Fishermen Caught in Muck Net

Frank C. Brown, deputy fish warden, swore out complaints against E. Baker, Dan Nichols, James Wilson, Chas. Pike, M. Nelson, H. Mitchell, M. Anderson, E. Jarvis and A. Shearer for fishing without license; also against the Elmore Packing Company for operating a cannery and packing salmon without a license. When advised of the fact, the men came to town without being arrested, and decided to fight the case, as it seems to have been the custom in previous years for the Master Fish Warden to send in a deputy to collect the licenses from the fishermen in this county, so they thought the same precedent would be followed this year, for they had no desire to evade paying their fishing license. It was decided to try one case, and that of James Wilson was set for Wednesday, it being stipulated between Deputy District Attorney Cooper and Attorney

Talmage, who appeared for the fishermen, that this case should govern all the other cases. It was a jury trial, and after it had heard the evidence, brought in a verdict of not guilty.

Two Serious Accidents.

H. A. Hubbert, foreman of the Tillamook Lumbering Company's saw mill in this city, met with a serious accident on Tuesday morning, which came near killing him. He was on a ladder fixing the pulleys over the saws, and the first indication that "he mill hands had of an accident having occurred was when they saw Hubbert stretched on the floor of the mill unconscious and with a frightful gash on the right side of the face, tearing open from the ear down to the chin, tearing out a number of the large teeth. No one appeared to know how the accident happened, and it remained a mystery until later in the day. A piece of iron, blood stained, was discovered embedded in one of the timbers of the saw mill. It seems that while Hubbert was up over the saw, the engine started up slowly at first, and no sooner had it gained its accustomed speed, when a flange of one of the pulleys broke, and as the piece of iron flew from the wheel it struck Hubbert a glancing blow and inflicted injuries we have already mentioned. Hubbert fell a distance of 10 ft., near some of the mill hands, who carried him to Dr. Smith's office, and it was some time afterwards before he regained consciousness. Dr. Smith attended to the unfortunate man's injuries, and later in the day he was moved to his home. Mr. Hubbert has been foreman of the saw mill about a month, taking Bert Stephens' place, and he came here from Forest Grove, being a married man with a wife and two children.

Another bad accident happened Wednesday morning which maimed Earl Ford for life. He was employed by the contractors of the Pacific Navigation & Navigation Company, and was working with the pile driving crew on the west end of this city, and while placing a wedge on top of the pile the hammer suddenly descended and smashed his left hand into a pulp, which necessitated the amputation of a part of the hand, which was performed by Drs. Upton and Smith. Earl claims that the hammer did not go to its accustomed height when he put the wedge on the pile, and in that way he was taken unawares. It is a most serious accident for Earl, who is a young man, to have to go through life with the loss of his left hand, which will put him to a disadvantage in many ways in procuring employment and in making a livelihood. Earl Ford is well known. He was one of the young men who ran the Happy Camp at Netarts last summer, and made himself very agreeable and accommodated the campers and made it pleasant for them. He made the adventurous trip last summer of going from Tillamook Bay to Netarts Bay in a small gasoline launch, a trip which required a good deal of nerve, with innumerable risks to run in so small a craft.

One More "Outside Attraction"

Dr. R. C. Collins, with his wife and child and a Jap servant, came to this city about two weeks ago to locate. They rented the house recently vacated by Bert Stephens, with the purpose of going housekeeping. Then "Madame," as the little Jap called her, went round to the different stores and succeeded in getting a lot of goods on credit, from a chamber set to dress goods. Thursday morning of last week the Doctor and the "Madame" and the baby suddenly took their departure without paying their bills, but left the Jap servant behind to deliver to the business men letters advising them to call and take their goods, and thanking them for their kindness, which they did. Sheriff Crenshaw succeeded in eliciting from the Jap that one of the valises belonged to "Madame," in which were dress goods she had obtained at one of the stores, and which the Jap servant would have packed off the next morning had it not been discovered.
