The Government Must Govern.

Probably there is something more than a mere flourish in the report that the president and other members of the government are to be active during the recess of congress in strengthening the hands of the national authority, so far as it can be done under existing law and in shaping policies in the same direction, which the president will urge on congress in his message at the opening of that body. Recent developments show the people that further work along that line may be needed. Says Representative Hepburn, the chairman of the house committee on interstate commerce: "The revelations in the examination of Mr. Harriman show that we did not go far enough in our railway rate regulation act. We must amend that law next winter so as to curb the dangerous activities of some of these railway chiefs." Says another republican congressman: "Messrs. Frick and Harriman, in the Reading railway deal, in which Frick is reported to have made many millions of dollars, are making more socialists and anarchists in a day than all the paid propagandists of those follies could do in a year."

Here are abuses which the law must curb, and the only sort of law which can deal with them is the law of the nation. State rights talk in this connection is irrelevant. The national government is not assailing any right of a state which the state owns and uses. On the border line between the authority of the states and that of the nation there are many powers which can be used by either, and sometimes, though in very rare instances, they are employed by both. The power which will have to be wielded to prevent the county from coming into subjection to some one or half a dozen magnates like Harriman can be wielded only by the national government. The railroad Napoleon laughs at state enactments and at the fulminations of state executives. He thinks that he is bigger than any state. Nor has he become altogether convinced yet that in a fight between him and the national government he would be outclassed. The government is arranging to bring this matter of the relative strength of Harriman and the federal authority to a test in the federal courts. Mr. Harriman's operations are furnishing not only an incentive for making this test just as quickly as a case can be shaped against him, but they are furnishing the points on which it can be shaped. And it will undoubtedly come early enough to show the president and congress, at the opening of that body next December, whether any additional legislation will be needed, and whether, if needed it would be better to add it to the Sherman act of 1890, the Elkins law of 1903, or the Hepburn law of 1906, or to put it into a distinct measure, framed out of the new and breaking new ground—Globe Democrat

The Famine in Russia.

The political unrest and revolutionary outbreaks in Russia have occupied so large a place in the news from that country that probably but few of the American people realize the terrible conditions of famine which prevail over an area said to be more than half as large as that of the United States. These conditions are being brought to the attention of the people of this country at the present time through the activity of the Russian philanthropist, Nicolas Shishkoff, who has recently come here for the purpose of arousing interest and securing relief for his suffering compatriots. To assist in this work a Russian famine relief committee has been organized in New York, with Bishop Henry C. Potter as president; Samuel J. Barrows, secretary; and the Morton Trust Company treasurer. The executive committee includes R. Fulton Cutting, George Foster Peabody, Isaac N. Seligman, Marcellus Hartley Dodge and a number of other well-known business and professional men. President Roosevelt has evinced his interest in the movement by sending his check for $100, together with a letter warmly commending the work and expressing the feeling that the American people should be interested in it, not only from the general promptings of compassion, but that they should feel an especial sympathy because of the fact that Russia has been a good friend to America in the past. Mr. Shishkoff says that the Russian government had raised the sum of 75,000,000 rubles, and is now raising a loan of 70,000,000 more for relief purposes, but even these immense sums will be wholly inadequate for the succor of all the distressed in the famine districts unless largely supplemented by outside help. He says that in most of the villages free kitchens have been established where the destitute peasants can get a bowl of hot soup and a piece of black bread once every twenty-four hours. Eight dollars will keep an adult alive until the next harvest, and $5 will help a child.

The famine conditions were brought about by the failure of the crops because of a terrible drought last year, no rain falling over a wide area for a period of three months. The destruction of the grass and grain crops of course caused a heavy fatality among the horses and cattle, of which it is estimated that fully 75 per cent will die before spring.

Wall streets are learning that its ups and downs and methods are not the basis of prosperity in the United States.

Mr. Cleveland's latest phrase is "sinosity of explanation." For every day purposes "Wriggling" will continue to do good service.

Mr. Harriman says he would build the P. & M. canal if he had the chance. But there is no proof that it could be done by the hydraulic system.

California should reflect that the United States has a constitutional right to make treaties, and that they would not be worth making if not respected.

Mr. Bryan's paper is ringing the changes on the two billion-dollar congress. Why not add that from start to finish it was also a surplus congress?

The Russian drama opened with the usual amount of rioting. It is entirely too early, of course, to expect a departure from precedent on the part of the revolutionists.

Brazil has ordered a battle ship of the Dreadnought pattern. Some of these days a leviathan so big will be produced that the world will call it a joke and let it go at that.

Railroad freight rates have been reduced 15 per cent in Iowa and Kansas. The saving may help the producer and dealer, but it is safe to say that none of it will ever reach the consumer.

Times has a great habit of evening things up. Should Mr. Roosevelt happen to land in the senate he will have an opportunity to tackle some of Senator Tullman's pet measures with a torked stick.

A Tammany leader says of a candidate: "I give him credit for being sincere, but he's the very last man to put at the head of the police force." It has been a long time since Tammany had any use for a quality like that.

Canada has enacted some Sunday blue laws, but omits the province of Quebec on account of its French customs and tastes. The dominion ought to explain it if it favors as well as practices local option in a question of this nature.

The account of each day's rioting and bomb throwing in the streets of St. Petersburg invariably ends with the statement that "order was finally restored." The question that perplexes the public is, when will order be permanently restored?

The bottom of Lake Superior is 738 feet below sea level, of Lake Michigan 283 feet, and of Lake Ontario 491 feet. Talk of depleting the lakes by ship canals is not likely to be heard except from those who want to block waterway improvement in the Mississippi valley.

A Wisconsin man proposes to go to the north pole in a balloon and return inside a week. If he can do this just before the international balloon races in St. Louis he will be the star of the occasion, unless the feat can be surpassed, which is not impossible in such a tournament.

An Iowa paper figures that the corn-stalk crop in that state can be worked up into 1,844,000,000 gallons of alcohol, or more than enough to supply all Iowa with power, light and heat. If the great expectations about denatured alcohol are realized the big brown jug will bring forth more wonders than Aladdin's lamp.

Do Not Crowd the Season.

The first warm days of spring bring with them a desire to get out and enjoy the exhilarating air and sunshine. Children that have been housed up all winter and brought out and you wonder where they all came from. The heavy winter clothing is thrown aside and many shed their flannels. Then a cold wave comes and people say that grip is epidemic. Colds at this season are even more dangerous than in mid-winter, as there is much more danger of pneumonia. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, however, and you will have nothing to fear. It always cures, and we have never known a cold to result in pneumonia when it was used. It is pleasant and safe to take. Children like it. For sale by Clough's Drug Store.

Do You Open Your Mouth

Like a young bird and gulp down whatever food or medicine may be offered you? Or, do you want to know something of the composition and character of that which you take into your stomach whether as food or medicine?

Most intelligent and sensible people now-a-days insist on knowing what they employ whether as food or as medicine. Dr. Pierce believes they have a perfect right to insist upon such knowledge. So he publishes, broadcast and on each bottle wrapper, what his medicines are made of and verifies it under oath. This he feels he can well afford to do because the more the ingredients of which his medicines are made are studied and understood the more will their superior curative virtues be appreciated.

For the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses, irregularities and derangements, giving rise to frequent headaches, back-ache, dragging-down pain or distress in lower abdominal or pelvic region, accompanied, oftentimes, with a debilitating, pelvic, catarrhal drain and kindred symptoms of weakness, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a most efficient remedy. It is equally effective in curing painful periods, in giving strength to nursing mothers and in preparing the system of the expectant mother for baby's coming, thus rendering childbirth safe and comparatively painless. The "Favorite Prescription" is a most potent, strengthening tonic to the general system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. It is also a soothing and invigorating nerve and cures nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, chorea or St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms attendant upon functional and organic diseases of the distinctly feminine organs.

A host of medical authorities of all the several schools of practice, recommend each of the several ingredients of which "Favorite Prescription" is made for the cure of the diseases for which it is claimed to be a cure. You may read what they say for yourself by sending a postal card request for a free booklet of extracts from the leading authorities, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post.

Rheumatic Pains Relieved.

Chamberlain's Pain Balm relieves rheumatic pains and makes sleep and rest possible, which is alone worth many times its cost. B. F. Crocker, Esq., now 84 years of age, and for twenty years justice of the Peace at Martinsburg, Iowa, says: "I am terribly afflicted with sciatic rheumatism in my left arm and right hip. I have used three bottles of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and it did me lots of good." For sale by Clough's Drug Store.

Gove's Independent Church.

TO THE EDITOR TILLAMOOK HEADLIGHT. A man is known by his God, a woman by her husband. We form our ideas of God through reading of the God of Creation of the Son of God and of the Holy Ghost.

We read that the demands of Gove were satisfied by the Son of God in our midst, and that the Holy Ghost is responsible for our guidance. The Jewish synagogue pointed to the living God through the priesthood. The Christian church to the son of God through the ministry. What we need is a church that points to the Holy Ghost, as we have nothing to do with the commandments of God, or the precepts of Jesus-Christ. We are living in the dispensation of the Holy Ghost. Christ said that it was necessary for him to go away that the Spirit might fulfil its office. Just as the Jewish synagogue stood as a monument for God the Father. Just as the Christian Church for the words of Christ. Just so does the Independent Church stand for the communion of the Holy Ghost. The only evidence we have that there is a God, or that there is a son of God is that we believe it. The man who does not believe it has no evidence at all, and is it not just a evident that God is a Spirit, and that he rules in spirit, as that there was a God that revealed his will to Moses, or that Christ existed and conveyed his ideas to men?

It requires mere intelligence to accept the guiding influence of the Holy Ghost than it did to be drove by the Jewish priesthood or the disciples of Christ. When Christ came they rejected him through a pretense of belief in God. When the Spirit came men rejected it as the guide by claiming loyalty to the precepts of Christ.

Paul said he preached Christ and him crucified, one of the men of old said he would delight himself in the law of the Lord, but I find peace in following what appears to me to be the guiding influence of God the Spirit.

It does not concern me what God told me 4000 years ago, or what Christ said 2000 years ago. What does God the Spirit strive to prompt me to do now. Men said "they are full of new wine," others said "they are mad." If I reverence the Spirit, won't I be accused of the same? Again would I abandon what gives me peace within for the foolish talk of men who are ill disposed and devilish. "God is a Spirit and He seeketh such to worship Him, who worship Him in Spirit and in truth."

The only God I ever had to do with is the Spirit God, Christ the son satisfied God, the Father that leaves me to fight it out with God the Spirit.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is Both Agreeable and Effective.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has no superior for coughs, colds and croup, and the fact that it is pleasant to take and contains nothing in any way injurious has made it a favorite with mothers. Mr. W. S. Pelham, a merchant of Kirksville, Iowa, says: "For more than twenty years Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been my leading remedy for all throat troubles. It is especially successful in case of croup. Children like it and my customers who have used it will not take any other." For sale by Clough's Drug Store.
