George Tone, who had more tangle foot aboard than was good for him, had an idea that he could wipe the earth as a crackerjack pugilist, so jumped upon a man by the name of Nick Lund, a young man recently from Sweden and who could not speak the English language. As the Swedes rightly thought that their countryman had been abused, a complaint was sworn out against Tone on a charge of assault and battery. Died, suddenly, from heart failure, at Oakland, Cal., on the 30th July, Harry A. Butler, aged 37 years. Deceased was the son of the late W. H. H. Butler and Mrs. A. Nichols, of this county. He was raised in Oregon, but went to California, where he became master mechanic in the wire works of the Southern Pacific shops at Oakland. He leaves a wife and two children, five sisters and a mother to mourn his death. All who knew him speak highly of him, especially among his associates in the workshops, who regret his death, which was a great surprise to them.

Ross left this city a few weeks ago and went to the Portland sanitarium, he being quite sick, and has just returned from there improved in health. Those who know Ross think their must be some mistake and that he will be able to clear himself. He came in on the steamer Sue H. Elmore and was on his way home to Nehalem. When searched all the money that was found on him was $20. The sheriff is holding Ross, and a deputy sheriff left Portland this morning to take him back to that city.

"Over the Fence and Out."

In Justice Alley's court on Tuesday, the case against Ben Turner, one of the directors of the Carnahan school, had a jury trial on causing an obstruction. The complaint was filed by Road Supervisor Bell Johnson, at the instigation of County Judge Conder, who had ordered the road supervisor to grade and gravel the road opposite the school house. To do this, the road supervisor had to pull down the fence opposite the school house so as to make the road straight. After doing this the directors ordered the fence put up again, which was done, upon what the directors thought was the line. This was the bone of contention, and the jury found Turner guilty, and this morning Justice Alley imposed a fine of $25. An appeal was filed by T. B. Handley, Handley & Thayer represented the district, Deputy Prosecuting Attorney W. H. Cooper the state and Eddy & Botts the county. The verdict of the jury is a victory for the county, but from present indications it does not appear that the matter will end here.

H. B. Johnson, plaintiff, vs. School District No. 12, including John N. Simmons, B. W. Turner and Ed Blum, directors, and Elmer Hall, clerk, defendants, is a suit filed in the circuit court restraining the directors from erecting a fence in the public road. This case grew out of the trouble in the road supervisor improving the road opposite the school house.

School District, No. 12, plaintiff, vs. H. B. Johnson, defendant, was another suit filed in the circuit court, and the complaint alleges that defendant on the 10th August wrongfully and by force of arms entered upon lands belonging to the district and broke down and destroyed the fence thereon and dug up and removed the soil thereof, and the district claims damages in the sum of $150.00. Handley & Thayer are attorneys for the district.

A Real Estate Snap.

On account of bad health, I offer to sell my place, which is situated one mile east of Pleasant Valley Cheese Factory, where there is school and church. The place comprises 480 acres, and includes what is known as the Munson's Falls, which can be converted into a water power station, with house and barn, and only three-quarter of a mile from county road. Has more than 70 acres of pasture and about 10 acres of meadow, and can be converted into a fine dairy ranch. Kept over 40 head of cattle on the place with plenty of pasture to spare. 10 Fine heifers, which will come in next spring, 15 good steers, 24 tons of good hay, and the tools and the household furniture to go with the place. The cedar and other timber and chitten bark on the place will more than pay for it, and is a fine location for a shingle mill and will make a good dairy ranch. Will sell the whole or part of the same at low price and on easy terms. This is a snap seldom met with. Do not miss it for it is only nine miles south of Tillamook City. For further information apply to the owner, B. Indorf, on the place; or to F. R. Beals, real estate agent at Tillamook City.

The Interior Department, acting on the recommendation of the Bureau of Forestry and the General Land Office formally authorized the restoration to entry of 319,500 acres of agricultural and grazing land heretofore included in the Blue Mountain Forest Reserve with drawal, and 17,000 acres of similar land included in the Wallowa withdrawal, both in Eastern Oregon. These lands should be thrown open to entry not later than Thursday of this week. It came to light that the release from withdrawal of these large tracts of land was due to personal interest taken in the matter by President Roosevelt. Governor Chamberlain's letter complaining that a considerable area of agricultural and grazing land was being unjustifiably tied up in temporary withdrawals was sent direct to the President, who turned it over to the General Land Office with instructions to restore to entry any lands in those two withdrawals not absolutely needed for permanent forest reserves, and suggesting that if all the necessary data were available, these reserves should be created without delay.

Editorial Snap Shots.

The next time that the photographer takes a buggy ride we would advise him to take a driver.

The HEADLIGHT is reliably informed that Mr. A. B. Hammond is not contemplating the extension of the railroad from Seaside into Tillamook county at the present time.

We are informed that particulars will soon leak out, giving particulars of a forgery in the transfer of some land, and as we are assured that this is a fact, it is to be expected that it will cause somewhat of a sensation.

That little strip of land opposite the school house in district No. 12 is going to be the most expensive bits of property in that neighborhood if the present lick of lawing over it continues. The question now arises: Who is going to foot the bills?

The trouble with the school directors in district No. 12 and the county over the line in front of the school house took another turn on Wednesday when Ed. Blum resigned as one of the directors and Superintendent Wiley decided that the directors could not use the school funds to pay for the law suits the district is now up against.

M. Markenson makes the statement in a letter published in this issue that there are men in the East who have money to invest in building railroads to places like Tillamook. It is strange that Wm. Reid and the promoters of the Portland, Nehalem & Tillamook Railroad never ran across those "money men," for that was what they were after.

We would like to say one word about the trouble between the school district at Carnahan and the county officials over the proper location of the fence and the road in front of the school house. Going to law over a matter like that is poor business and unsatisfactory. We would suggest in future that trouble of that description be left to disinterested persons to decide. It may not be too late to follow the Headlight's suggestion right now, for there is no good ground for fooling away time and money over such a trivial affair.

Tillamook county has a good crop of hay, of good quality, and all nicely harvested, with the prospects that some of the dairymen will have hay to burn next spring if the winter remains mild as in previous years. Old Bossy can chew cud contentedly, for the feed question is settled by every dairymen in the county raising enough hay on their own farms to feed their dairy farms until the spring and without buying mill feed. What makes dairying pay in Tillamook is the feed: Plenty of green pasture nearly the whole year, plenty of hay, with no crop failures to trouble the dairymen, for that is a thing unknown in Tillamook.

One of the greatest drawbacks to Tillamook City is that some people cannot rise above their personal animosities, hence the lack of harmony and a pull altogether for the interest and progress.

W. H. COOPER.

of the city with a common purpose in view. If it were possible for us to do so we would wipe the slate of all past dissension; but, alas, we do not think this can be done, for apart from politics, there is the question of dragging the moral standing of the community down to that of the gambler and those who openly violate the law. As one person who has interests in this city remarked, it is not a question of a fight between the church people and the saloon, but a question of the survival of the fittest for or against the enforcement of the law.
