Several of Mrs. Allender's friends gave her a surprise party new year's day. It was her 84th birthday. She was surprised and much pleased, and received several presents. All had an enjoyable time and left wishing her many returns of the day.

Geo. W. Grayson is circulating another petition to have the North Yamhill mail leave at four instead of five o'clock in the evening. There were some objections raised to this when Mr. Grayson circulated a petition to this effect some time ago, which is now overcome.

D. Ellison was placed on trial again on Saturday for violating the local option law, the first jury having failed to agree, it standing five to one for conviction. In the second trial he was promptly found guilty and Justice White imposed a fine of $100. His attorneys appealed the case to the circuit court.

Mrs. Anna S. Wells was granted a divorce from Asa O. Wells because of cruel treatment, in the circuit court in Portland. Mrs. Wells said that her husband's conduct towards her had become unbearable and that he lately drove her out of the house. They were married in February, 1892.

J. L. Murphy was brought in from Trask on Wednesday. While coming across the mountains he was slow in keeping up with the mail carrier, and getting off his horse to fix the saddle, the animal got loose and went back to the barn. Murphy was left in the mountains all night and had his feet frozen, and next morning managed to make Pat's. He was brought to the Trask House, where his feet were looked after. He came in to work on the railroad, and was dressed in thin clothes.

W. J. Stephens, who runs the White Corner as a soft drink counter and billiard hall, and which again developed into a genuine gambling joint, was arrested on Saturday for gambling, and pleading guilty, Recorder Holden fined Stephens $50. He has been mixed up in a number of gambling scrapes and has been before the circuit court several times, and on one occasion in imposing a fine upon him Judge Burnett cautioned him that if ever he was brought before the circuit court again a severe sentence would be imposed.

The Sheriff of Tillamook County seems to take the oath he has taken more seriously than most Sheriffs do. Before his election to office he informed the people that if elected he would enforce the law against gambling and other vice. Last week he made a scoop and among the motley gang caught in his dragnet was a Jap whom they relieved of $250 and given 30 days free board for violating the local option law. A number of 'respectable' citizens were relieved of amounts ranging from $50 up.—North Yamhill Record.

WILL BUILD ROAD UP WILSON RIVER.

Lytle Plans Branch Line From Tillamook Thirty Miles Eastward.

The construction of a branch railroad from the Pacific Railway & Navigation Company's line at Tillamook up the Wilson River as far as McNamara's camp, a distance of 30 miles, was announced yesterday by President Lytle. This is an addition to the branches to different sections of the coast country already mapped out. A location party has been sent up the Wilson River and is now running preliminary lines.

The date of commencing work on this part of the P. R. & N. cannot yet be announced, as the whole forces are engaged in building the main line westward from Buxton to Tillamook. With the completion of the main line, attention will be turned to the different branches.

The primary purpose of a road up the Wilson River will be to haul out the vast bodies of standing timber on both sides of the stream. The forests are extensive and of excellent quality. There is sufficient timber in the Wilson River valley to keep a rail-road busy for years hauling out saw-logs. The country is mountainous at a distance from Tillamook Bay, but there is a large portion of it that will make splendid dairy land when logged off. Together with the remainder of the coast country it is adapted for grass and dairy products. By following the river all the way a feasible grade can be secured.

The P. R. & N. Company, as predicted when the Hammond line made Tillamook its objective point, has a warm fight on hands for rights away between Garibaldi and Tillamook. The former company has asked for a permanent restraining order from the courts to prevent the Astoria & Columbia River Railroad from encroaching on its survey between the two points, and this suit will be heard today before Judge Galloway at McMinnville.

It is contended by the P. R. & N. that its line has been definitely located between the two points and the surveys marked, and that the rival road now has its surveying crew on the ground, who are making locations by taking the numbers from the Lytle stakes. For a portion of the distance along the shore of Tillamook Bay there is said to be room for two parallel railroads, while in other places there is room for but one. The warfare between Lytle and Hammond on this strip of territory promises to be as keen as that waged on the north bank of the Columbia between Hill and Harriman.

If reports are to be believed Harriman is also involved in this struggle for favorable locations. The Wallstreet wizard has been credited at different times with being behind each of the two projects. The latest rumor was to the effect that A. & C. has been purchased by the Harriman interests, but this authoritatively denied, and a sworn affidavit to meet that effect, by General Manager Talbot, will be submitted in court today at the hearing of the injunction suit.

The Lytle forces have displayed much activity during the past few months, despite the most adverse weather conditions and the fact that the construction work is being done in the mountains where storms are very heavy. Twenty miles of road has been constructed west from Hillsboro and the line is now in operation. Terminals and yards have been located at the Tillamook end, and locations established from that point to six miles north of Garibaldi and along the Salmon Berry and Nehalem Rivers. A distance of 42 miles west of Hillsboro has been permanently located. Seven locating parties are now in the field closing up the gaps.—Oregonian.
