H. M. Calk for United States senator. Everybody must readily admit that he is a good man.

The only persons who haven't any kick coming when the east wind blows are the doctors.

This is no time to "beef" about the city taxes being excessive. When the taxpayers voted to put a mortgage on their property was the proper time to "beef."

The democratic war horses are going to hold a meeting on Saturday, presumably for the purpose of "inviting" persons to run for office and fixing up their usual "slate," as the democrats all over the state are doing to get around the direct primary law.

It seems to be the prevailing opinion that it would not be the proper thing for the county court, just as it is going out of office, to lease the Nestucca toll roads, and in that way tie the hands of the succeeding county courts, no matter what conditions the county may be in six months or one year from now.

Dr. James Withycombe, who is the farmer's candidate for governor, is, to use a well known phrase, "padding his own canoe." And it will certainly land him the nomination, for when farmers unite or any candidate the other fellows have a hard time of it. Well, Dr. Withycombe is a good man for the position, and the farmers have reason to be proud of their candidate and who is so closely identified with the farming interests.

Some of the Socialists say the Headlight man is advocating some of their principles when he recommended that the toll road question be submitted to a vote of the people. We don't care one iota whether it is a Socialist or any other party's principle, it's a good one, anyway. Suppose, for instance, a thousand new settlers came into the county this year as a result of opening up the county increase in taxes will go a long way in fixing up the Nestucca toll roads.

It looks as though Huston and Hawley are trying to bluff Walter L. Toozie, but the game won't work, for Toozie is too much for them. We feel, however, kind of sorry to see Hawley backed by the Salem ring, for having made a financial fizzle of the Salem university, and is now only a teacher in that institution, great will be his humiliation and the ring that is at the back of him after the votes are counted. It doesn't need much argument to convince one that Toozie is a long way ahead of Huston and Hawley for congressman.

The right and the proper way to settle the toll road question is by a vote of the people. The people have a right to be heard, and as a vote can be taken at either the primary or general election without any extra cost to the county, there is no reason why it should not be submitted to a popular vote, unless it is that the county court doesn't want it voted upon. Here is another opportunity to take a direct vote upon a question that is of vast importance to Tillamook county, in which every voter should be given an opportunity to vote for or against toll roads.

Tillamook county hires persons to collect delinquent taxes, and they expect to make something out of it—for doing the work of the sheriff; the county hires persons to attend to its law business, and they expect to make something out of it—for doing the work of the district attorney; the county leases to private parties some of the roads, and they expect to make something out of it—for doing work which the court ought to attend to. There are enough officials to attend to the business of the county and who are drawing big enough salaries without having to pay for this additional help.

Tillamook county ranks as the leading butter producing county in Oregon, and perhaps in the United States, according to the reports of butter and cheese manufacturers for 1905, received by the state food and dairy commissioner, J. W. Bailey. In that county the average price of butter fat converted into cheese last year was something more than 30c a pound.—News Reporter.

How misleading. Tillamook county last year manufactured comparatively but little butter and it was some difficulty in getting enough for the home trade, for the reason that without exception the 50 or more factories were turning out cheese because there was more money in manufacturing cheese than in butter. Last year was a banner year for Tillamook county in the amount of cheese manufactured, and Commissioner Bailey will substantiate our statement if his reports are correct.

Always Keeps Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in His House.

"We would not be without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is kept on hand continually in our home," says W. W. Kearney, editor of the Independent, Lowry City, Mo. That is just what every family should do. When kept at hand ready for instant use, a cold may be checked at the outset and cured in much less time than after it has been settled in the system. This remedy is also without a peer for croup in children, and will prevent the attack when given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough appears, which can only be done when the remedy is kept at hand. BOULDER CREEK.

H. L. Jensen went to Tillamook Monday, taking Mrs. N. J. Myers and children home and Mrs. Tompkins to embark on the Elmore for Astoria.

Henry Crenshaw came out from Tillamook Sunday to get the remains of Mr. Wm. Tompkins. He started back to town with the corpse about six o'clock Sunday evening, and was accompanied by J. W. Tompkins.

Messrs. Borneman and Moore went to Tillamook Friday, returning Sunday. Marion A. Cady, of Blaine, and H. A. Chopard, of Boulder, joined forces and went to the city last Tuesday and back Wednesday.

A good meeting is reported at Blaine, and several conversions have been made. Revs. Waymire and Ginn went to Beaver Sunday.

After the beautiful, warm, spring-like weather we have been enjoying the present cold blustery weather comes with an added severity.

The friends of Mrs. Lizzie Bodyfelt in this vicinity regret her early death very much. She was a very lovable young lady, and her loss will be deeply felt by all her friends.

The following poem by Ella Wheeler Wilcox was taken from the People's Home Journal, and we would be pleased if the editor could find room for it in the items.

HEAVEN.

I doubt not, but to every mind of mortal That Heaven, in a different form, appears. And every one, who hopes to pass the portal, Where God shall wipe away all bitter tears.

Seeth the mansion, in a separate guise, And there are many Heavens, to many eyes.

To me, it seems a world where all the sweetness, That I have in my wildest dreams conceived; The subtle beauty and the rare completeness,

That I have missed, in life, and missing, grieved; The things that I have sought for, all my life, And if I found, found mixed with pain and strife.

That rest, that mortal mind can never measure That peace, that we can never understand; The keen delights, that fill the soul with pleasure,

These, these I deem; are what that blessed land, Lying beyond the pearly gates doth hold— Where the broad streets are paved with shining gold.

A total putting off of care and sorrow, As we put by old garments. Rest, so deep, That 'tis not marred by thoughts of the tomorrow.

Or pined by tears, for never any weep. The love, unchangeable, unselfish, strong— That I have craved, with heart and soul so long.

All these, I hope, in that one vast Forever, Of which we dream, nor mortal eye hath seen, When death's pale craft shall bear me o'er the river,

To find in waiting, on the shores of green, And in that heaven, how my soul shall raise, Unceasing songs of gratitude and praise.

The Armourers deny that they "poison the public mind." However, it is now incumbent upon them to show that they have not poisoned their meat by using preservatives. In other words, it was our bodies rather than our minds that these famous packers were supposed to have designs against.

The secretary of the Missouri Board of Agriculture says that if two kernels were added to each ear of corn grown in his State last year, it would amount to adding $200,000 to the value of the Missouri corn crop. Here we see how enormous wealth may be produced in the corn belt without increasing the acreage. It consists simply in improvement of the tillage and careful selection of the seed, by which means the desired results are obtained, in larger ears and more grains.

"Man, What Is He?" Man that is born of woman is small potatoes and few in the hill. In infancy he is full of colic and soothing syrup, and in age he is full of cuss words and rheumatism.

In wrath his mother takes him across her knee and sweetens his life with her slipper, and when he is grown man the sheriff pursueth him through alleys all the days of his life.

He spendeth like a green bay tree. He getteth into office and his friends cling to him like flies to a molasses barrel.

He swelleth with vanity. He cutteth ice for a time, but is hewn up at the next convention and cast into the salt box and his name is Dennis.

Out of office, out of friends; he soon goeth busted and lieth down in the cow pastures. He dieth out in the world and goeth were it is warm enough with out clothes, and the last end of man is worse than the first.—Exchange.

The oleo people are trying to get a bill through Congress which would open up the old fight won by farmers and dairymen after years of struggle which resulted in the passage of the present law, which taxes all oleomargarine colored to imitate butter.

It would be well for all of our friends to keep an eye on this little joker which a prominent Ohio Congressman is trying to slip through the House of Representatives.

The impression one gets from the course of the proposed pure food legislation in the Senate is that the chief opposition to it is inspired by the adulterators of foods, and those who print lies in the labels concerning the real character of the foods they place on the market. The pure food bill would interfere, no doubt, with their rascally business. Instead of labeling a certain article of merchandise "olive oil," for example, they would be required to label it cottonseed oil. Much of the "honey" now offered for sale would have to be called glucose. Some of the "jams" and "jellies" now spread abroad would need to be called hewn knobs what.

Farmers have no objection to any dealer selling oleo, but they insist that he should label it oleo and not butter. There would be a terrible commotion among druggists, so called food manufacturers and many other people if the law should insist that they describe on the labels all the ingredients which enter into their compounds.

STATUES HAVE SMALLPOX.

Epidemic of Disease Among Bronze Figures in Athens—How They Are Affected.

A most extraordinary disease, extremely infectious and resembling smallpox among human beings, has broken out among the statues in the Egyptian room of the National museum here, says an Athens (Greece) correspondent of the New York Times. A few days ago the distinguished politician and archaeologist, Mr. Stephanos Skouloudes, noticed some strange green marks on one of the bronze statues of the famous Egyptian collection presented to the museum in 1881 by Mr. Demetrios, of Alexandria. He at once communicated his discovery to the curator, who called in experts to examine the statue in question. They pronounced the marks to be due to an infectious complaint, to which bronze is liable, and which gradually spreads from the surface of the object affected to the inside, till the whole crumbles away into dust. The other bronze statues in the same room were then inspected, with the result that they were all found to be more or less tainted with the disease, while five of them had taken it in a most aggravated form. These five are the statues of Anta, the goddess of war; of Maout, wife of Jupiter Ammon; of Isis, and two statues of Osiris, one of them of the greatest value. Worse than that, the infection has spread to the Mycenaean room, which contains the results of the late Dr. Schliemann's excavations in 1876. There a dagger, which was found in the fourth and finest of the six tombs, has fallen a victim to the malady. Altogether about fifty statues are badly affected, and the loss will be enormous unless the plague can be stayed. A leading Athenian chemist pronounces the cause of the malady to be the presence of salt in the bronze of which the statues are made, and his remedy is to extract it by means of baths. Mr. Momphe-matos, the minister under whose department the museum comes, is taking steps to save the bronzes.

SEEING FOOTBALL BY PROXY.

Blind Enthusiast in England Who Never Misses a Match When He Can Get There.

Blind since he was four years old, a well-known Blackburn (England) man is a self-taught musician, playing the piano and other instruments by ear and earning his living by that accomplishment. Many blind people, however, are not so fortunate as Mike, says Golden Penny. His penchant is not only for music, but for football. If you ask him on a Saturday night where he has been in the afternoon, he will invariably tell you he has been to "see" a football match. A blind man going to see a football match—Nonsense! But it is not nonsense. Mike is so fond of football—especially of his own pet team, the Blackburn Rovers—that he never misses a match if he can possibly help it in the season, frequently traveling with the team to matches out of town—not for the purpose of playing music for coppers, as some may suppose; no, he goes purely and simply to "see the game."

True, he sees it by proxy. He stands among the crowd, and as the shouts go up and the remarks and criticisms of those about him are expressed, he can see the game as keenly as any man. When time is called he will tell you more about the details of the match than anyone else. Mike is proud of the fact that he has actually missed seeing a match on a Saturday afternoon for the last 20 years—to say nothing of extra games on other days.

Significant Answers.

Prof. Aegidi, who was for many years chief of the press bureau, under Prince Bismarck, has lately published a reminiscence of the great chancellor, which shows how alert he was in drawing conclusions. Before the outbreak of the Franco-Prussian war the tsar was with King William at Ems. They were together one evening, and Bismarck was standing at the other end of the room anxiously watching the tsar, whose more or less friendly attitude of great importance. Suddenly the Russian emperor's big dog, which had been lying silent under his master's chair, rose, prowled about the room, stopped before Bismarck, looked at him, snarled his tail affectionately and licked the hard he held out toward it. The tsar, who had attentively watched its movements, called out to Bismarck: "You see the dog knows his master's friends." Bismarck, who told Aegidi this story, added: "I felt relieved. That was an historical moment for our policy." It proved to him that he had, at least, not to count on Russia's opposition in the coming conflict.—Youth's Companion.

In pursuance of the Primary Law, I take this opportunity to announce myself as a candidate for nomination at the Republican Primaries for the office of County Judge.

If nominated and elected I shall give the County an economical administration and do all that is possible to relieve our bottled up condition. I favor the continued improvement of our Public highways and river crossings and will lose no opportunity to advertise the county where it will prove of advantage.

I respectfully solicit the support of every voter interested in the welfare of the County. J. S. STEPHENS.
