GLENORA.

Messrs. G. P. Clerin, W. Eastman and W. Riefenburg, of Portland, were at the White House Wednesday.

J. F. Reeher came in Thursday from Forest Grove with a passenger for Tillamook.

A special inspector of land for the government was at Mr. Vic Brown's a short time ago. He said the government would allow no toll gates to inclose government land; that if he had found a gate at Brown's he would have removed it at once. He also said he had lately had a case where a toll gate keeper was arrested and heavily fined for enclosing government land, and also had to serve a term of imprisonment. We intend to get a direct letter om this government agent as soon as possible, to be published in the Headlight. When Uncle Sam takes a hand—let the grafters beware.

W. J. Smith is still seriously ill.

Fire at Pacific University.

Pacific University sustained a severe loss Sunday in the total destruction by fire of Herrick Hall, the young women's dormitory and general boarding hall. The building was one of the finest upon the campus, and the loss is about $20,000, although the original cost was only $14,000. Of this amount, approximately one-half is covered with insurance.

The fire originated in the morning soon after 11 o'clock, while most of the inmates were attending services in the various churches. The flames were discovered by the matron, Miss Olivia Haskell, who gave the alarm. Within three hours after the conflagration started the beautiful four-story dormitory was reduced to a pile of smoldering embers, and is only due to the efficient work of the fire, dapartments of both Forest Grove and Hillsboro, and citizens and students that the three other college buildings did not meet the same fate.

Reducing Milk to a Powder.

The preparation of desiccated milk promises to become an important feature of the dairy industry in the future, says a Washington correspondent. The process, in brief, is to dry the milk, reducing it to powder, which will keep indefinitely and which can be reconverted into liquid at any time by the addition of hot water. The best desiccating machinery is manufactured in the United States, but the process has not been used much in this country and has thus far found its chief practical application in Europe and South America. Ordinary milk contains approximately 85.5 parts of water to 14.5 parts of solids. Poor milk contains 87.5 parts of water and only 12.5 parts of nutritive elements. Thus there are always about seven pounds of water to be transported and taken care of in milk for each pound of good material actually contained. The desiccating process not only removes this excess of weight and bulk, but destroys all disease germs and organisms which cause milk to sour and spoil. The desiccating is done by a machine weighing about two tons, which includes two steel cylinders 5 feet in length by 30 inches in diameter, so adjusted that their faces are about one-sixteenth of an inch apart and revolve in opposite directions. These cylinders are heated by steam to a temperature of about 240 degrees Fahrenheit. Into the space between the rollers the milk is fed in the form of jets from a perforated supply tube at a rate of from 80 to 100 gallons per hour. It is taken up by adhesion to the heated surface, and appears in a thin, almost invisible film of dried milk, having about the thickness of heavy paper, which is shaven or pealed off from the steel surface by a knife or scraper. This dried milk falls into a receptacle, is passed through a coarse sieve, and becomes the completed product, or flour milk, containing butter, casein, milk sugar, and phosphates in their exact proportions as provided by the liquid milk. One gallon of full rich milk will yield a pound and a quarter of the powder, and a mixture of equal parts of full milk and skimmed milk will yield a little over a pound to the gallon. The product is a white, dry, homogenous flour or powder, having about one-seventh of the weight of the liquid milk from which it was condensed, and capable of being put up in tin cans, transported to any distance by sea or land, preserved indefinitely, and ready for use at any moment, either by mixing with flour in the preparation of many forms of cooking, with ground materials, in the manufacture of cocoa and chocolates or of being reconverted into liquid milk by simply dissolving in water at a temperature of 170 degrees Fahrenheit.

The same process, with slight modifications, may be applied to the desiccation of eggs.

IT DRAWS HARD

On a woman's vitality to do work for which she is unfitted, and we wonder how some of the women of our land live through a single season of pleasure or dissipation.

They will say with tears in their eyes, when they mention the subject at all, "it is a hard pull," that with pain, weakness and weariness they are "almost dragged out." Many, in this condition, resort to alcoholic stimulants and "invigorants," the after effects of which are very injurious.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, forty years, ago found that women were being mistreated through ignorance or carelessness and determined to devote his life and energies to their relief.

Having found the cause of their suffering, he next sought for the means of relief, and found in Nature's laboratory—the earth, certain roots which had remarkable and valuable medicinal virtues for the cure of these ailments.

Using chemically pure glycerine, of proper strength instead of alcohol, he prepared extracts of these, and the result was so satisfactory that the combination became his "Favorite Prescription." The roots used are: Lady's Slipper root, Black Cohosh root, Unicorn root, Blue Cohosh root and Golden Seal root. The world knows it as DR. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION, which has the wonderful and unparalleled record of a half-million of cures in the last forty years.

Write to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for advice, given without charge.

"I am glad to be able to testify as to the merits of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for the many ills that women suffer with," writes Miss Gertrude Mitchell (President Young Ladies' Christian Endeavor Society), 43 Columbia Street, E., Detroit, Mich. "After many years of suffering and pain, I took your medicine, and in a short time began to feel stronger, became more regular and didn't have the bearing-down pains which had been my lot for so long. Shall never cease to be very grateful that it was brought to my notice. I have no pains, and feel much stronger generally."

KALE, the "Thousand-Headed Cabbage."

Excellent Forage Plant for Dairy Cows---Heavy Yielder and Suitable for Tillamook County.

Oregon Agricultural College,
Corvallis, Or., March 8, 1906.

MR. FRED C. BAKER,
Editor Tillamook Headlight.

DEAR SIR,—We are sending out a little Kale seed for co-operative work in the Coast Counties. This is commonly known as "thousand-headed cabbage," and is an excellent forage plant for dairy cows. It should do remarkably well on the rich bottom soils of Tillamook County. I am sending you half a dozen packages of this seed, which kindly distribute amongst some of your progressive farmers so as to have this plant introduced in your section. Sow similar to cabbage on rich soil as early as practicable, and the first of June or July transplant on well prepared ground, the richer the better. The plants should be placed two feet apart, and cultivated similar to corn. The crop will be ready to harvest in late fall and should keep green all winter in your section. It is a heavy yielder, sometimes yielding as high as 50 tons per acre, hence you will see that it furnishes a great deal of feed.

Very truly yours,
JAMES WITHYCOMBE.

Those who want to experiment with this seed can get a small amount of it at the Headlight office, as we have placed the seed so kindly sent us by Dr. Withycombe into about 50 packages.—ED.
