FISH LAW IN FORCE.

Oregon Legislative Enactment Carried Emergency Clause

SALEM, Or., Feb. 24 .- The new fishing revising the closed seasons for fishing on the Columbia and many other streams, arried an emergency clause and is now in full force and effect.

So far as the Columbia is concerned, this law was drawn in accordance with the agreement reached by the joint conference committees appointed by the Legislatures of Oregon and Washington. It was because of the agreement between the two states that the emergency clause was attached to the act, but the emergency clause is also effective as to changes in closed seasons on other streams men tioned.

This bill shortens the spring closed season on the Columbia and Willamette 15 days, and it is this change that is of chief importance to the fishing industry. Heretofore the closed season began March 1, but hereafter it will begin Marwh 15. Because the fishing season had been lengthened and the closed season shorted, thus making it more difficult to prevent the extermination of salmon. Governor Chamberlain was strongly inclined to yeto the bill and was only deterred by the fact that this measure had been agreed upon by representatives of the two states.

The changes made in the fishing sea. sons on other steams are amendments to the fishing act of the session of 1903, the principal change being the abrogation of the Sunday closed season. The law which is now in force in this state changes the fishing laws so that the section of the code here mentioned will read as follows :

Tillamook Bay.

Sec. 4065-It shall be unlawful to take or fish for salmon in the tributaries of Fillamook Bay, above tidewater, at any time, by any means whatever, except with hook and line, commonly called angling, or in any of the waters of Tillamook Bay or its tributaries, below the points hereinafter named, between March 20 and July 13 of each year, or between November 20 and December 10 of each year; or in any of the followingnamed streams, being tributaries of Tillamook Bay, except with hook and line, commonly called angling, from March 20 to December 10, above the points hereinafter named, namely :

Saloon Trouble at Forest Grove.

Forest Grove, Or., Feb. 23 .-- Sheriff Connel tonight served papers upon Mayor Johnson, the members of the Council and City Recorder, notifying them that Pacific University has applied for a permanent injunction restraining them from granting any licenses for saloons in Forest Grove.

The injunction is based upon two points. In the first place, the city charter does not give the Council any authority to license the sale of intoxicating liquors. The clause, upon this subject specifies that the Council shall suppress, regulate and prohibit the sale of intoxicating beverages. This clause, the com plaint alleges, does not delegate the right to license a saloon for revenue.

The college alleges further grounds for injunction in the fact that the proposed location of the saloon is but 300 feet from the college campus, and that therefore it would be a legal nuisance.

The case will come before Circuit Judge McBride at the next session of the Circuit Court in Hillsboro. In the mean, time no application will be made for a temporary injunction, but any one taking out a license will do so at his own risk. Pacific University announced that it would fight the saloon question out in the courts, but it was generally thought that the fight would be made on the property forfeiture clause in the city deeds, and the application for an injunction comes as a surprise. The college has taken this action at the instigation of the Law and Order League of Forest Papers have also been served against A. G. Watson, the only applicant for a license, which was to have been granted him at the council meeting.
