Alva Finley Gives a Correct Account of the Situation in Tillamook City.

The following letter appeared in the Pacific Searchlight, which gives a correct account of the situation in Tillamook City:

Mr. B. E. Emerick, 793 Dawson Street, Portland, Oregon.

Dear Sir,—In reply to yours of the 23rd of May in which you state that the report is being circulated that drinking in Tillamook is worse than when they had saloons; that there is more drunkenness; that the city is dull and dead in a business way and that the loss of saloon revenue has put the city hopelessly in debt will say, that such reports are not true. Drinking is not more here than it was when we had saloons. There is not more drunkenness. Some liquor is being shipped in to individuals and occasionally some of these become drunk, but the number is not as great as was the number of those drunk while saloons were here. The saloon people give as great publicity as possible to each case of drunkenness in the endeavor to make the situation worse than it is. Again, the drunks now, when they are drunk, are seen on the streets while they were kept in the back rooms and out of sight by the saloon keepers while they were running saloons. But it is a fact that a number of those who were chronic soaks while the saloons were running, are shut off from their supply of liquor and as a result do not become intoxicated. It is also a fact that a number of persons who drank to excess while the saloons were running in Tillamook, and who were unable as a consequence, to pay their debts, are now habitually sober and are paying up their bills. A number of the frequenters of the saloons have left Tillamook since they closed.

Tillamook City is not dull and dead in a business way. It is true that business is not as brisk here as it has been at some other times, but the causes of this are to be found in something else than the matter of saloons. The business situation has been about the same for more than a year past, and this is owing to the following among other reasons: First, the logging camps have not been in operation, except to a very slight extent. The larger mills of the county have not been run, except slightly, and means of employment have been closed. Second, the price of dairy produce during the year of 1904 was low, and as butter and cheese are the principal produce of this county, there was, as a consequence, less money being circulated among the farmers, and as the city has been dependent upon the farmers and the lumber industries, to a great extent, for its prosperity, the business has been, as before stated, not as brisk as it has been, but this fact existed before the saloons were closed as well as afterwards.

The loss of the saloon revenue has been felt by the city as a matter of course in its operations, but this has been owing to a great extent to the fact that the saloon administration of last year anticipated the revenue of the city in rather a reckless manner and left the city without any means at the opening of the new year, and as the city was obliged to refund license money to saloons which were closed, the city was by that means put in debt. At the same time the saloon people interfered to prevent the city from being able to raise more money by taxation, and the city will for sometime for that reason be running behind. The income from taxation is limited to two mills on the dollar, and as a matter of course the loss of revenue is felt to a certain extent and will be felt, but I can say that the city will survive and I believe conditions are getting better.

"Yours very truly,"

"ALVA FINLEY"

THE YELLOW WEED.

A Few Suggestions Offered by the Headlight.

Something should be done to prevent the yellow weed spreading, which is taking possession of a large stretch of country, and the conditions are getting worse every year. Different methods will have to be adopted and scientific and systematic farming resorted to before it can be eradicated. The situation is alarming, as anyone can see who have watched the weed in making in the county. It should not be trifled with any longer, for some farms which produced enormous grass crops in previous years are in a sorry plight today, with scarcely one third of a crop. In these days of scientific farming there is no reason why this state of affairs should continue. There is something wrong somewhere, and it is just as well to ascertain the cause and apply a remedy before it is allowed to damage other farms. It may be that meadows are pastured too long, and in that way the grass is not given a fair chance, and instead of the grass choking out the weeds the yellow weed is choking out the grass. Whatever is the real cause, it should be ascertained and the proper remedy applied. To get at this we would suggest that the officers of the Grange in this county write to Dr. Withycombe, of the State Agricultural College, and have him and his assistants come to Tillamook and investigate the cause and prescribe a remedy, which we feel sure he would gladly do as soon as advised of the conditions by the local Grange. By doing this the dairymen may be able more intelligently able to cope with the serious situation before another season. The yellow weed, wherever it has taken hold on any farm, has decreased its value, and to prevent its spreading to other farms, something ought to be done right away to grapple with it so as to prevent it from taking the country.

Knocking the Cheese Market.

A number of business men of this city, as well as cheese manufacturers, are in receipt of letters similar to the following:

Portland, Oregon, 6-23-05.
McIntosh & McNair,
Tillamook, Oregon.
Gentlemen—There seems to be a great deal of dissatisfaction among the Cheese shippers as to the price of Cheese at the present time in Portland market. We wish to state to you that these conditions are not brought about by ourselves—we attribute the fault to the Hazelwood Creamery Company who are offering Cheese to the retail trade as low as 11 cents per pound.

Their idea seems to be to keep the price of Cheese at the very lowest point, and as they flooded our trade with circulars and very low quotations, we, of course, are compelled to meet their prices or lose our Cheese trade, and as long as the Hazelwood people continue this course we see very little prospect or encouragement for the Cheese maker.

As far as we are personally concerned we would prefer to see Cheese sold in this market so as to show the maker, as well as ourselves, a fair legitimate profit, as we think it would be to the best interest of all concerned.

Of course, the Hazelwood people may have an object in view in making these low prices and forcing the market down, or maybe they get special concessions from the factories from whom they purchase, but as long as they continue making these low prices to retail trade, we will be obliged to buy our Cheese from the manufacturer at a price that will justify us in meeting competition.

Yours very truly,
Wadhams & Kerr Bros.

The Christian Religion.

TO THE EDITOR TILLAMOOK HEADLIGHT.

There has never been but one Christian religion, the difference is between the interpreters of it. The Jewish priesthood have always adhered to the law of God, the disciples of Christ to his precepts. The Christian minister to the inspiration of the Holy Ghost. The word Christian was coined expressly for believers in the Holy Ghost. But few people are aware of what the bible says about the Holy Ghost, for the popular preacher finds many things less difficult to talk about.

There is plenty of scripture to support the doctrine that the Holy Ghost is the Christian's guide, and there is bound to be a general agreement between those who follow the same guide.

The 19th verse of the 6th chapter of 1st Cor. reads: What? Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? Matt 1-18. Now the birth of Jesus Christ was on this: When as his mother Mary was espoused to Joseph, before they came together, she was found with child of the Holy Ghost, part of 20th verse, for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Ghost. Luke 1, 35. And the angel answered and said unto her, the Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee; therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God.

The Christian religion is the Holy Ghost Gal. v., 16-25:

This I say then, Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfil the lust of the flesh. For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other: so that ye cannot do the things that ye would.

But if ye be led of the Spirit, ye are not under the law.

Now the works of the flesh are manifest, which are these: Adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness.

Idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, strife, seditions, heresies, and such like: of the which I tell you before, as I have also told you in time past, that they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God.

But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, Meekness, temperance: against such there is no law.

And they that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts.

If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit.

Room 79-L. I say the truth in Christ, I lie not my conscience also bearing me witness in the Holy Ghost.

All I ask of any man is to respect the gentle influence of the Holy Ghost to become immune against the ravages of intemperance and the craziest man I could ever imagine is the one who is crying for rocks and mountains to fall on him to hide him from the face of his creator.

Development of the Yukon.

While the rest of the world is intent upon the prospects of peace in the Far East, the Ottawa Parliament has been turning its attention to the Far North. Dr. Thompson, of the Yukon territory, in his speech the other day upon territorial affairs made some interesting statements as to the brief historical past and the alluring future of that land of gold. It was as recently as 1896 that "Bob" Henderson, of Pictou, discovered gold in the region since known as the Klondike, and the statement of Dr. Thompson that the Yukon "should do something" for the discoverer in addition to the aid extended by the Dominion in giving him a situation shows that he failed to profit substantially from a discovery which sent thousands of eager goldseekers northward to the valley of the modern Pactolus. The greatest gold rush of recent times was in 1897 and 1898, when "Klondike" became a household word throughout the civilized world. It is comparable only to that of '49 in California, or to that which made South Africa the goal for seekers of buried wealth, and disturbed and finally banished the Boers' peaceful dreams of an agricultural life upon the Transvaal veldt. As in all other cases of the discovery of gold in great quantities, the opening up of the Klondike left its own indelible stamp upon the literature of adventure and heroism, and possibly on that of politics; for among the causes to which William Jennings Bryan attributes his second Waterloo and the obscuration of his famous "cross of gold" is the discovery of the precious yellow metal in the Far North.

As to the amount of gold which has come out of the Yukon since 1896, it is only necessary to quote Dr. Thompson's statement that it amounts to $120,000,000. To employ his still more graphic estimate, the amount of virgin gold that has been added from the Yukon to the world's stock since 1896 is equal to 240 tons, sufficient to load twelve freight cars carrying twenty tons each, or, at one grain a foot, to encircle the globe twenty times. As a representative in Parliament of this great gold region, Dr. Thompson made a plea for the betterment of the terms imposed upon the miners by the Dominion government. Among other things, his constituents were, he thought, entitled to an abolition of the gold royalty of 2 1/2 per cent, or if the royalty were not abolished it should, in the interests of the government desirous of developing that rich region, be remitted for three or five years. Thus stimulated, he thinks, the production of gold would soon grow to $100,000,000, when the royalty could be reimposed and not be felt as a bar to increased development.

In the Yukon also, it appears, the speculator abounds and flourishes, and promptly enters upon the process of exploiting finds made by the prospector without capital sufficient for development. To such an extent has this process gone on that the Yukon is no longer a field where the poor man with pluck and heroism can wrest fortune from adverse circumstances; but he is, perforce, made tributary to the man more fortunate in the possession of means for development. Read between the lines, Dr. Thompson's address to the Parliament was an arraignment of it for being kinder to the speculator than to the men who seek and find new gold mines, and Premier Laurier, as is evident from his comments on Dr. Thompson's speech, sympathizes with that point of view.

Perhaps the point of greatest interest as respects the future development of the Yukon lies in the proposed Canadian mint. When that is fully realized and an assay office established at Dawson, it will be possible for the government to buy the gold, which will be a great convenience to the miners and profitable to the government as well. Another significant suggestion is that there is a possibility that wheat may be grown in the Yukon Valley, and that, like California, its agricultural wealth may eventually be even more important than its mineral output. Growing wheat is less romantic than digging gold from the frozen Klondike, but, as shown by statistics, it is on the whole immensely more profitable in the long run.
