Mrs. Abplanalp and her daughter were outside of Cohn's store on Saturday in a buggy, when Bryan Snuffer passed with his Shetland pony, which frightened the horse in the buggy and it ran away and the occupants were thrown out, but fortunately escaped with only slight injuries.
At the regular meeting of the hose company on Thursday evening, the boys balked at paying the $50 they had promised the city to help pay for the new bell tower, because, it was claimed, the money they had paid in fines, etc., would go to pay off the outstanding warrants against the city. The company, however, decided to expend $50 upon the city hall and in side walks.

Court House Contract Let.

At the adjourned meeting of the board of county commissioners on Saturday, the contract for the erection of the court house was awarded to H. Snook, of Salem, for $19,500, but much to the surprise of most people it was concrete walls that the court decided upon, which can be constructed much cheaper than brick. It seems that S. A. Brodhead pointed this out to Judge Conder before he left the city. On Monday the judge and the contractor returned to the city and the contract was changed from the concrete walls to brick, with the proviso that the county court experiment in the brick business and guarantee it, and the building is not to be completed until next year. The county court made a mistake when it failed to accept the bid of Mr. Brodhead, for his was the only bid that the court should have accepted.

Amateur Theatricals.

The "Bank Cashier," a dramatic play in three acts, will be presented by the Academy Dramatic Club in the near future. No date has yet been set, but as near as we can ascertain it will be about the 5th May. This play will be one of the best ever presented before a Tillamook audience. The members of the club made up their minds that this was to be their best play, and they are rehearsing at every opportunity to bring that desired end about. The play abounds in thrilling scenes and humorous selections, which will keep the audience in one continuous roar of laughter from start to finish. These amateur players have been preparing for this entertainment the past six months, and by the way in which they are persevering to present the play in good style, they deserve to be patronized the night of the entertainment.

City Council Meeting.

A meeting of the city council was held on Monday evening, with Mayor Cohn and Councilmen W. O. Chase, H. Mason, L. Huer, A. T. White and M. F. Leach were present.
Report of committee on examination of accounts of Ralph Ackley, ex city treasurer, was found correct and accepted.
Committee recommended to accept bill tower, which was erected by A. K. Case, which was done, and authorized the mayor and recorder to close the deal whereby Case was to be deeded the lots where the city hall previously stood.
Recorder Coates made a recommendation in behalf of the hose company in which the latter agreed to expend $50 on improvements and a side walk in front of the city hall. Councilman Chase objected to this, stating that the hose company should pay over to the city the $50 it had promised. After some discussion it was decided to accept the offer of the hose company.
A letter was read from W. H. Holmes and Webster Holmes, of Salem, who are attorneys employed by the Tillamook Water Company, advising the city council that they were about to bring action against the city in the circuit or Federal courts. Most of the councilmen thought that they should take legal advice before they took any action.
W. C. Wolfe offered to serve as city marshal for $10 per month and to be paid $2 a day when employed on street work. Councilmen Leach and Chase wanted a man to devote his whole time to the office, and Chase wanted his father appointed at $45 a month. As the salary of the marshal had been reduced to $5 a month, it was decided to leave the matter of appointing a city marshal until this evening.
Peter Braut presented a petition, which was signed by most of the business men, asking that the city vacate 30 feet of the street opposite the property of R. M. Wade and Peter Braut, so as to give more ground for the new court house. All the councilmen expressed an opinion there was plenty of ground in the block for the court house without closing up part of the street, and B. C. Hadley coincided with the city council by saying there was plenty of land there if only the county court would believe so. Councilman Chase moved that the petition be placed on the table, which was carried.
Walter Lynch was granted permission to put in a side walk to the boat house on the water front.
A. W. Fletcher wanted to know if the city council had any objection to the Mutual Telephone Company extending a line into this city, as it was proposed to start mutual telephone companies in the south part of the county, the advantage of which is that each subscriber owns his own phone and wire. Mr. Fletcher was told he would have to get a franchise prepared and present it to the city council. The city council will meet again this evening.

Editorial Snap Shots.

The writ of review on the local option election has fizzled out because there was no writ of review.
From present indications it looks as though by the time that the county gets through lawing over the shortage in the accounts of the late Sheriff Alderman it will have expended considerable more money than the county will ever get out of it.
The city council, when it "fired" City Marshal Quick, seemed to be of the opinion that the street and road work could be done cheaper if it was let out by contract. Councilman Chase is not talking that way now, as he wants his father appointed city marshal.
In what way will the water company bring suit against the city? It is not likely that it will stop the construction of the new water system, for that would be an expensive undertaking if it lost. It is said that the company will endeavor to prohibit the city from selling water. Let's have a drink of free water, please.
There will be nothing extravagant or expensive about Tillamook county's new court house. Not even the biggest knocker about excessive taxation can kick at the moderate sum it is going to take to build a court house, and even the timber syndicates, who imagine they are the only taxpayers who are pinched, will not enter a protest.
Dad Hadley told the city council that it should condemn the water system, but it did not follow his advice. Well, that would make the city doubly "dry," but, say, Dad, there isn't much whiskey in the city to adulterate, anyway, hence there is no longer any need of a water system. We knew Dad would be in the "dry" band wagon before long.
A. Denn, of Bay City, has a cow that is a freak breeder. Last week it gave birth to a calf with two heads, and before the Bay Cityite knew that he was throwing away a little fortune and the opportunity to become a showman, he knocked the calf on the head before it had time to distinguish itself. But a cow with two mouths to feed, and with three ears, was too much like a ravenous luxury for him to keep on his ranch.
The last state legislature raised the salary of County School Superintendent W. W. Wiley's from $600 to $1,000 a year, but much to his surprise now that the session laws have come to hand it is seen that the $200 he had been previously allowed for traveling expenses is cut out. The superintendent will now have to visit the school marns riding shanks pony, furnish his own motive power on a bike or provide himself with a fast horse and buggy. We understand that he has done the latter.
A. W. Fletcher appeared to have considerable fun at the Headlight man's expense when he told the city fathers that the Mutual Telephone Company did not intend to place the poles in the middle of the street and there was none of Baker's "hot air" in it. We must take the liberty of answering this by saying that when it came to showing a disposition to raise a subsidy for a railroad into Tillamook the committee appointed to solicit subscription found it impossible to raise much money in the south part of the county, but plenty of "hot air."
The city council has evidently made up its mind that it is not going to allow so much stock to run at large within the city limits, and it is expected that a city marshal will be appointed this evening to round up the stock which is not privileged to run at large. Rollie told the city dads on Monday that there were about 17 cows and two dozen yearlings on place his office that morning. Rollie, who has been bellowing so much about a "dry" town, didn't catch on that the city cows had called to allay his driveness. Get your pail, Rollie, and milk them "dry" the next time you are besieged by Old Bossy.
Quite a number of persons were surprised that District Attorney McNary was not on hand to call a grand jury at the circuit court on Monday, for several matters have cropped up since the last term of court which should have been investigated now. Therefore, it was disappointing to a number of our citizens that no grand jury was drawn, and the county is out probably several hundred dollars which it might have collected in fines. We may say in behalf of District Attorney McNary that he is engaged at Salem with a grand jury inquiring into state land frauds, so was unable to attend this term of court, but however that may be, it was just as imperative that a grand jury should have been drawn at this term of court, and probably more so than the last term of the circuit court when the grand jury rounded up those who ran the gambling houses and gambling games.

H. T. Botts and L. B. Eddy, of the law firm of Eddy & Botts, appeared for the county and the law enforcement league in the matter of the writ of review in the local option election case, and the way they interpreted and laid down the law to the court and summarily disposed of the petition of J. S. Lamar to knock out the election, was disappointing to those who expected to witness a hard fought case. Even Judge Galloway must have been surprised how the case flattened out so suddenly and left him only one thing to do—to dismiss the case, for the whole procedure was wrong. J. S. Lamar had no case in court on a writ of review, for there was no writ of review before the court. To have contested the local option law he should have made a test case of violating the law by selling whiskey, but to do so in a writ of review the same as was brought at this term of the circuit court was for the opposing attorneys to get Lamar on a barrel and then go for him with law points in quick succession.
Will the county ever recover any of the money by reason of Henry Alderman's shortage? It doesn't look so, because Judge Conder has employed and is paying local attorneys, Handley & Thayer, for doing what properly belongs to the district attorney. We do not blame the law firm of Handley & Thayer, so on that score, we cannot blame them if they are retained by the county judge. But the Headlight raises a protest to the whole proceeding and contend that District Attorney McNary is the proper and only person who should be prosecuting the claim and looking after the interest of the taxpayers of Tillamook county in matters of this kind. He is elected for that purpose and is drawing a good salary, and on that account every warrant the county court draws to pay the local attorneys is paying out money that can be saved. District Attorney McNary is the proper person to represent the county in the effort to collect Alderman's shortage, and sooner the county court places it in his hands, better it will be for the taxpayers.
The case against Homer Mason should never have been instituted. It was not only a bad break, but a big blunder on the part of County Judge Conder to have done so without the consent of the commissioners. Most people ridiculed the idea of bringing suit against Mason for land office fees, over which the state nor the county has control. The case flattened out in a manner different to what we expected, but if Judge Conder is wise he will put a stop to further proceedings, and that will allow him to crawl out of the hole he stumbled into, for not a few persons have an idea that the suit was brought more for the purpose of injuring Mason's reputation than to collect the land office fees it was alleged he owed the county, for Judge Conder was county judge two years when T. H. Goyno was county clerk and the latter kept the land office fees, and was judge for two years when Mason was clerk, but after he steps down and out, and the experts had audited his accounts, this suit was brought. If the law had so specified that the land office fees belonged to the county, the auditors would have been too glad to have detected and eager to report such a thing. Another point we will bring out to show the untenable position he is in by bringing this suit. County Judge Conder entered into an agreement with auditors to expert the county officials books at considerable expense to the taxpayers, yet when they brought in their reports to the county court not one of them said that Mason or Edwards or Goyno owed the county money for land office fees—neither did Judge Conder. Therefore, we can only draw this conclusion, that the county court has paid big sums of the taxpayers' money to experts who have failed to detect what is owing the county or the suit was brought to injure Mason's reputation. Our readers can place their own construction upon the case now that the thin veil is being gradually removed so that the public can see the matter in its true light and the injustice of bringing suit against Mason in a case where, as far as we are able to ascertain Judge Conder has no case.
We are in receipt of a letter from the Portland Chamber of Commerce, suggesting that the Headlight set forth the resources and business opportunities in this section for the information of visitors to the Exposition who might be induced to visit Tillamook. The Headlight has pointed out over and over that Tillamook is the best dairying section in Oregon, and, taking farmers as a class, the dairymen of Tillamook are better fixed, make more money annually and are more independent than farmers in other parts of the state. Tillamook is an ideal dairying country, where the dairy men raise their winter feed on the farms, and where a crop failure is unknown. Grass is king in Tillamook, and that is the reason dairying can be carried on so successfully and profitably in this county and which is a splendid section for those who want to go into dairying to locate in. The Headlight will not take a back seat in advocacy of Tillamook's claim to being the best dairying section of Oregon, for we know from close observation of other parts of the state what we are talking about, for you don't find green meadows and an abundance of green grass in the months of July, August and September in Eastern Oregon, the Willamette Valley or Eastern Oregon, where the thermometer goes up above 100 degrees, while the atmosphere is cool and refreshing in Tillamook.

Another thing the Chamber of Commerce would like to know is the industries that could be properly located in this county, such as lumber mills, woolen mills, etc., in short, every advantage the county offers to an intending inventor or settler. Here again the Headlight can say without fear of contradiction that Tillamook is one of the richest undeveloped counties in Oregon, for it has billions of feet of standing timber which will make this a great lumbering center at some future day. There is every indication that coal, iron, copper, oil and even gold will be found in paying quantities, and as to motive power the numerous streams can be harnessed for that purpose. Such, in brief, are some of the resources of Tillamook and what they will develop whenever the county is given transportation facilities. But until such time as this county can get proper transportation it is useless to talk about new industries outside of the manufacture of butter and cheese. We would not restrict the usefulness of the Portland Chamber of Commerce one wit, for there are many things it is doing and can do help all parts of Oregon, but the Headlight would like to point out a few things to that body, viz., Tillamook County line, as the crow flies, is directly west of Portland about 35 miles, whereas Tillamook City is under 60 miles in a direct line from Portland, yet it is without railroad connections. It costs $4 a ton to ship flour from Portland to the Orient and $5 from Portland to Tillamook City. If Tillamook County was within 35 miles of San Francisco, Seattle or Tacoma, we do not think those cities would allow a valuable feeder, with so much valuable, undeveloped resources to remain bottled up for so many years as Portland as allowed Tillamook, and a class of industrious people, and who have prospered in spite of the difficulties they have had to contend with because of lack of quick transportation. We are inclined to think that the Portland Chamber of Commerce and the citizens of Portland generally have very little idea of the abundance of wealth there is in Tillamook and the Coast counties, which have been neglected so long in the matter of railroad connections with Portland.
