One of the most attractive and best written announcements that has ap-peared in the Headlight for a long time is that of the Portland Business brush. After being delayed for several weeks in Portland owing to two steam shovels being destroyed in a railroad wreck, the barge Wallicut, with material for the Pacific Railway & Navigation Co.'s rail-road was towed from the Albina dock by the tug Samson to Tillamook and arrived here on Saturday, the tug Geo. R. Vosburg towing the barge across the bar and taking her to Bay City, where the material will be unloaded and con-atruction work will proceed rapidly. With the dwellers in Central Oregon, nothing of this kind is possible. They have lands of great richness and vast forests of fine timber. Their flocks and herds roam over thousands of square uiles of fine pasture. There are rich mines of precious metals, and great deposits of coal, but everything in that great empire is so far from a market that the country is forced to stand still and await the oming of the long-overdue transporta. coming of the long-overdue transporta-tion facilitias. Some of those dwellers have been writing only ten or fifteen years for a sight of the first locomo-tive. Others have spent almost their whole lives in that neglected and iso-lated tand of latest riches. Tillamook has sighted its first loco-motive and are long will be a suite of motive and ere long will have railroad communication with the rest of the world. This happy ending of a long wait would not have been possible had it depended on the efforts of the California transportation trinity— Stubba, Schwerin and Kruttschnitt. If it were in their power to keep that country bottled up as they are keeping country bottlei up, as they are keeping the rest of the state, the great forests lying between Portland and the new Coast outlet would be still unbroken. Fortunately, the Tillamook line is being pushed by a man who builds railroads with something more than promises. Oregon needs a few more Lytles and and the removal from power of Sch. werin, Stubbs and Kruttschnitt,-Ore. gonian.

A Big Fan.

A good deal of royal significance has been given to fans. They were symbols of authority in Mexico before the conquest. Queen Mary of England received on New Year's day in 1556 "7 fannes to keep the hete of the fyre.' Queen Elizabeth favored the custom that a fan was the only present a sov ereign could receive from a subject. Fans have not always been dainty trifles. Jean de Balzac, a French writer of the seventeenth century, wrote from Italy during the reign of Louis XIV. of the enormous fans in use there suspended from the celling and worked by four servants. He says, "I have a fan that makes wind enough in my cham-ber to wreck a ship."

The Stone Was Not Thrown. Genevieve's father occupied the pulpit. "Let him who is without sin among you be first to cast a stone," he chose for a text. Genevieve listened earnestly to the ensuing discourse. At the close of the service her mother tried in vain to dislodge her from the ministerial pew. Genevieve stood her ground till the rest of the congregation had passed out, then she looked up with a sigh of relief. "Well," she said, "I guess they've all sinned. Anyhow, nobody threw it."-New York Globe.

A Thorough Optimist. "Father," said the small boy, "what is an optimist?" "An optimist, my son, is a man who believes the weather bureau when its predictions are favorable and who congratulates himself on its unreliability when they are not."-Washington Star.

Its Hours. "This watch will last a lifetime," remarked the jeweler as he handed the watch to the customer. "Nonsense!" retorted the other. "Can't I see for myself that its bours are numbered?"
