

TILLAMOOK JOTTINGS.

H. T. Botts, for abstracts.
Buy your clothing at Todd's.
A fine line of Trunks at Todd's.
Gordon Hats-the best made-Todd's.
Suit cases from $1.50 to $10.00 at Todd's.
C. H. Wheeler was in the city on Thursday.
Mayfield Woolen Mill, All wool Clo...
ing at Todd's.
Butterick patterns for December at Mrs. Sturgeon's.
Have you tried Leach's pure lard? Do so. It is genuine.
A new post office has been established at Marx in the county.
The Deliaator is advanced to 15c, a copy.-Morton & Trombley.
All pattern hats and street hats at reduced prices at Mrs. Sturgeon's.
Mrs. M. W. Harrison returned to the city on Saturday from Portland.
Keeper H. D. Mahler and wife were in from Cape Meares on Saturday.
Mrs. Kirk, of Beaver, is stopping with friends in this city for a few days.
H. R. Wiggins and wife, of Washington, D.C., were in the city on Thursday.
Will Smith came in from Sheridan on Sunday, to return there in a few days.
Fur lard, guaranteed, at Leach's Meat Market. 5lb can, 75c. 10lb., $1.35.
Chas. Rav, W. A. Gage and A. Arstall were in the city from Cloverdale on Tuesday.
L. W. Helfer and W. I. Helfer, of Mansfield, Ohio, were in the city on Thursday.
The band boys will give a musical concert on Saturday, Dec. 17th, at the opera house.
We are a little tardy in going to press on account of so much job work that we had to turn out.
Henry Crenshaw and wife and R. Robinson and wife left on Friday, going out by way of Sheridan.
It will be a satisfaction to know what the proposed new water system from Killam Creek will cost.
Seth F. Moon has filed suit in the county court against R. M. Dingess for $125 on a promissory note.
The steamer Sue H. Elmore, which was bar bound at Astoria for several days, came in on Thursday.
Now is your time to buy all kinds of second hand goods. Good as new at about half price.-W. E. Page.
Mrs. J. H. Oliver, who has been quite sick for several weeks, will be taken to the hospital in Portland to undergo an operation.
The committee of the county anti-saloon league was called together on Thursday, but we do not know for what purpose.
County Supt. W. W. Wiley left on Tuesday to attend teachers' institutes at Dallas and McMinnville, and he will be away about two weeks.
When you want pure lard go to Leach's Meat Market. The genuine article 5lbs., 75c. 10 lbs., $1.35. Prime meat can always be obtained at Leach's.
Studebaker Brothers Company Northwest, a corporation, has filed a suit in the county court against Vincenz Jacob for $120.25 on a promissory note.
J. H. Oliver has bought out Miss Lotie Freeman's confectionery store, and this makes the fifth doubling up of business houses in Tillamook City recently.
Tillamook Lumber Company, will sell Rough Fir Lumber sawed to order for $7.00 per thousand in one thousand lots and up. Spruce at $6.00 at the same rate.
We are informed there will be a grand jury at the term of the circuit court next week to inquire into the violation of the state gambling and saloon laws in Tillamook City.
James Lommer, Fred Miller, G. M. Cobb, Bayard McKimins, Fred Zaddach, C. V. Preston and Geo. Loerpebel were the Nehalemites who were in the city on Wednesday.
Sewing machines for everybody. I have a fine lot of second hand machines, all in first class order, which I will sell cheap for cash, or will trade for other property.-W. E. Page.
I have another job lot of new iron bedsteads which I bought at a bankrupt sale in Portland, which I am selling below wholesale prices. Call and see my goods before buying.-W. E. Page.
Common talk on the streets is that Page is the only man that is making money, but that is a mistake. For the hundreds of people that buy at my store are getting rich on everything they buy.-W. E. Page.
Articles, incorporating the R. Robinson Cheese Company, were filed with the county clerk on Saturday, with the capital stock placed at $10,000, with J. R. Harter, R. Robinson and C. W. Talmage as incorporators.
Mr. J. C. Bewley, who is a full fledged prohibitionist, paraded the streets of Tillamook City on Wednesday on horse back with the Stars and Stripes flying in a new broom tied to the horse's tail and dragging in the road.
Engineer Chase is in the city for the purpose of making a survey and plans for the new water system from Killam creek. He will commence work as soon as his instruments arrive on the boat

Editorial Snap Shots.

Dry!
The wettest town in Oregon-and it goes dry.
There is little or no change in public sentiment from last June when the local option law was passed.
The next thing to do is to elect a mayor, city marshal and councilmen who will enforce the law.
Let's hope that Page won't go advertising second hand whiskey for sale before the "dry" season sets in.
What's the matter with Tillamook precinct, anyway, that was to give 70 majority against prohibition?
It is plain that the people of Tillamook county are law abiding citizens and they want the officials to enforce the law.
It is perfectly true that Oregon has enough laws already and requires but one more-that to have the laws enforced.
It is a common expression: "You can't stop gambling." Has Sheriff Woolfe ever tried to stop it and make the saloons comply with the law?
If the betting men had taken the trouble to have got on the inside track of public opinion they could have made a big wad on Tillamook precinct voting "dry."
Rollie talked a blue streak before election that he would sell out and leave the country if local option carried. We wonder how soon before he leave. Good by, Rollie.
To Frank C. Baker, chairman of the republican state committee, belongs the credit of Oregon giving a rousing majority for Roosevelt. He was the right man in the right place.
Give the local option law a fair trial. It became a law by the direct vote of the people and again on Tuesday a large majority of the people voted to have the provisions in that law carried out. Let this be done.
Don't get mad with the Headlight man because prohibition carried. Blame the fellows who run the gambling and the officials who shirked doing their duty by not putting a stop to it. That is where the blame should fall.
Gee, we thought, sure, that the local option question would give some of the saloon advocates the "Jimjams." Probably they had snakes in their boots or saw a multiplication of stars when the returns began to come in.
Said one of the business men Wednesday: "I have never seen the business streets of Tillamook City in such bad condition as they are now at this season of the year. What will they be like in a few months?" Ask the city council, please.
In regard to the presidential election, it is a regular republican land slide, and if the democrats keep on deserting their party at the rate they have done in this election there won't be a corporal's guard left amongst the unterrified in Tillamook.
It may be a little difficult for the next city council to get along as well financially as previous city councils, especially as it will have to bear some indebtedness, conditions will soon right themselves with a council that will have to economize.
The saloon people have only themselves to thank that local option carried, for by violating the licensing and gambling laws, they created a sentiment against their own businesses. But we do not blame the saloon keepers as much as we do the county and city officials.
Roosevelt has been elected. This is as it should be, for it would have brought about a most serious state of affairs in the United States if Parker had been elected. Now everything will go along as prosperous as usual, with the people having implicit confidence in President Roosevelt and the republican administration.
I'm not opposed to saloons; but I am to a robber's nest and to that class of people running city and county affairs," is an expression we heard made that comes as near telling the whole truth as anything we have heard said, now that people are a little more free in expressing themselves than they did before election.
Said a man who is closely connected with one of the saloons in Tillamook City: "It isn't the church people who are fighting us so badly as it is the men who come into the saloons and drink." That is true. And we may add to this that quite a number of men who were treated to whiskey previous to the election voted for prohibition.
The voters in Tillamook evidently knew what they were voting for when they voted for prohibition on Tuesday. It was a clean cut question to be decided and the voters voted intelligently, and no one can ever persuade the Headlight man but what the people understood it that they were voting for county probi

Work on the school grounds is progressing nicely.

Miss Helen Vest arrived home from Seaside on Sunday evening.
Mr. Davidson and family returned from the valley last week.
Mrs. Kirk visited Mrs. Anderson last Wednesday.
Mrs. Minnie Coulson visited Mrs. Gilbert on Sunday.

NEHALEM.

The Gerald C is bar bound in Nehalem.
T. V. Larsen and Miss Moe were united in marriage on November 1st, at Portland. T. V. is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Larsen, of this place.
The heavy wind and rain Sunday caused lots of wild geese to light and a general slaughter was the result. Fred Miller bagged 18, being the most killed by one person.
Hugh Rittenhouse and Miss Elvie Eason were united in marriage Wednesday. Rev. W. J. Roehmer officiating.

BEAUTIFUL TROPICAL FISHES.

Many Fine Specimens Gathered in the Bermudas for the Aquariums of All Lands.
The collection of tropical fishes for various aquariums throughout the world, and especially for the American aquariums, is now a recognized industry in the Bermudas, says the Philadelphia Press.
It is carried on at all seasons, though for obvious reasons the fish are shipped north only in the summer months. As there are more than 150 varieties of fish in Bermudan waters, and every variety is found in abundance, it is not a difficult problem to secure good specimens. Only a few varieties reach this country, for the reason that tropical fish, as a rule, are unable to stand the trials of transportation. The ones on exhibition are the finest that can be caught.
The native fishermen go far and wide in search of specimens, for the aquarium will pay only for the best.
Possibly the most voracious fish they have to deal with are the groupers and morays. The groupers have peculiar habits. During the month of June, which is their spawning or "snapping" season, they gather at two spots on the south coast, known as "grasper grounds," and rarely are caught elsewhere.
Not many tropical fish are as ferocious as the moray, but most of the larger varieties are truly sporting fish.

WORKING IN THE DARK.

Difficulties under which coal mining operations were carried on before the scientist Davy had invented his safety lamp must have been very great. In many mines the only alternative the medieval miner had to pitch darkness was the phosphorescent gleam from a dried fish. The miner's implement, originally of stone or hard oak, gradually improved, but he was forced to work in almost complete darkness until Sir Humphrey Davy by his remarkable invention enabled him to light his way through the tunnels he had excavated with comparative safety, says a mining journal.
Agricola, an author who wrote about the middle of the sixteenth century, has left an elaborate treatise on coal mining as it was practiced during the middle ages. From this we learn that the horsegin, which survives to the present day in some of the mining districts of Great Britain and northern Europe, was the engine chiefly employed both for lifting the coal and for getting rid of the water. This latter object was also sometimes effected by means of pumps turned by windmills or by tunnels driven with great labor to an outlet at a lower level.

AUTOCARS IN ENGLAND.

There is a Strict Enforcement of the Law to Make Owners Regardful of Others.
In one respect, at least, the perception of the automobilists is indirectly serving a useful purpose, reports London Truth. The majority of the victims belong to a class which has hitherto had little sympathy with the discontent of humbler folks at the quality of justices' justice. Now that the wealthy motorist is coming into personal contact with this kind of justice, he is beginning to revise his opinions. He sees that policemen are capable of making grievous mistakes and are deliberate misstatements, and that magistrates often exhibit the grossest incompetence and allow their judgments to be swayed by the most stupid prejudices.
It then occurs to the motorist that poachers and other delinquents may sometimes have equally good cause to complain of police evidence and magisterial bias, and so he comes finally to the conclusion that the administration of the law by the Great Unpaid is after all, not undeserving of the contempt that has so long been poured upon it.
Fest on Butterflies.
Millions of butterflies are eaten every year by the Australian aborigines. The insects congregate in vast quantities on the rocks of the Bugong mountains, and the natives secure them by kindling fires of damp wood, and thus suffocating them. They are gathered in baskets, baked, sifted to remove the wings, and finally pressed into cakes.

Work on the school grounds is progressing nicely.

Miss Helen Vest arrived home from Seaside on Sunday evening.
Mr. Davidson and family returned from the valley last week.
Mrs. Kirk visited Mrs. Anderson last Wednesday.
Mrs. Minnie Coulson visited Mrs. Gilbert on Sunday.

NEHALEM.

The Gerald C is bar bound in Nehalem.
T. V. Larsen and Miss Moe were united in marriage on November 1st, at Portland. T. V. is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Larsen, of this place.
The heavy wind and rain Sunday caused lots of wild geese to light and a general slaughter was the result. Fred Miller bagged 18, being the most killed by one person.
Hugh Rittenhouse and Miss Elvie Eason were united in marriage Wednesday. Rev. W. J. Roehmer officiating.

BEAUTIFUL TROPICAL FISHES.

Many Fine Specimens Gathered in the Bermudas for the Aquariums of All Lands.
The collection of tropical fishes for various aquariums throughout the world, and especially for the American aquariums, is now a recognized industry in the Bermudas, says the Philadelphia Press.
It is carried on at all seasons, though for obvious reasons the fish are shipped north only in the summer months. As there are more than 150 varieties of fish in Bermudan waters, and every variety is found in abundance, it is not a difficult problem to secure good specimens. Only a few varieties reach this country, for the reason that tropical fish, as a rule, are unable to stand the trials of transportation. The ones on exhibition are the finest that can be caught.
The native fishermen go far and wide in search of specimens, for the aquarium will pay only for the best.
Possibly the most voracious fish they have to deal with are the groupers and morays. The groupers have peculiar habits. During the month of June, which is their spawning or "snapping" season, they gather at two spots on the south coast, known as "grasper grounds," and rarely are caught elsewhere.
Not many tropical fish are as ferocious as the moray, but most of the larger varieties are truly sporting fish.

WORKING IN THE DARK.

Difficulties under which coal mining operations were carried on before the scientist Davy had invented his safety lamp must have been very great. In many mines the only alternative the medieval miner had to pitch darkness was the phosphorescent gleam from a dried fish. The miner's implement, originally of stone or hard oak, gradually improved, but he was forced to work in almost complete darkness until Sir Humphrey Davy by his remarkable invention enabled him to light his way through the tunnels he had excavated with comparative safety, says a mining journal.
Agricola, an author who wrote about the middle of the sixteenth century, has left an elaborate treatise on coal mining as it was practiced during the middle ages. From this we learn that the horsegin, which survives to the present day in some of the mining districts of Great Britain and northern Europe, was the engine chiefly employed both for lifting the coal and for getting rid of the water. This latter object was also sometimes effected by means of pumps turned by windmills or by tunnels driven with great labor to an outlet at a lower level.

AUTOCARS IN ENGLAND.

There is a Strict Enforcement of the Law to Make Owners Regardful of Others.
In one respect, at least, the perception of the automobilists is indirectly serving a useful purpose, reports London Truth. The majority of the victims belong to a class which has hitherto had little sympathy with the discontent of humbler folks at the quality of justices' justice. Now that the wealthy motorist is coming into personal contact with this kind of justice, he is beginning to revise his opinions. He sees that policemen are capable of making grievous mistakes and are deliberate misstatements, and that magistrates often exhibit the grossest incompetence and allow their judgments to be swayed by the most stupid prejudices.
It then occurs to the motorist that poachers and other delinquents may sometimes have equally good cause to complain of police evidence and magisterial bias, and so he comes finally to the conclusion that the administration of the law by the Great Unpaid is after all, not undeserving of the contempt that has so long been poured upon it.
Fest on Butterflies.
Millions of butterflies are eaten every year by the Australian aborigines. The insects congregate in vast quantities on the rocks of the Bugong mountains, and the natives secure them by kindling fires of damp wood, and thus suffocating them. They are gathered in baskets, baked, sifted to remove the wings, and finally pressed into cakes.

Work on the school grounds is progressing nicely.

Miss Helen Vest arrived home from Seaside on Sunday evening.
Mr. Davidson and family returned from the valley last week.
Mrs. Kirk visited Mrs. Anderson last Wednesday.
Mrs. Minnie Coulson visited Mrs. Gilbert on Sunday.

NEHALEM.

The Gerald C is bar bound in Nehalem.
T. V. Larsen and Miss Moe were united in marriage on November 1st, at Portland. T. V. is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Larsen, of this place.
The heavy wind and rain Sunday caused lots of wild geese to light and a general slaughter was the result. Fred Miller bagged 18, being the most killed by one person.
Hugh Rittenhouse and Miss Elvie Eason were united in marriage Wednesday. Rev. W. J. Roehmer officiating.

BEAUTIFUL TROPICAL FISHES.

Many Fine Specimens Gathered in the Bermudas for the Aquariums of All Lands.
The collection of tropical fishes for various aquariums throughout the world, and especially for the American aquariums, is now a recognized industry in the Bermudas, says the Philadelphia Press.
It is carried on at all seasons, though for obvious reasons the fish are shipped north only in the summer months. As there are more than 150 varieties of fish in Bermudan waters, and every variety is found in abundance, it is not a difficult problem to secure good specimens. Only a few varieties reach this country, for the reason that tropical fish, as a rule, are unable to stand the trials of transportation. The ones on exhibition are the finest that can be caught.
The native fishermen go far and wide in search of specimens, for the aquarium will pay only for the best.
Possibly the most voracious fish they have to deal with are the groupers and morays. The groupers have peculiar habits. During the month of June, which is their spawning or "snapping" season, they gather at two spots on the south coast, known as "grasper grounds," and rarely are caught elsewhere.
Not many tropical fish are as ferocious as the moray, but most of the larger varieties are truly sporting fish.

WORKING IN THE DARK.

Difficulties under which coal mining operations were carried on before the scientist Davy had invented his safety lamp must have been very great. In many mines the only alternative the medieval miner had to pitch darkness was the phosphorescent gleam from a dried fish. The miner's implement, originally of stone or hard oak, gradually improved, but he was forced to work in almost complete darkness until Sir Humphrey Davy by his remarkable invention enabled him to light his way through the tunnels he had excavated with comparative safety, says a mining journal.
Agricola, an author who wrote about the middle of the sixteenth century, has left an elaborate treatise on coal mining as it was practiced during the middle ages. From this we learn that the horsegin, which survives to the present day in some of the mining districts of Great Britain and northern Europe, was the engine chiefly employed both for lifting the coal and for getting rid of the water. This latter object was also sometimes effected by means of pumps turned by windmills or by tunnels driven with great labor to an outlet at a lower level.

AUTOCARS IN ENGLAND.

There is a Strict Enforcement of the Law to Make Owners Regardful of Others.
In one respect, at least, the perception of the automobilists is indirectly serving a useful purpose, reports London Truth. The majority of the victims belong to a class which has hitherto had little sympathy with the discontent of humbler folks at the quality of justices' justice. Now that the wealthy motorist is coming into personal contact with this kind of justice, he is beginning to revise his opinions. He sees that policemen are capable of making grievous mistakes and are deliberate misstatements, and that magistrates often exhibit the grossest incompetence and allow their judgments to be swayed by the most stupid prejudices.
It then occurs to the motorist that poachers and other delinquents may sometimes have equally good cause to complain of police evidence and magisterial bias, and so he comes finally to the conclusion that the administration of the law by the Great Unpaid is after all, not undeserving of the contempt that has so long been poured upon it.
Fest on Butterflies.
Millions of butterflies are eaten every year by the Australian aborigines. The insects congregate in vast quantities on the rocks of the Bugong mountains, and the natives secure them by kindling fires of damp wood, and thus suffocating them. They are gathered in baskets, baked, sifted to remove the wings, and finally pressed into cakes.

BEAVER.

As last week's items were not printed, through some cause or other, we will call this No. 2. We hope this week will close the political campaign, so that patrons, especially ladies, will not have to go around the back or else wipe the gentleman's feet to get into the store or post office, while the good men of Beaver loaf on dry goods boxes or occupy the arm chairs inside. [We beg our correspondent's pardon. The items were crowded out on account of campaign matter. The editor is sorry that ladies cannot vote. They are certainly entitled to, but our political system is so arranged that a drunken sot, a dead beat, etc., is a fit and proper person to be a voter, while the women, who hold the responsible position in the country of raising the next generation, are deprived of the franchise.-Ed.]
Ralph Bunn, the cheese maker, took his last load of cheese for the season to town on Saturday. His sister Lena accompanied him, and she will remain in Tillamook City for the present.
Mrs. M. W. Harrison passed through Beaver a few days ago on her way home from Portland. She reports bad roads by way of Sheridan, but live others she was glad to return to Tillamook.

BEAVER.

As last week's items were not printed, through some cause or other, we will call this No. 2. We hope this week will close the political campaign, so that patrons, especially ladies, will not have to go around the back or else wipe the gentleman's feet to get into the store or post office, while the good men of Beaver loaf on dry goods boxes or occupy the arm chairs inside. [We beg our correspondent's pardon. The items were crowded out on account of campaign matter. The editor is sorry that ladies cannot vote. They are certainly entitled to, but our political system is so arranged that a drunken sot, a dead beat, etc., is a fit and proper person to be a voter, while the women, who hold the responsible position in the country of raising the next generation, are deprived of the franchise.-Ed.]
Ralph Bunn, the cheese maker, took his last load of cheese for the season to town on Saturday. His sister Lena accompanied him, and she will remain in Tillamook City for the present.
Mrs. M. W. Harrison passed through Beaver a few days ago on her way home from Portland. She reports bad roads by way of Sheridan, but live others she was glad to return to Tillamook.

BEAVER.

As last week's items were not printed, through some cause or other, we will call this No. 2. We hope this week will close the political campaign, so that patrons, especially ladies, will not have to go around the back or else wipe the gentleman's feet to get into the store or post office, while the good men of Beaver loaf on dry goods boxes or occupy the arm chairs inside. [We beg our correspondent's pardon. The items were crowded out on account of campaign matter. The editor is sorry that ladies cannot vote. They are certainly entitled to, but our political system is so arranged that a drunken sot, a dead beat, etc., is a fit and proper person to be a voter, while the women, who hold the responsible position in the country of raising the next generation, are deprived of the franchise.-Ed.]
Ralph Bunn, the cheese maker, took his last load of cheese for the season to town on Saturday. His sister Lena accompanied him, and she will remain in Tillamook City for the present.
Mrs. M. W. Harrison passed through Beaver a few days ago on her way home from Portland. She reports bad roads by way of Sheridan, but live others she was glad to return to Tillamook.

BEAVER.

As last week's items were not printed, through some cause or other, we will call this No. 2. We hope this week will close the political campaign, so that patrons, especially ladies, will not have to go around the back or else wipe the gentleman's feet to get into the store or post office, while the good men of Beaver loaf on dry goods boxes or occupy the arm chairs inside. [We beg our correspondent's pardon. The items were crowded out on account of campaign matter. The editor is sorry that ladies cannot vote. They are certainly entitled to, but our political system is so arranged that a drunken sot, a dead beat, etc., is a fit and proper person to be a voter, while the women, who hold the responsible position in the country of raising the next generation, are deprived of the franchise.-Ed.]
Ralph Bunn, the cheese maker, took his last load of cheese for the season to town on Saturday. His sister Lena accompanied him, and she will remain in Tillamook City for the present.
Mrs. M. W. Harrison passed through Beaver a few days ago on her way home from Portland. She reports bad roads by way of Sheridan, but live others she was glad to return to Tillamook.

BEAVER.

As last week's items were not printed, through some cause or other, we will call this No. 2. We hope this week will close the political campaign, so that patrons, especially ladies, will not have to go around the back or else wipe the gentleman's feet to get into the store or post office, while the good men of Beaver loaf on dry goods boxes or occupy the arm chairs inside. [We beg our correspondent's pardon. The items were crowded out on account of campaign matter. The editor is sorry that ladies cannot vote. They are certainly entitled to, but our political system is so arranged that a drunken sot, a dead beat, etc., is a fit and proper person to be a voter, while the women, who hold the responsible position in the country of raising the next generation, are deprived of the franchise.-Ed.]
Ralph Bunn, the cheese maker, took his last load of cheese for the season to town on Saturday. His sister Lena accompanied him, and she will remain in Tillamook City for the present.
Mrs. M. W. Harrison passed through Beaver a few days ago on her way home from Portland. She reports bad roads by way of Sheridan, but live others she was glad to return to Tillamook.