Goldfield Grieves.

Goldfield, a mining town of Nevada is in mourning. Its sack cloth and ashes are not due to any falling off in product, failure of the oil veins or the usual lines of business incident to mining camps The saloons still flourish, there is an abundant flow of bad beer and "bug juice," and the dance halls still afford a nocturnal nightmare of howling femin inity. The warning sign is still up Gentlemen, please don't shoot the pianist, she is doing the best she can." It is possible to get into a "little game of draw," or "old sledge," or the vestive craps without danger of arrest, and, in fact, everything is running just as it did in the palmy days of Bert Harte and The Ourcasts of Poker Flat," Still Goldfield is inconsolable and weeping, like Rochel for her children, because they are not. Goldfield has lost its most valued possession and refuses to be comforted. The population had plenty to drink, but what it wanted most it could not get, It did not hunger like the Israelites, for the fleshpots of Egypt, but it yearned for the milk pans in the old springhouses of the eastern homes. As babies, they cried for milk, but milk seemed the very thing these Nevada mountains were destitute of. There being no grass and dry feed having to be imported at a ruinous price, no cattle were numbered among the possessions of this isolated community.

But Goldfield had a "widder wom an," and she was of an inventive as well as speculative turn of mind. It occurred to her fertile brain that a fresh cow would be an excellent in vestment for a denizen of this milkdry mining camp, and a fortune loomed up in her imagination as a result of the happy conception. Forthwith, she sent 'way off somewhere and bought a cow at a stiff price, which she had transported at another stiff price and bought hay to feed it at a still stiffer price ($100 a ton), but at last she had her cow and proceeded to set up in business. She did not have to advertise her precious possession in the local newspaper, as the population did that for her in its uoisiest way, by escorting the cow to the music of a sheepskin band, the floating of tattered banners and a promiscuous shooting up of the town. The whole camp was wild with joy and smacked their lips over anticipated buttermilk and something in the way of butter better than oleo axlegrease. In a day or two a gigantic sign stretched acros the main street bearing the legend : "Ice cream from Mrs. Rice's cow." It drew like a mustard plaster. The whole town assembled and crowded, begging for a taste of the long-lost fluid. Of course there was not enough to go around, not half enough, but the enterprising " widder" was selling milk at wartime prices in Confederate money and ice cream so high that only the mine owners could indulge. Everything went swimmingly for a while, and Widow Rice confidently expected to soon join Mrs. Mackey, Madame Fair and the rest of the millionairesses who began as cooks and laundresses and wound up as swell leaders of the swell in "Yurrup." Alas for human expectations. Just at this juncture the supply of milk stopped short, and this is why Goldfield went in mourning. Just what caused the cow to act in this unladylike way, whether killed with kindness or bad hay, is not recorded any more than it was in the old song that pretended to tell "What the Old Cow Died Of." But die she did. and the moral seems to be that a com. munity can do without anything else but a cow.

The Gift of the Holy Ghost.

TO THE EDITOR TILLAMOOK HEADLIGHT. Moses in Mount Sina, John from the wilderness, and the gift of the Holy Ghost are to my mind the greatest events in the religious world. From Moses sprang the Jewish synagogue, from John then the preaching of the gospel of the Kingdom of God, or the Church of Christ. The gift of the Holy Ghost is another consideration. We see Peter as a disciple of Christ denying Christ with an oath, but when he was filled with the Holy Ghost he defended christianity boldly. I can find plenty of men who are disposed to instruct me in the law of God and the precepts of Christ, but I am looking for the man who can enlighten as to God Spirit. 'And when Simon saw that through laying on of the apostles' hands the Holy Ghost was given, he offered them money, saving, give me also of this high level. Once he remarked: "Men power, that on whomsover I lay hands, and women range themselves into he may receive the Holy Ghost. But three classes or orders of intelli-Peter answered and said, thy money perish with thee, because thou hast thought that the gift of God may be purchased with money." The fault I find with the preacher of today is his leanness of the Spirit. His sermon is all gewgaw to me. Perhaps it is my stupidity. just as it was with Simon. The gift of

OUR COAST DEFENSE.

Navy Board Makes Plans for Rendering It More Effective.

Believe That in Some Particulars the Army Fortifications Are Not Enough-Some Danger of Frietion said to Exist.

The general board of the navy, of which Admiral Dewey is president, has been discussing the plans of coast offense and defense to be maintained by the navy in conjunction with the land fortifications, and Rear Admiral P. H. Cooper, who is now on waiting orders at Morristown, N. J., has been designated as the officer who will prepare the coast line from Chatham light, Cape Cod, to Barnegat light, in New Jersey. This new duty will require a good deal of travel along the coast line embraced in the district, and he is authorized to incur all necessary expenses on such trip.

It is not the intention of the naval general board to interfere with the plans of defense contemplated by the army coast fortifications, but the plan of the naval board probably will arouse the artillery officers of the army to some objection against what they may regard as an interference with the legitimate duties of the army.

There has always been more or less rivalry between the two services in the matter of defending the coast, but Admiral Dewey and his associates on the general board believe that the coast forts do not provide all the defense which is necessary. In Chesapeake bay, for instance, there are no fortifications which would serve to keep out an enemy's vessel, and much the same condition prevails in Delaware bay and Long Island sound.

The hoard has made a report to the secretary of the navy suggesting in general terms that the department possess itself of a plan of offense and defense which shall contemplate the movement of naval vessels of all classes, from the smallest torpedo boat to the largest battleships, taking inte consideration as well the use of the submarine torpedo vessels. It is with the idea of preparing a plan in detail along the coast from Chatham light to Barnegat light that Rear Admiral Cooper has been designated. His letter of instructions will be regarded as confidential matter, but it is known that in general terms he is specially cautioned not to overstep the line which divides the naval from the shore system of defense. Nevertheless the artillery officers are likely to regard the incident of Rear Admiral Cooper's detail as an encroachment on the function of their arm.

CHINA WORKING LOTTERY.

Method Adopted by Viceroys in the Various Provinces to Raise the Indemntty Money.

China has been driven to desperate measures in order to raise the indemnity of $334,000,000 on account of the Boxer outrages, which she agreed to pay the powers. Official information received by the state department announces the promulgation of procla-mations by the viceroys of the several provinces, advising them that the state has determined to operate a lottery and that the people will be expected to buy tickets. Failure to do so will mean the imposition of additional taxes.

This method of raising revenue migh receive approval from the Chinese were it not that it is not at all certain that the winner of the first prize will receive the cash called for by his ticket. It is proposed to give him a button, but to the poor Chinaman a button counts for little, and besides if buttons are distributed in any number they will become worthless. According to a proclamation of Chan Chin Tung. viceroy of provinces of the Yang-tse valley, the people have spent too much on lotteries outside of the kingdom, and the money should be kept within the country. The money raised will he used to pay the indemnity as it falls

"If the people do not readily and willingly buy the tickets," Chan Chin Tung states, "there will be an increase of taxes." The tickets have been distributed among the several magistrates with instructions to sell, and there is no doubt that they will compel their purchase. The mail which brought Chan Chin Tung's proclamation also brought a report of the case of a rich man who had been ordered to buy two tickets. He declined to do so, but eventually took one. His conduct in connection with the tickets was reported to the magistrate, who directed that he he arrested. The culprit was compelled to buy the tickets and was also heavily fined.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

There are in Paris 1,316 factories The world's output of coal in 1900 was 767,636,000 tons.

A large factory in Jena, Germany, utilizes its surplus hot water in such a way as to afford the laborers nearly a thousand baths per week.

In some German cities it is customary to fee street car conductors, who are thus enabled to add from four to six dollars a month to their income.

The richest farm in the world is an acre worth $288,000 in the heart of New York's ultra-fashionable district, be tween West End avenue and Riverside drive. It is tilled regularly and the produce is sold at the nearest market. During the civil war the site was covered by a government recruiting station.

A research steamer belonging to the Norwegian government recently car-ried on the North sea some experimental fishings which yielded important results. In three days 117 halibut and 300 large cod were caught at a depth of 200 fathoms, thus proving the existence of large quantities of these fishes at a time of the year when they are not to be found on the coast of Norway.

Many people imagine that the incandescent electric light gives out little or no heat, but it is found that of the energy consumed only six per cent. is converted into light, while 95 per cent. goes into heat. A lamp immersed water will bring the water to a boil, and many cases of fire have been caused by carelessness in letting inflammable substances rest in contact with the lamp.

Prof. James Dewar, president of the annual meeting of the British Asso-ciation for the Advancement of Science at Belfast, has pointed out in the boldest language that while English-men have repeatedly discovered scientific principles and laws of great importance, the Germans and Americans have been making the practical applications of them, leaving England behind in reaping the advantages.

COMPLAIN OF STAMPS.

Lot Recently Sent Out by Post Office Department That Stuck

Many complaints have been made to the post office authorities that the stamps sold in books of 24 and 48 have had a way of sticking to the paraffin paper that was supposed to protect the mucilage on them. An investigation was made, with the result that a circular was issued authorizing the re demption of stamps so glued to the sheets in books.

It was explained that "by mistake" the contractor who made the books had used a poor quality of paraffin paper. Postmasters were instructed to return to the department at Washing ton all books of stamps made with this inferior quality of peraffin fly leaves which they had on hand. Under this order about $12,000 worth of damaged books have been turned in, and it is thought that there will be little more trouble of the kind.

This is not the only stamp trouble of the post office. Particularly from the south and along the Atlantic coast there came many complaints that the ordinary one and two-cent stamps stuck to everything they touched. A sheet of 50 or more was turned in at the New York post office this week. They had been sent loose in a letter from the south and were hopelessly ed to the paper.

Whether the trouble is due to something wrong with the mucilage or the abnormally wet season in the south and along the coast has not been determined. There is no provision for the redemption by postmasters of damaged individual stamps.

Dueling in Switzerland.

The duel, though prohibited by law, still exists in Swirzerland, but the practice is confined to the students in the Swiss German universities. Even these fire-enters are beginning to realize the absurdity of the practice, for a meeting was held at Zurich lately at which student delegates from all parts were present, to discuss the duel and courts of honor. A proposition by the president to abolish the duel altogether was rejected by a large majority. The consequence was that a large number of duels which were previously arranged and whose principles were awaiting the result of the vote took place at Bremgarten, near Berne. Many students received severe rapier cuts, chiefly in the face, but nobody was seriously wounded. The police, though they know the practice exists. and are often aware of the "affair." seldom interfere, for they look upon the duel, as practiced by the students, as a sporting and harmless matter. It is certain that nobody has ever been seriously hurt in these affairs of honor.-London Times.
