Keeper H. D. Mahler, of Cape Meares light station, returned on Saturday from Portland, where he had been for a month in charge of the light house exhibit at the fair. His daughter came near meeting with a bad accident last week, for she was accidentally struck with an ax in the hands of her brother, which fortunately only made a small gash over the left eye, and which Dr. Upton sewed up.
The city council met Monday night in regular session, and the following bills were allowed: Eli Olds, gravel, $50.50; Tillamook Lumber Co., lumber, $77.60; W. C. Woolfe, work, $1; Eli Olds, gravel, $10; C. Clements, salary, $45; I. H. Smith, work, $10.30; I. H. Smith, work, $1.50; Tillamook Lumber Co., lights for August and September, $76; Thos. Coates, salary, $15; Mason & Ackley, lamps, etc., $7.

Information having reached Deputy District Attorney W. H. Cooper from parties who bought whiskey from Jesse Earl and paid him $1.50 for it, instead of reserving the case for the grand jury, he prepared a complaint and had Earl arrested for violating the local option law. The case will be tried before Justice Carl Haberlach on the 10th.
Married, on Saturday, at the residence of Mr. F. N. Wilson, by the Rev. A. S. Foster, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Mr. Robert O. Richards and Miss Abbie M. Coulson, daughter of Mr. N. Coulson. These parties are well known in the county and their friends extend to them their best wishes. The happy couple will make their home at Blaine.
The hoodlums who have been annoying a number of the citizens, destroying property and carrying off gates, stole one of the gates belonging to the M. E. church on Sunday, and a number of citizens think they are entitled to better protection in a town where there is a sheriff, deputy sheriff, constable and marshal drawing salaries and fees to protect the people from such annoyances.
The farmer always welcome. We want the banking business of the farmers and want them to make their headquarters at this bank. Our experience has taught us that their business is safe, and we want every prosperous farmer in the vicinity of Tillamook to give us a trial.—Tillamook County Bank.
What a different condition of affairs it would bring about in Tillamook City if the attorneys would refuse to appear for the gamblers and those who violate the local option law. It would not only be a good thing for the community, but it would redound to the honor of the Tillamook bar. It is plain to see that Deputy District Attorney Cooper is not receiving the support of the county and city officials and those who voted for local option in his effort to have the law enforced, and for that reason the attorneys would show good judgment by assisting the proper officials in doing their duty, for in previous years too much pettifoggery was resorted to in the justice court to clear those who justly deserved punishment.
Lyster Myer, who was seriously injured in the logging camp of the Tillamook Logging Company on Thursday morning of last week, died somewhat suddenly and unexpectedly at eight o'clock the same evening at the Allen house. It was about eight o'clock in the morning when the accident happened, and it was noon before he was brought to the city and his injuries were attended to by the doctors. He came out of the chloroform after the injured limb had been set feeling strong, and although his knee was badly crushed and broken above the knee, it looked as though the unfortunate young man would pull through. About eight o'clock the same evening he was suddenly seized with a convulsion, and before the doctor was able to get to his bedside, he suddenly expired. It is thought that his death was owing to a weak heart or that the blood from the injured knee had affected the heart. His parents were present when he died. The deceased was 18 years of age, and the remains were taken to Falls City, Or., at the unfortunate boy's request before he expired, to be buried by the side of the remains of his grandfather.

Alderman's Shortage.

Mrs. Alderman has sent the following letter to the bondsmen of the late Sheriff Alderman, which may be of some interest to the public, which is as follows:
DEAR SIR,—I have just seen a copy of a letter addressed by Handley & Thayer to the bondsmen of H. H. Alderman, which states that suit is to be brought against those of the year 1898 and 1899, and which also states that many of the bondsmen prefer to pay without a suit to avoid litigation.
I do not know how many have received this letter. So I send this to all those who have ever signed any bond.
I hope that none of the bondsmen will do this. I have not been able to learn the names of the bondsmen who contemplate doing so, and have been assured by a good many of them, both by letter and otherwise, that they do not believe that there are any.
As I wrote once before in a letter to the bondsmen, I will furnish a defence for them, and no one will lose anything by having signed such a bond.
Please send any papers served upon you to Ralph R. Daniway, 531 Chamber of Commerce, Portland, Oregon. I have the best legal advice obtainable.
It is not true that all efforts of the county to realize anything from Mr. Alderman's estate have been met with stubborn resistance. I have offered the County $1,800, which is more than there are any bonds for, and more than there is in Mr. Alderman's estate, which they have not accepted.
Strayed Calves.
Two strayed calves, one white and other red, are on Rev. John Branch's place. Owner please call for them and pay expenses.

Editorial Snap Shots.

Aint that a peach? The Wilson river toll road up to Hadley's camp.
The greatest of all land frauds, that of the railroads gobbling up the public domain, remains to be investigated.
When the government is through with prosecuting the land fraud cases quite a number of prominent persons will be financially busted.
Who is the fellow that wrote to U. S. Prosecuting Attorney Healy and said: "They all beat me out of my share, that's why I'm squealing."
When the prohibitionists are informed that the President accepted a gift of sixty bottles of beer, we hope they won't imagine that he committed some awful sin.
We hope that the republican love feast in Portland next week will be instrumental in converting republicans who are now known as "boilers," "knifers," etc., into republican "stand patters."
M. Melchoir wishes us to state that he rendered the gate keeper on the Wilson river toll road $1.50 and demanded a receipt, and as this was refused, he refused to pay without receiving a receipt for his money.
The Willamette Valley Development League has adopted a motto, which is "A Square Deal for Oregon." That is to the point. Why not start a Tillamook Development League—it is what is now wanted—with the motto, "Give Tillamook a Square Deal—then Watch Tillamook Grow."
It is hardly a square deal for one official to go to a person who was violating the local option law and inform him that he must quit the business and for another official to prosecute another person for violating the law. Serve them all alike, for Tillamook City has seen too much of the system of allowing certain persons the privilege of breaking the law and arresting others who were not in the ring for violating the law. Justice ought to be dealt out fairly to all, and when persons violate the local option law we contend there should be no privileged persons.
Persons who violate the local option law have no reason to complain if complaints are sworn out against them and they have to pay fines. If they think they can override the will of the people and defy the law they will soon find out that they will get into trouble sooner or later, and into serious trouble with the government. So the best and safest way for those who have been violating the law is to comply with it in future, but if they will persist in acting smart, then the court should see what a good stiff fine and imprisonment would do, for, no doubt, that is what a few persons in this city deserve.
Rollie keeps on bellyaching because some of the people send to Astoria and Portland for their beverages and the city reaps no benefit from it. True, and the consumers don't run the risk of having their beverages "doctored" in saloons to pay for city improvements. But it is common talk around the city that when Rollie wanted a buckboard auto, he did not patronize any of the local business men, not even those who handle carriages, buggies and implements, but sent his money East—no wonder they have good roads in Eastern states—and presently he will be soliciting advertisements from the local merchants for his "boiled plate" Christmas edition. Rollie is barking up the wrong tree.
The Astoria & Columbia River Railroad Company thinks it is entitled to more patronage from the business men of Tillamook in handling freight between Portland and Astoria, for the reason that it telephones every jobbing house in Portland before each and every trip the steamer, and for the further reason that the railroad company pays better attention to the movement of Tillamook freight, having established a daily service for it so that no delay may occur. That being the case, it is well for the business men, when they order merchandise, not to forget that the railroad is paying special attention to Tillamook freight, and being the quickest route as well.
The need of a tow boat in Tillamook bay was again seen this week, with three lumber schooners beating about outside and unable to get in for want of a tow boat. Lumbering can never be made a success in Tillamook bay until a tow boat is secured, in fact, it is what is first required for a saw mill that is depending upon shipping lumber. It is no problem to log timber and convert it into lumber, but it is a problem with lumber on the docks and schooners unable to get in on account of no towing facilities. Such a state of affairs others have bucked up against and eventually lost heart, and unless something is done to supply the need of a tow boat, there is going to be considerable delay and disappointment ### in the lumber business this winter.

From now on and until the primary election is over quite a number of persons will have political bees buzzing in their bonnets with the expectation that political lightning will strike them and there by give them a nomination on the republican county ticket. No one can raise any objection to a person becoming an aspirant for a political office, provided they have the qualifications and have the backbone to enforce the law, which are very essential to assure an election, for every aspirant will be critically sized up on these points. What will cause most trouble will be the few offices that are to be filled, viz., county judge, county clerk, sheriff, treasurer, commissioner, recorder and surveyor, as well as the justices and constables of the three justice districts. Therefore, it is safe to predict that there will be a big scramble to get nominations. Right here we intend to offer a word of advice. After the nominations are over let every republican fall into line and make a clean sweep and vote for republican principles and straight republicanism.
City property owners can expect nothing less than a 10 mill city tax levy this year. This is quite a jump from the past 2 mill levies in years previous. But then if you want the people to send this money to Astoria or Portland for their beverages you shouldn't kick.—Herald.
Rollie was one of the biggest "howlers" for an expensive water system, now he is the first to "howl" because the citizens, besides paying water rates, will have to be taxed as well. Rollie ought to know that the city council can only levy a 2 mill tax for general purposes, whereas the bond buyers fixed it so that the citizens could be taxed another 10 mills so that they could get their interest if the new water system did raise enough money to do so. Rollie should be the last man to "howl" about additional taxation because the bloated bond holders have now the citizens on the hip. As a matter of fact Rollie has commenced "howling" because it looks as though the water commission will have to levy a 10 mill tax—and "send this money," not to buy beverages, but interest on bonds.
A few hundred of the saloon revenue would look good, if the city had it to put gravel on the main business streets and fill up some of the mud holes.—Herald.
We will analyse this paragraph so that the citizens can see through it. Rollie is wanting saloons so that Tillamook City can get money out of them to improve roads in the city, or, in other words, he wants people to come to Tillamook City, or those in the city, to spend their money for "booze" so that the city can work a "graft" upon them to pay for improving the city. There is no disputing this, nor can anyone dispute the logic of our remarks. The saloon advocates want saloons so that the farmers, loggers and others can come to the city and spend their money for "booze" so that the city folks, who don't want to pay for it themselves, can enjoy electric lights, expensive water systems, nice side and cross walks and improved streets, at the expense of those who use liquor. And as to "grafting," here is one of the systems whereby the fellow who drinks has to pay devilish dear for the "booze" that has to keep up city improvements. No wonder that the people of this county voted to do away with the saloons.

The most important thing in connection with the erection of a new court house is not so much its location as it is to get it built with as little delay as possible. The railroad situation the next year or so may bring about changes of a character that may give Tillamook City a competitor for the county seat, so on that account it looks to us exceedingly unwise for any of our citizens to get into a fight as to location. All should strive to get the court house built regardless of location, for it is to the city's interest and future welfare, not a few individuals, some of whom want it built in one place and others in another place because it will enhance the value of their property. The city's interests should be first considered, not private individuals, and, as we see it, to get a court house erected as soon as possible. True it is that this can easily be delayed if there is any friction between the people of this city, but there ought not to be. As we understand it, the county court decided some time ago to erect it on the old site, and having obtained a bid to erect a new court house at a low figure and which no one ought to object to, we want to see Judge Conder push the erection of the building as fast as possible. Should the court, however, take again into consideration the question of a new location, it would be morally bound to return the present site to Mr. Thayer, who gave it to the county to erect a court house on.
