounds, while his sister Minnie, who is but 2½ years old, balances the scales at 120 pounds. Harry and Minnie are possessed of enormous appetites. Four pounds of steak for Harry is but a normal meal, and Minnie thinks nothing of eating a dozen or more eggs at a sitting. Noted specialists and physicians have examined the children and have wondered at their remarkable development. Every bit of clothing they wear must be made to order, and when they first arrived at the beach their beds were broken down under their weight.

More Survivors.

LONDON, July 5, 5:35 A. M.—Of 774 souls on the Danish steamer Norge, 128, including Captain Gundel, are known to have been saved up to this hour. One of the children died in a lifeboat which brought others to safety. For the missing 646 persons small hope is entertained.

In addition to the 26 persons who landed at Grimshy, 102 survivors were landed at Stornoway. They were all in a pitiable condition. Many were taken to a hospital and most of them had to be carried ashore.

Among those on board the Energie was Captain Gundel, of the Norge.

Night Was Her Terror.

"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Chas. Applegate of Alexandria, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that it I walked a block I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but, when all other medicines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained 58 pounds." H. W. Scott, president of the Lewis and Clark Centennial Exposition Company, at the annual meeting of the stockholders of the corporation, declined reelection as a member of the board of directors, and will consequently be succeeded by another as president of the Exposition Company at the next meeting of the board of directors.

Standing with his left hand in his trousers pocket, Frank Guglielmo, on Thursday afternoon stood with downcast eyes and heard the verdict of the jury, which charged him with murder in the first degree. Guglielmo shot to death Fred Guarascia, a 16-year-old Italian girl, on the afternoon of June 14, in Portland. He was arrested within a couple of hours after the commission of the awful crime and in less than three weeks has been tried and convicted, making his case the most speedy criminal trial ever held in Multnomah county.
