NEHALEM.

The Gerald C came in on the 21st with a load of cans for the cannery. She loaded up with canned salmon, but is unable to get out on account of heavy weather.

Miss McAlpin was called home to Independence Friday, having received the sad message of her father's death.

Mrs. C. C. Clark is in from Seaside to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Larsen.

The run of fish seems to be about over, as recent catches are very light.

Geo. Ludtke started to Astoria with beef cattle Monday.

Not being able to get the material for the South fork bridge in from Astoria, Walt. Woods, the contractor, will, perhaps, be unable to finish the bridge this fall. The work that he has done will be destroyed by high water during the water. The people are without the bridge and the play goes on.

Public Ownership Troubles.

No less a calamity than secessions is threatened in the commonwealth of Australia as an incidental result of the government ownership of railroads. Six years ago the various Australian states, whose combined population of 4,000,000 is but little larger than that of the State of Missouri, entered into a federation and placed themselves under one general department and financial management. In all the Australian states the railroads are owned by the Government and most of the federation debt of $1,200,000,000 is due to railroad construction. The least developed of the states is Western Australia, which has the great area of 975,920 square miles, with a population of only 184,124. Western Australia's chief industry is gold mining, its annual gold yield amounting to $45,000,000. Its share of the recent railroad debt of the commonwealth is $49 000,000, but it clamors for a through transcontinental railroad to open up its vast stretches of parched plaines. The other states of the federation are unwilling to add hundreds of millions to the present enormous railroad debt.

A few days ago, after the failure of their vast new railroad project in the federation parliment, the legislature of Western Australia adopted a resolution for the withdrawal of that state from the union. Thus the question of secession has become acute six years after the federation was formed, and the public ownership of railroads is the cause of the crisis. Each of the states consented to the federation and the union was approved by the general parliament. The constitution formed says nothing about any method by which the compact may be broken. So the secession crisis at hand is involved in mystery as to what action is likely to be taken. Railroad freight rates are much higher in Australia than in the United States, and the government barely makes both ends meet in exclusively operation its great railroad system and fixing rates. This is an instructive example, and decidedly not encouraging to those who are backing the government ownership of railroads.

Saving Souls.

TO THE EDITOR TILLAMOOK HEADLIGHT.

It is getting about the time of year for the Lord, or rather the devil, to get up an excitement about lost souls.

If I had not been through the mill I might look upon the great undertaking with awe and sublimity, but a bigger humbug was never though of by man. Instead of being the road to heaven if you follow it as persistantly as I did you will find that it ends in an insane asylum. Then it will be a question if you will have sense enough to abandon such nonsense and pursue the course God intended for men to enjoy.

The popular soul saving machine consists of the incautation of prayers for the lost, The singing of what might be a beautiful hymn, but the grinding of an old organ that was once tuned to temperament, but has lost all semblance of key which changes the voices from the singing to the hollowing quality that has the effect of making one nervous. Finally, the telling of tales of woe. The death bed scenes of horror stricken calamities, until one is completely overcome with hysterics. Now in this fool condition one is ready to yield to almost any method of salvation.

Now the fact of it is if we were ever lost, there must have been a time when it occurred. For 6000 years men have held that the world was lost by the first man Adam, from Adam to Abraham man sought redemption by trying to offer an acceptable sacrifice, from Abraham to John by circumcision, since then repentance has been in vogue. When a man comes to puberity God holds him accountable to the sin of commission and omission which no man can cope with. Jesus Christ is the Saviour, he came to save the lost, but his salvation is arbitrary on the terms of repentance. He never revealed himself to a man who was two dumb or devilish to repent.

The main object of the popular soul saver is to get up a holy fright to raise a storm on the ocean of life, instead of honestly trying to pursuade men to come to repentance before the living God, to enjoy the sense of self composure that satisfies the soul, that can be identified from a maniac.
