The first "blind pig" was discovered in Tillamook City the other morning, and it was a joke on Butcher Leach. The space between the meat market and the barber shop had been boarded up and hides were put in there. During the night someone tacked up an old government license and wrote under it "Leach's blind pig." That is the first "blind pig" discovered in Tillamook City since the local option law went into effect. *

A number of ladies on Tuesday evening surprised the band boys while they were practising in Todd's hall, and, as is usual on such occasions, the ladies had provided a nice supper for the boys. Next month the band boys will give a minstrel show and farce, and they promise a good evening's entertainment. *

The Oregon Traction Company.

The following item of news regarding the Oregon Traction Company, which has made a proposition to extend its proposed electric line into Tillamook may be of interest, but it goes to show that there is not much likelihood of this county getting a road from that direction for some time to come, if at all; From the Oregonian. *

The proposed Portland Hillsboro electric line is now in a fair way to construction, and it is the desire of those who are back of the deal to have commenced work on the Portland end of the road in a very short time. *

The representatives of the San Francisco capitalists who are behind the road are in the city and made a trip over the lines of the Oregon Water Power & Railway Company. Accompanied by the leaders of the Oregon Traction Company, they will make a trip over the proposed line of the road, and when they returned will have determined definitely just where the line will run. *

The Oregon Traction Company has asked the City Council for a franchise through the streets and it is almost certain that the request will be granted. *

It is estimated that the construction of the line will cost more than $500,000, of which sum all has been provided for by the bonds now issued. Outside of this amount it is understood that the treasury of the Oregon Traction Company now has more than $60,000 ready to be spent upon the line of its equipment and general expenses. *

The application for a franchise is now in the hands of the City Council, and it is not thought that there will be any delay in granting the request of the company. As soon as it is assured to the representatives of the company that the franchise will be granted, work will be begun on the Portland end of the line. The road will first be finished from the First-street station to Willamette Heights in order to relieve the congestion of traffic which will result with the opening of the Exposition. If there is no delay, that much of the road will be completed and ready for operation by June 1. As soon as that stretch of track is in working order the men will be put on the rest of the road and all will be finished as fast as possible, perhaps the whole length of the line to Hillsboro, by the time the winter weather makes the construction work difficult. The next season it is probably that the line will be extended to Forest Grove, though it is not thought any attempt will be made to build that far at an earlier date. *

Mrs. Stillwell Wins the Suit.

In the case of Levi L. Stillwell, plaintiff, vs. Sarah J. Stillwell, defendant, taken under advisement by Judge G. H. Burnett at the last term of the circuit court, a decision has been given in favor of Mrs. Stillwell. The plaintiff sought to obtain possession from the plaintiff, his former wife, what is known as the Keyes place, composed of several acres of land in this city. The judge, in considering the testimony of plaintiff and defendant, the one denying and the other affirming that it was their intention that the property purchased with $480 should be the property of the defendant in fee simple, the presumption attaching to such a transaction between husband and wife to the effect that the property so purchased in the name of the wife is to be deemed an advancement to the wife is sufficient to create a preponderance of evidence in favor of the defendant, so the court decided that the purchase of the Keyes place was at that time intended by the plaintiff to be and was an advancement by the plaintiff to his then wife, nor was there a trust of any kind insuring to the benefit of the plaintiff that arose out of any of the transactions, so the court decreed that plaintiff was not entitled to any relief. The order of the court was that defendant was entitled to have the suit dismissed and neither party should recover costs and disbursements from the other. *

Takes $70,000 to Run the County.

Some people wonder where all the tax money goes and the county still in debt and paying out about $2,000 a year in interest on outstanding county warrants. Let us throw a little light on the subject so that the taxpayers may be better informed where the tax money goes. ### Editorial Snap Shots.

Every indication points in the direction that the cheese market this spring will be satisfactory to those in the dairy business. *

Don't get excited about a railroad tapping Tillamook County before you hear the snort of the iron horse. Then take to the woods. *

Where will most of the money go that heretofore went into the saloon? Into the stores to buy clothing and other things for the home and the family. *

If it is going to cost $500,000 to construct the electric railroad from Portland to Hillsboro, it will cost at least $2,000,000 to extend it from there to Tillamook City. *

Not very many persons believe that Senator Mitchell will be convicted. The government attorneys are so unprofessional in blowing off "hot air" that they are becoming obnoxious. *

Tillamook is one of the unique counties in Oregon. It has closed down all the saloon and offers that as one of the special inducements for home seekers, especially those with families, to locate here. *

The state legislature will, no doubt, pass a law making gambling a felony, but it might order an investigation so as to ascertain who purloined that law which was passed at the last state legislature. *

We all ought to be thankful that we live in Tillamook when we read about the awful blizzards in the East. Tillamook is good enough for us, even if the rain does patter down somewhat heavily at times. *

If Judge Galloway decides against the local option law on account of a few trivial technicalities, the same thing can be used against his own election. What is sauce for the goose ought to be sauce for the gander. *

What a fool proposition it is to advertise for bids for a new water system when the water rights have not been obtained when the intake is to be located, neither the rights of way for the pipe line. *

Tillamook is a good place for home seekers to come to, especially if they are looking for an ideal dairying county and without the demoralizing influence of saloons. Old Bossy is the only thing on tap in Tillamook. *

Rollie said if local option carried he was going to leave the county. As he went outside on Wednesday, is he a man of his word and is making arrangements to do so? Goodby, Rollie, good by, but come back and give us a friendly shake before you pull up stakes. *

At the city election at Forest Grove on Monday, that classic city voted on the saloon question and elected a "wet" mayor and city council. Let's hope it wasn't the newspaper men or that city's "blind pig" we hear so much about that caused Forest Grove to fall from grace. *

Yes, we believe the local option law should be amended—in one particular. The women of Oregon should be granted the franchise and allowed to vote on a law of that description. That is all the fixing the local option law needs, and we hope the state legislature will fix it that, and no other way. *

It is well to look at the facts. There is $1,230 worth of outstanding warrants bearing interest against the city, with between $800 and $900 to be refunded to the ex saloon keepers. Yet some people say the city is in good shape financially. The mayor and new city council won't think so after a time. *

The violation of law on the part of saloon keepers and gamblers have created a deep public sentiment all over Oregon, for the enforcement of the law, so much so that it is an issue, as it is in Tillamook City, between those who want the laws enforced and those who line up with those who want to violate the law. *

"Sammy" has thought it wise to write something about the Headlight man in the Herald, but "Sammy" is such a small fry that we do not think it wise to take much notice of a nice young man who is jumping from one profession to another like a jack in the box, and is master of none. Does anybody need a washer woman? "Sammy" will do. *

It sounds good to hear men say, "I've several dollars left in my pocket, but I'd have blown that in and several dollars more if the saloons had been running. I'm going to take something home to the family." There is nothing greedy about a man like that, but there is when a man blows in several dollars for drink which should be spent upon his family. *

erty will be a drag on the market in consequence for a long time to come. The levy on city property this year is 42 mills. What will it be after the water system is put in and has to be paid for? *

It is about time the city authorities turned their attention to securing better gravel for the streets. The system of putting down poor gravel, only to be turned into muck and mud in the wet season, is exceedingly unsatisfactory and unprofitable when it has to be scraped up and carted away. It will not be long before the gravel that was put on the streets which were improved last fall will be out of sight. *

Here is a serious state of affairs which now confront the people of Oregon. Read what the Oregonian says: "It should be known to the people of Oregon that the great liquor interests of the state is endeavoring to organize the Legislature. Naturally, it doesn't want to be 'hurt.' It has secured the organization of one branch, and is at work on the other. The liquor interest is a great interest, and feels that it is entitled to consideration." *

For all the good it is, the state legislature should repeal the law creating the Port of Tillamook Commission and turn the funds it has on hand over to the city or refund it to the taxpayers. The commission is simply a little hoppy-horse, and has answered its purpose admirably in that respect. Now is a fitting time to give the hoppy-horse a decent burial, for it has done no earthly good and from the looks of things the little lifeless thing never will. Cut it out and substitute it with something with life, energy, and enterprise. *

There wouldn't be much trouble in running city affairs this year if the city had been out of debt when the present city council took office. The city is paying interest on $1,230 outstanding warrants, has between $800 and $900 to refund to the saloon keepers and will have $45,000 bonds to pay interest on the 1st March and six months before the money is required. Now don't squirm, but take the medicine, for that is the financial condition of the city. How do you like it? Now if the city council has to impose an occupation tax it will be on account of the last city council leaving the city in debt, for that indebtedness has to be met. That is where the shoe pinches, and which the citizens will have to go down in their jeans for. The present city council could have got along nicely if it hadn't been for the previous city council leaving the city in a hole. *

Bulldozed! That is the proper term to apply to how the people of Tillamook City have been treated by the bond agitators. Not content with the first vote taken on the bonding question, the agitators immediately bulldozed another election, then they bulldozed the city into taking $45,000 bond, which will compel the people to pay interest on that amount of money before it is required, and the last bulldoze to be worked upon the people and the water commission is advertising for bids before the water rights and rights of way have been obtained. No wonder that the present city council thought it was for the best interest of the city to turn Talmage down when he was recommended for city attorney. The citizens have been bulldozed, and we hope they like it. But what is the next bulldoze to be worked upon the people on account of the unwillingness of a few persons to allow a commission of our best business men to take hold and handle the water question as a business undertaking for the city? *

This is how the Oregonian sizes up the first battle at Salem: "Let us understand exactly what has occurred at Salem. The Portland machine put up Mr. Mills as its candidate for Spenskr and elected him. The Portland machine combined with the state machine to elect Mr. Kuykendall as President of Senate. Violent opposition to this latter project arose, and it all but failed. Great effort has been made to have it appear that while the Portland "ring" was behind Kuykendall, the Mills candidacy stood on its own bottom. Not true. Mr. Mills was brought out by the machine, his campaign was conducted by the machine, and his success is distinctly a machine triumph. Mr. Kuykendall appears to have projected his own candidacy, but the machine fell in. These things are set down, not in malice or in the spirit of complaint, but solely in the interest of truth." *
