 Rev. P. R. Burnett had a large congregation at the union temperance meeting at the Christian church on Sunday evening. He preached a good sermon, the gist of which was in his advice not to cultivate the drink habit. Since these monthly meetings have started, good interest has been taken in them, showing to some extent there is still a strong anti-saloon sentiment in the county, but it is among the dairymen where the anti-saloon sentiment is strongest in Tillamook. *
 A wedding took place on Wednesday, Feb. 27th, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Kennedy, in the south part of the county. The contracting parties were Mr. Edwin I. Webb and Miss Mabel Hushbeck, and the Rev. A. E. Wingert, pastor of the Presbyterian church, tied the knot that binds. The bride is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Kenady. The marriage, which was a pretty one, was witnessed by relatives of the contracting parties. The bride's wedding dress was white brillantine, trimmed with silk lace and braid. It is predicted that this union will be a happy one, for Mr. and Mrs. Webb are highly respected and their friends, in extending to them their congratulations, wish them every happiness in their married life affords. *

What might have been a fatal burning accident was prevented on Wednesday by the timely arrival of P. W. Christensen. Agness Coates, the youngest daughter of Thos. Coates, with several other children, made a bonfire in the yard at the back of the house where they have a play house. Her clothes caught fire and began to burn fiercely. The children screamed, which attracted the attention of Mr. Christensen, who was working on his house about a block away. The child ran to the house, and just as she was about to enter Christensen caught her, and as the flames were going up all round her head, he turned her over and smothered the flames with his hands, which prevented the child from being burned to death and which probably also saved the house from catching fire. Both of Christensen's hands are badly burned, but fortunately for the child, she escaped with only slight burns.

City Council Meeting.

A city council was held on Monday evening, with Mayor Botts in the chair and Councilmen W. C. King, J. P. Allen, A. T. White and J. W. Bowers were present. Bills allowed were: Tillamook water works $75.00 King & Mills, merchandise 31.00 Gove and Jolly, building side walks 20.00 Tillamook Lumber Company, lumber 281.20 Jacob Schwitzer 45.40 Two petitions were read, one asking that the salary of E. Huntsinger be raised to $50 a month and the other asking that the city council appointed G. P. Zimmerman special policeman and night watchman at $50 a month. Attorney Johnson spoke in behalf of Huntsinger, but Mayor Botts did not appear to favor Huntsinger, as his bondsmen had both violated the law. Quite a number of persons had signed both petitions. As there was not a full meeting, Councilman King moved that the matter be left over to the next meeting, which carried, and it was decided that the council meet again next Monday evening.

Rev. D. L. Schrodle, pastor of the M. E. Church, in behalf of the Ministerial Association, asked that the city council enforce the curfew ordinance, and spoke of a number of persons under the age of 18 who were roaming about the city until late at night.

Rev. N. J. Crawford complained of the repeated annoyance he and his family were subjected to by boys ticktacking his house.

From the discussing which followed it was shown that the parents were not looking after their children as they should, and that they were becoming tough and causing considerable annoyance to the citizens, using filthy and disgusting language and are becoming immoral as well.

A warrant was ordered drawn for $80 to pay to P. Olds for block of land which is to be used as a gravel pit for the city.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF TILLAMOOK.

Was Opened for Business on Monday.

We beg to call your attention to the opening of the First National Bank of Tillamook, a government examined bank with a paid up capital of $25,000.

Checks on the Bank of C. & E. Thayer can be cashed at the First National Bank of Tillamook.

Timber Withdrawn From Entry.

By the action of President Roosevelt in adding 4,051,000 acres to Oregon's forest reserves, more than a quarter of the area of the state is now included in these reservations. The orders of the President are extensive and place within the reserves already created practically all of the surveyed unappropriated public lands of the state. The effects of this action is to withdraw from entry nearly all of the timber lands of the state, leaving some of the government land offices without any lands over which to officiate. With the addition to the forest reserve that has been ordered by the President, these reservations aggregated 16,551,723 acres of a total area in the state of about 59,520,000 acres. To include the timber land of the coast range, the President created the Tillamook reserve, containing 165,000 acres.

ARSTILL BREAKS JAIL.

Is Again Captured, Brought Back and Kept in a Cell.

J. L. Arstill, the bank check forger, who proved himself to be a genius in getting out of the county jail some months ago, and was recaptured by Sheriff Crenshaw at the point of a gun after a few minutes liberty, made his escape again from the jail early on Friday, this time by a ruse. The sheriff had kept Arstill closely confined, and as a result of this he feigned sickness. Dr. I. M. Smith, the county physician, was sent for, and he advised that Arstill be given more room to move about, so the sheriff allowed him the use of the corridor. Arstill made up his bed on Thursday to look as though he was sleeping in it, and threatened Frank Moore, the Jap prisoner, that if he said anything, he would murder him. When Sheriff Crenshaw, at supper time, went to lock the prisoners in the cage, he supposed that Arstill was in bed in his cell, but instead of this he was on top of the cage. Sheriff Crenshaw and Deputy Sheriff Holden went back to the office and worked until nearly eleven o'clock, being busy during the day collecting taxes and answering correspondence in the evening. Being in the corridor, Arstill knew that all that stopped him from gaining his liberty was the lock on the padded cell, for the transom through which he had made his escape before had not been cemented nor barred up as it should have been after the first escape. Arstill succeeded in picking this lock with wire and a piece of tin, and anticipating opposition, Arstill had previously wrenched a bar of iron from the table and wrapped a towel around it. This Arstill left on the rear steps of the court house as he made his exit. Going south, he stole a horse and saddle from Arthur Hunt's barn near the Trask bridge.

Early Friday morning Mr. Hunt came to town and informed the sheriff, and it was not long after Crenshaw found that it was his prisoner who had skidded. The sheriff immediately left and traced Arstill, who had left the horse he had stolen from Hunt the other side of Cloverdale. From there Arstill went to his uncle's, A. Arstill, where he obtained about $11, a razor and a valise of clothes which belonged to him. Then Arstill stole another horse from Mr. Jensen and made another dash to get out of the county that night. Crenshaw gave him a hot chase and overtook him, and when close behind Arstill Crenshaw's team shied, and during that time Arstill slipped from his horse and made for the woods, and it being dark at the time, it could not be ascertained in what direction he had gone. The horse Arstill had been riding was in a bog of foam when found. By overtaking Arstill and forcing him to take to the woods, gave the sheriff plenty of time to lay plans to capture him. Sunday Sheriff Crenshaw returned to the city, and that night Arstill turned up at Dolph, where he remained over night, and next morning started out on foot. He had only gone a few miles when he was stopped and arrested by the Indian police from the Indian reservation and was overtaken by Orlow Kellow. The sheriff was notified and in three hours and a half he was at Dolph and had Arstill in custody again, arriving with him in this city late at night. He was searched and $4.25 was found on him and a razor and a jack knife. Previews to the searching Arstill must have hid $5 behind a piece of paper on the wall, which the sheriff happened to discover and take away without Arstill knowing it. Later, when Arstill discovered that the $5 was gone, he yelled to the sheriff, "Here's $5."

There will be a basket social given at the Grange Hall Wednesday night, the proceeds to go toward improving the hall.

Every body in the neighborhood seeding and preparing to seed their ground for grass and clover.

Myron Trowbridge was fixing the road on the hill by the grave yard Monday and was down near Riverdale yesterday to see about some work there.

William Hughey was hauling freight Monday for the surveyors on the Wilson River.

Harris took up a load of workmen Monday morning. There is great demand for men—farmers, surveyors, loggers and every kind of labor.

Adolph Tinnerstet and wife have moved on Mr. Maynard's place and we hear they will take care of the old people as long as they live.

Mrs. Nelson will leave on the next boat to go to The Dalles in company with her daughter and son-in-law to prove up on her timber claim.

The Literary Society held their inter-entertainment last Saturday evening, there being a nice program. The debate was quite funny. It was: "Resolved, which would a man be the happiest with an Ugly Neat—" Well, I won't try to state it for fear I make a mistake. Anyway, it was decided in favor of the good looking woman.

HEMLOCK.

The Hemlock Ladies had quite a laugh over the piece the Editor put in the paper last week. Mr. Davidson, of Beaver, went to Tillamook Tuesday. B. Lyster is having quite a time with a boll on his lip. Oran Wallace is visiting home folks at present. Jennie Wooley, of Cloverdale, visited at home Saturday and Sunday. Ollie and Roy Woods, of Blaine, visited relatives in this neighborhood Saturday and Sunday, also attended the Literary Saturday night. Lee Lyster is plowing for Mr. Wallace. Dan Nickolus caught another wild cat Sunday. He seems to be having good luck trapping this winter.
