Clamor Against the Children.

THE EDITOR TILLAMOOK HEADLIGHT. great many excellent people honquestion the expediency of carry the free schools beyond the eletary grades. But with one of the ns for this opinion we have a special ern. The assertion is repeated, that superior grades of our common s are a damage to great numbers hildren and youth. Several of our journals and magazines tell us. the superior side of the free school rning out shoals of boys and girls ated above their sphere-shiftless, unable to earn their own living; so on through the whole catalogue illies and vices that supposed to be special prerogative of the American chool graduate. Now we do not on that these good people believe they say; that is, believe it in the people come to rest upon an asserthey have repeated so often, and from so many quarters that they what everybody is saving must be But, just here, we declare this tion is not only untrue in fact, but lesale calumny against the most sing class of young people in this olic, the graduates from the second. schools, public and private. For ould be remembered that nineis of the graduates from our second. private schools receive their educaa free gift from their parents, go gh essentially the same course of and come out certainly in no way or to the graduates of the free in acquirements, character, or e for the future. So far from a failure, unable to take care of lves, the reprobate class of the ry, these young people are everythe most hopeful crow-l of Ameriouth. In every community they , in large proportion to their rs, the foremost young men in walk of life, the most hopeful women, whatever station they are to fill. There is no comparison them, as a class, and that other which is sometimes held up as e of the republic-the mass of energetic young people who enter orly taught, ignorant, pushing to nt by sheer force of native talent ick. Where one of the former ails, a dozen of the latter go to failures in business and in er because their original ability he training of a good education, eir morale goes to pieces in the conflict to which every ignorant taught youth is now doorded in tle of American life.

man who doubts, take the school of any American city, village, district for the past twentyrs, and ask a committee of lead ens, who are likely to know the hat has become of the boys and ho pushed on to the end of the irse of secondary instruction in munity and graduated with a ee of honor. Of course this is fair test. The higher schools, every family, every school, how. cellent, has its failures, for no discipline can give infallible of mastering that final of every child, a human will. d by every test that is applied to gs of the spirit, it will be found class we speak of, so far excells her in average outgrowth of ability and honorable success at the contrary assertion ceases uestion of fact and drops away limbo of campaign lies and assertion, repeated by honest the principle that " whatever ly is saying must be true." The se to this clamor against the could be easily accomplished in the hands of any re citizen who makes the asser. at of the graduates of the high of his neighborhood for the last years. The thing has been tried es, and it has never failed. It ill fail: for although our secondcation, public and private, is n to their fidelity in the imnt of their school-life. The salities of heart that carry a boys and girls honorably a high school or academical Oregon or Pennsylvania, will ubt any of these critics could t autumn, a great multitude of octween twelve and twenty, es from the superior schools of mmunities, apparently doing and it would be easy to say, his great army of shiftless gradthe schools. But a little further tion would show us that these have all been at work from six years in their school-life ; that I and should have, a few of rest and recreation before kle on the armor for the long mature life; that it is absurd to ask a boy of fout en to once from the schoolroom into orting work, or the girl gradu-

these young people do right to look around and use their best judgment and the advice of wise people before they choose their sphere of work; that haste in the beginning often makes waste and ruin in the ending; and that, given a reasonable time for intelligent young people to adjust themselves to the real work of life, these youth will be found doing their duty as well as reasonable people can demand. There was never an age and land where so much was expected of the young as in our land today. There was never a body of young people in this world who went to work with so much intelligence, character and earnestness as the class of youth of which we speak to-day. And we submit that it is high time that political, dignity of trained womanhood; that which we speak to-day. And we submit that it is Figh time that political, literary, ecclesiastical and journalistic magnates shut up this wholesale slander of American youth. It is well enough for some people to talk this nonsense to the "great unwashed," but intelligent men chould remember that they are talking to the thinking people of this country; disparaging the life.work of the whole superior class of teachers. and making assertions about the best class of American children that cannot be proved. The schoolmen and women are ready to take good advice on the improvement of education from any. body, especially from people influential and honored in all the walks of life. But the schoolmen and women, the teachers and parents, do insist that this absurd clamor against the young people shall stop. G. A. WALKER.

The church celebrates this day without any outward show of ceremony, in order to indicate that we are entirely unable to celebrate it worthly, because the great mystery of the Trinity entirely exceeds the power of man's comprehension. The truth of this was strikingly demonstrated to St. Augustine, the most learned among the fathers of the early church.
