Looking Backward and Forward.

There are millions of citizens who remember vividly the events of fifty years ago, when the Republican party was born. Trouble was in the air. A cloud much larger than a man's hand was growing along the horizon. Civil strife carried to its last arbitrament was feared, and yet the hope was general that it would be averted. The most aggressive element was in the south and a later generation cannot realize the cool audacity and taunting words with which it pushed a fixed purpose. Yet the great majority of the people believed that some settlement could be reached short of war. The basis of the Republican party was nationality. Its mission was to save the union of states, to preserve the country whose founders certainly intended that it should be a nation, and not a conditional arrangement that might resolve itself into several nations. In spite of the old charge of sectionalism, the Republican party is the least sectional, the most national, organization the country has ever known. It directed the war to prevent national division. Its policies have been national. Only where sectional exclusiveness and prejudice prevail is it shut out. Let the national spirit enter such places, and Republican ideas must at once be predominant.

The first large experience of the Republican party was defeat in a national election. It was a contest marked by immense vigor and spirit in a young party, but the scale was turned in favor of the Democrats by a few northern states that, at a later period, added their strength to the new political force. A few months sufficed to show that Republicanism was marching on and the sentiment of southern defiance increased in even greater proportion. At last the flag of the United States was fired on and hauled down at the demand of an enemy. It is needless to describe again the tidal wave of wrath that swept over the loyal states. The sense of nationality had been rudely assailed and overborne, the flag humbled, and the property of the country seized. A like provocation to-day would cause a similar thrill of overpowering feeling and demand for vindication. Upon the Republican party fell the duty of piloting the government in its struggle for nationality. It fought rebellious sectionalism in the states to its downfall on the field of battle, and by its principles has ever been true to the cause of the Union, one and indivisible.

As an incident of the war for the Union slavery was swept away. It has since been abolished by all civilized nations. What the United States has become as a national entity can be seen by a glance at the map stretching nearly half way around the earth, and at the summaries of the commerce and wealth of the leading countries. Under Republican guidance the nation was first made the chief united American power, and then a world power. Its national achievements include the homestead law, the protection of American industries, the transcontinental railroads, expansion, a sound currency the best credit, and many other features of wise development that the people enjoy in common, and which form the groundwork of their great destiny. The Republican party is in the first stages of its career. It sprang into existence because the conscience of the people was aroused. It represents their conscience now, and will live as long as it is faithful to its origin. Other parties may have consciences, but some have only appetite.—Globe Democrat.

During its fifty years of existence the Republican party has been the national builder, a first-class recommendation for the next half century.

Canada's 20-foot Georgia bay canal, which will soon be under construction, will cost $100,000,000, and the Dominion has already spent that much on its other canals. A corresponding outlay in the United States, according to population, would exceed $3,000,000,000.

A dispatch about an artillery fight in Guatemala states that "after a fearful bombardment of six hours" none of the revolutionists was injured. War is not always what Gen. Sherman said, but in the exceptions it may be described as a Hades of a war.

Arizona and New Mexico are to be permitted to express their preferences in the matter of statehood by a popular vote, with the additional privilege, it may be presumed, of saying what they please about the conduct of Oklahoma's respondent.

Some of the geographers are asking if the earth is shaped like a pear. The trusts think it looks more like a plum.

Iowa is destined to learn, if not already aware of the fact, that there is no such thing as a free-trade Republican.

When the United States gets down to its new methods of meat inspection it will be necessary to look abroad for the had lands.

San Francisco has converted cooking in the streets into a science, and feels sorry for a newcomer who "ain't got nothin' but money."

The establishment of creameries has done much to put the dairy business on a staple and profitable basis, as well as to provide consumers with a uniform quality of good butter. The introduction of the hand separator, by enabling the farmer to feed skim milk in prime condition and minimizing transportation expense, has also done much for the business. This has not been without a drawback, however, in that the separated cream is not always kept under proper conditions, and that delivered to the creameries differs greatly in quality. When all are paid the same rate for butter fat there is no incentive to careful preservation of the cream. At the experiment station, Manhattan, Ky., a system of grading cream was adopted about two years ago, the prices paid varying with the quality of the cream. This has resulted in great improvement in the cream delivered and enables the butter maker to do his part better.

The German Coach Horse.

The German Coach horse is today the all-purpose horse of Germany and is employed in draft work of all kinds as well as to till the soil. He is also fit to parade and draw the commodious carriages with strength and style at a jaunty cheerful road gait. The demand for this breed of horses has gradually increased from year to year, as a result of their merit, up to the present hour, and it is no uncommon thing to meet large numbers of buyers in the coach horse districts of Germany, from France, Italy, Switzerland, Belgium, England, Russia and North and South America, which are taken to these various countries to improve breeding stock. The German coach horse has been regularly and thoroughly bred in one line for so many ages that he is enabled to become a predominant and most impressive sire, wherever used, all kinds of mares; hence it is an easy matter to go into a community where a German coach stallion has been in stud and readily procure perfectly patched teams of a quality and size that always command large prices for carriage and coach service. The farmer who breeds this class of stock can rear and develop it without being compelled to incur any expense outside of feed and the ordinary care such as would be required in the rearing of the various draft breeds. They run in height from 16 to 16 1/2 hands high and weighing from 1350 to 1650 pounds. They mature very young and are fit for work at two years old, and for breeding purposes they are horses that produce all about one size, all bark, deep color. No horse can stand for service in Germany unless he either belongs to the government or has a certificate of soundness, breeding and individual appearance issued by an examining government committee. The owner of a commissioned stallion is liable to prosecution if he has in the same stable a non-commissioned stallion, although he may be simply used for farm work. When a horse has such a certificate he may stand for service anywhere in the empire. The German coach horse being so purely and strongly bred, reproduce themselves with wonderful certainty, and in the colt you see almost the image of his sire. This is not surprising when we know these horses have been so carefully bred in one line by the German government for several hundred years, and are probably the purest horses that live. The get of these horses is the horse that has long been wanted, and suits the eye of everyone, as he has the color, size, style, action and finish.—Rural Spirit. Snuffer and Sharp have brought into Tillamook one of the finest German coach stallions in the west. Margo is 4 years old, height 16 1/2 hands, weight 1580 pounds, color, beautiful bay, black points. Margo will make the season at Snuffer's barn. Terms made known on application.

Unknown Friends.

There are many people who have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with splendid results, but who are unknown because they have hesitated about giving a testimonial of their experience for publication. These people, however, are none the less friends of this remedy. They have done much towards making it a household word by their personal recommendations to friends and neighbors. It is a good medicine to have in the home and is widely known for its cures of diarrhoea and all forms of bowel trouble. For sale by Chas. I. Clough's Drug Store.

SPRUCE.

The Wooley children, who have been quite sick for the past week or two, with the measles, are improving slowly. Hans Jensen, of Blaine, made a trip to town this week.

Miss Edie Holt and Mrs. Hoskins, of Nehalem, passed through here Tuesday on their way to the valley.

Barn raisings seem to be the chief amusements now a days.

Mr. Gray had the misfortune Friday to cut one of his fingers off. He went to town the same day to have it dressed.

Mr. Wooley went to the city Saturday. The warm weather makes the people sweat around a little, but I guess they can stand a little sunshine.

Lee Lyster took a load of cheese to town Saturday.

Mr. Gina and son, of Beaver, went to the city Friday.

Uran Wallace helped to drive a bunch of cattle to Nehalem this week.

We are informed that Miss Edie Holt will teach the Hemlock school next winter.

LONG PRAIRIE.

Several men (nine in number) and as many hounds were chasing a panther through our woods last week. The panther killed and ate a hog in Mike Alpanalp's hog-pen while he and his men were milking Monday morning. Mr. Alpanalp is reported to have said that he thought the panther would measure 10 feet.

J. F. Martin has the foundations laid for a fine new two-story house.

At our annual school meeting Monday, Thos. J. Bibby was elected clerk to succeed John Sheets and H. Olds was elected director to succeed himself.

The ladies' aid, of this prairie, gave a strawberry social at the school house Saturday night with an interesting program, consisting of recitations. The social was well attended.

Captain Wetheral was in our neighborhood in the interests of the Oil Company one day last week.

There was a dance given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Childers last Saturday night, a very jolly time was spent.

Tom Childers is working for J. F. Martin, in place of the renter who has given up the place.

Mrs. M. Bays, of Fairview, who has been taking care of her mother, was taken very seriously ill with blood-poison in her face and had to return home. At one time her life was almost despaired of, but thanks to the good care of Dr. and Mrs. Mills, is about well at the present writing.
