

WOMEN AND GAMBLING.

Petition of Co-operation and Encouragement for Mrs. Walter Wood.

We have received the following petition from a number of women at Bay City, with a request that it be published in the Headlight. The petition speaks for itself, and it goes to show that there is a strong sentiment all over Tillamook county on account of the bad effects of gambling. Now that the women of the county are bestirring themselves in behalf of their homes and families, it places public officials who fail to do their duty in a position which does not reflect to their credit nor to their moral standing in the community. The Headlight makes this assertion that Tillamook's public officers are moral cowards and pander to the saloon and gambling element.

Mrs. Walter Wood, Tillamook, Ore.

DEAR FRIEND,—We, the undersigned, take this method of extending to you our love and sympathy, and letting you know we wish you God's speed, in your efforts against gambling in Tillamook, and desire you to feel we are all your friends, and will gladly aid you in any way we possibly can. Also, we would let you know that, if possible, we will attend Court the day the case comes off to show by our presence the respect we have for you and that we heartily cooperate with you. And may God bless your efforts.

For the information of the public, the above petition has reference to the cases where Mrs. Wood swore out complaints against C. E. Hadley, W. Stephens, T. B. Handley, jr., and Howard Edmunds for gambling and permitting the same. The reason that Mrs. Wood took the initiative was because her husband had lost, it is reported, over $2,000 in the gambling joints of Tillamook City, and the result of which she saw poverty and want staring in the face and in that of her children.

Some Facts for the Herald.

TO THE EDITOR TILLAMOOK HEADLIGHT. MR. EDITOR,—Will you please print the following extract, it's from the Tillamook Herald: "It wouldn't surprise us one bit to see Tillamook a 'dry town' in the near future, and if it was put to vote today it would carry by a big majority; yet from a business stand point we hope it may never be."

Please publish a few items to show how desirable it would be to some others for Tillamook to be a dry town, and the state and the nation to be "dry" also.

"The liquor traffic, as a business, gives us 50,000 tramps, 150,000 insane people, 200,000 criminals and 200,000 drunkards. It costs more than three times as much as meat, five times as much as shoes, seven times as much as tea and coffee, ten times as much as our public schools, and fifty times as much as preaching the go-pel. And with all its cost there is not a cent worth of good in it all! Our drink bill costs more each year than the aggregate interest and non-interest bearing public debt bonds, or the aggregate capital of the national banks of the United States up to within a few years, or the dutiable merchandise imported into the country, or three times as much as it takes to run our government, or ten times as much as the pensions paid to soldiers and their families, or nine times as much as the total annual loss by fire, or more than the net earnings of all the railroads of the United States. The liquor traffic causes a loss in productive power of from eight to thirty per cent. At eight per cent the loss is over $500,000,000. It costs more than $7,000,000 to care for the inmates of our almshouses. Seventy-five per cent are there directly or indirectly through strong drink."

Comment here is unnecessary, only just to ask the voter, who is the better Christian, or the better patriot, he who votes for the liquor traffic or he who votes against it?

AGAINST THE TRAFFIC.

[We declined publishing the above as it was a criticism of an editorial in the Herald, but since the editor of the paper refused to publish it, we are at liberty to do so, for the columns of the Headlight are "Wide Open" to the public to express their sentiments on any subject of public policy.—Ed]

FARMERS AND LOCAL OPTION

A Conversation Overheard Between two Citizens of Tillamook.

[TO THE EDITOR TILLAMOOK HEADLIGHT.]

"Well, A., how are things on the ranch? How are the cows doing?"

"Well, the cows have not done as well this year as last; but that's not their fault. This, you know, has been an unusually dry year and we have not had the grass."

"Now, A., you're speaking of a dry year makes me think of something. How are you going to vote on the wet and dry question this election? Don't you think a man has a perfect right to go in and get a glass of beer when he comes to town if he wants to?"

"Well, yes, I do. You know I'm a German, I have been raised on beer and have drunk it all my life, and don't think there is any harm in an occasional glass. But I'll tell you, B., what I've made up my mind to do. Now I like a glass of beer, or two or three of them for that matter, as well as any man that ever lived, but let me tell you, I'm a rancher. I live out here a few miles from town. I have a boy just getting to be a man. Now I don't object to his taking a glass of beer, but I do object to his going into them saloons and getting drunk on rot gut whiskey and then getting robbed at the gambling table in the bargain. And another thing, I have 65 cows that must be milked night and morning. I hire some young fellow and pay him good wages. He works along all right for a while, but on Sunday he came down to town. All the back door of the saloons are open on Sundays, and he goes on a big drunk and don't come home, makes everything an hour and a half late; and that's not the first time that's happened. If Lamar would keep nothing but beer and the others would do the same, and not keep gambling dens I wouldn't object, but if my boys have got to be made drunk every time they come to town, and every young man robbed of his money by these gamblers, I have made up my mind that I can do without my beer and will vote against the saloons."

"Yes, but look here, A., that's voting the prohibi. ticket; you're not a prohibi."

"No, I'm not a prohibi. Never voted it in my life, and don't expect to vote it now, but this is not a political affair at all. Politics has nothing to do with it."

"Yes, but don't you know you are killing the town? I tell you, A., if you shut up the saloons, grass will grow in your streets, and another thing, prohibition don't prohibit. Look at Forest Grove, there ain't a town in Oregon of its size where more whiskey is sold than in the Grove."

"Well, then, the town had better be killed and there never was a better time to do it than right now. Yes, if we can't have a town without rot-gut whiskey and gambling dens, it better die, and the sooner the better. As for the grass in the streets, let it grow, and we will make cow pastures out of it. Butter and cheese, or buttermilk, why they will not make anyone drunk or cause any one to loose their money. As to prohibition not prohibiting, and as to Forest Grove people drinking more whiskey than any town of its size in the state, I can't say, but there's one thing that strikes me, and that is, if that's true, then why in the name of common sense do you fellows make such a howl? If that's going to increase the sale of whiskey, why don't you vote for local option too?"

"But let me tell you, B., that what you say about killing the town is all bosh. Why aint all the other towns in Oregon and California, where they have no saloons, dead? They are all more lively than Tillamook. You speak of Forest Grove. Why don't it die? Why don't the grass grow on its streets? Why, during this last summer there was built in Forest Grove more than 100 new houses. How many houses have been built in Tillamook that had, until recently, four saloons? Do you know? Well, just two small cottages? No, B., your argument won't hold water, or beer either, if shutting up whiskey shops and gambling joints kills a town, then I'm going to vote to kill it; kill it like Forest Grove or Ashland has been killed, or like Pasadena, Cal., has been killed. Kill it and start a building boom."

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Autumn.

Autumn goes loitering through the land A torch of fire within her hand, Soft sleeps the bloomy haze that broods O'er distant hills, and mellowing woods; Rustle the cornfield far and near, And nuts are ripe, and pastures sere, And lonely colors haunt the breeze, Borne o'er the sea and through the trees. Belated beauty lingering still So near the edge of winter's chill, The deadly daggers of the cold Approach thee and the year grows old.

Denies the Story of Father Schell.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—Archbishop Ryan of this city, has taken occasion to correct the published statement made by Rev. Father Schell, in which Mother Catherine Drexel, foundress of the Order for the Indians and Colored People, is misquoted.

Father Schell, who was in charge of the Catholic mission at the Winnebago reservation, Nebraska, but was recalled by the Bishop of Omaha, preferred charges against Indian Commissioner Jones in connection with the administration of that reservation. Archbishop Ryan, who is chief advocate of Mother Catherine, says Father Schell never represented her, nor was he authorized to make any statement or investigation on her behalf. She is at present in Arizona, and has written to Commissioner Jones to this effect.
