Mr. Reid gave the proposition of the company and many speeches in favor of the plan were made by those present. The railroad company proposes to build a road from Hillsboro to Tillamook with branches to Astoria, and Vernonia, at once, and ask the people of Hillstoro to give the right of way through the city and the farmers along the porposed line, the right of way through their land free of charge.

The deeds of this right of way is not to be given until the line is in operation and trains running.

The mayor of Hillsboro was instructed to appoint a committee of seven, including himself and W. Taylor Hill, of Mountaindale, to secure right of way and report a week from Monday. The time is short but the contract has heen let for the building of the road and the company is desirous of beginning operations immediately.

The directors of the company will furnish a guarantee that they have the funds and are in a position to complete the road according to the atove statement. - Hillsboro Indepen-

OLD-TIME POST OFFICES.

Some Points of Advantage About the London Mail Established in 1677.

The postmasters were free from all public offices, from liability to quarter soldiers, and they received gazettes free of postage, "wherewith they advantage themselves in their common trade of selling drink, and they have their single letters free to London.

The rates of postage in 1677 were comaratively low. A single letter-i. e., a etter consisting of one sheet of paper only-could be sent for any distance up to 80 miles for 2d., and beyond 80 miles for 3d. A letter weighing an ounce cost 8d. for 80 miles, and 1s beyond, says London Notes and Queries.

The mails were dispatched from London about midnight on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, and were due to arrive in London early on Monday Wednesday and Friday mornings. They were carried on horseback at the rate of five miles an hour, and they were liable to a detention of not more than half an hour at each postoffice (stage) on the road. England was divided into six runnings, or roads, viz: West, Bristol, Chester, North, Yarmouth and Kent, starting from Plymouth, Bristol, Chester, Edinburgh, Yarmouth and Dover, respectively.

ELEPHANT GREAT IN CRIME.

The Animal's Intellectual Powers Are Most Apparent in His Schemes for Revenge.

Few more impressive confidences can be imparted than one in which a Hindoo describes how he knows his elephant intends to destroy him. It is all so seemingly trivial, and yet in reality of such deadly significance. His story is so full of details that prove what he is talking about that one remains equally amazed at the brute's power to dissemble and its intended netim's insight into the would-be murderer's character. And yet, from the psychological standpoint, an elephant ever gives any other such indication of mental power as is exhibited in its revenge. That patient, watchful, implacable hatred, often provoked simply because a man is in attendance upon another animal (for it is the rule with tuskers to detest their nex neighbors), speaks more conclusively of a high intellectual guide than all stories, true or false, that have been told of their ability. Such concentra-tion and fixedness of purpose, such careful, unrelaxed vigilance, such perfect and consistent pretense, and when the time comes, such desperate, unhesitating energy as homicidal animals exhibit, are impossible without a very considerable, although in this instance, very irregular, development, says Outing. No one can deny that if this creature is great at all its greatness shows itself in its crimes. These have caused it to be worshiped in the east, where men venerate nothing but merciless, irresponsible force, and where an exhibition of those qualities and traits described fully account for the formu-la: "My lord, the elephant."

ANCIENT POLITICAL "RINGS." Monopolists Flourished Centuries Ago in Rome and Egypt as

They Do To-Day.

The evil of monopolies and rings was known to the ancients, Aristotle referring to them in his "Politics," and then, as now, it was found necessary to hold them in check by legislation. monopolist was in Roman law called a Dardanarius, and published under the Lex Julia de Annona, says London Answers. Monopolies of elothing, fish and all articles of food were prohibited by Emperor Zeno under pain of con fiscation and exile; so that it is certain that the "rings" of the ancient days were as mischievous as those of to-day.
