Editorial Snap Shots.

The city election is over, with its usual bitter feeling, for another year. What a blessing.

It is reported that work is to be resumed on the Harriman roads. Wonder if this includes the Tillamook road.

We do not know whether Carl Haberlach is troubling about it, but wouldn't it be a good joke on him to call for a recount.

It is very bad form for anyone to get drunk after an election. No gentleman, law-abiding citizen, would make a beast of himself at any time.

Will the city have to create a new office, to be called the City Cow Puncher and Chicken Chaser, now that stock and poultry are to be kept up?

If anyone is looking for technicalities in the city election, here is one: Not one of the newly elected city officials notified the city recorder that they accepted the nomination.

"They don't know that they are beaten yet!" was a remark, probably, intended for the editor. Perhaps not. But when Francis J. Heney begins to make it interesting, what then?

As some of the legal lights in other cities contend that an election cannot be held during legal holidays, who is going to decide whether the newly elected city officials or are not legally elected?

Now that Governor Chamberlain is talking of calling a special session of the state legislature, we agree with him in that particular, for we did not think it right that the whole machinery of the courts should be put a stop to in the interests of the banks.

As the fifth ward "discriminated" against our young friend Rollie, it certainly did what was the best thing for the young man's good. Yet George did the gallant act, and is heartily congratulated for butting in and getting into a "discriminating" fight.

We move that, on account of so many persons voting wrong, that another vote be taken on the question of keeping up stock and chicken, and that the city council be petitioned to include dogs and cats in the list. For the way the dogs bark at night and keep people awake they are a greater nuisance than the crows.

There is no telling what some people will do in Tillamook City when it comes to an election. We have been surprised a good many times and may be again, but when the saloon faction put up, supported and elected a prohibitionist for city marshal, it is certainly comical. It must have been a tremendous big pill for them to swallow. Will wonders ever cease in Tillamook?

We want again to make a suggestion, and this time to the newly elected city council, that proper steps be taken to have cement sidewalks, to be commenced in the business parts and extended to the residence districts later. Those who have seen what improvements are being made in other towns in this respect will agree with us that it would be a substantial improvement to Tillamook City and would enhance the value of property.

Now that the crows are to be kept up, the city will be confronted with another menace from fire in the summer. Let the grass grow up, as it will do, and become dry with a strong east wind, something is going to happen should it once get on fire, for it will spread with such rapidity that it will resemble a small prairie fire and endanger the entire city if measures are not taken to keep down the grass, which Old Bossy used to do without cost to the city.

It would be a great improvement to the lighthouse service if the light stations along the coast were connected with telephone, so that in cases where ships are disabled and in distress off the coast the news can be sent to where assistance can be obtained. For instance, word came from Portland on Monday that the Alliance was disabled off the coast. As there is no wire to Cape Meares light station and the wire being down in the south part of the county, this left a long stretch of seaboard without telephone connections.

We want to say this to the law and order faction, who lacked organization when they went into the city election, that they cannot expect to accomplish much good by being spasmodic, alive to the interests of the city at one election and dead, cold and indifferent at the next election, without organization or leadership or platform. Anyone can see that the election on Monday was but a skirmish for the election next June, when another effort will be made to make the county "wet." What has become of the anti-saloon league, which was so aggresive in previous elections? A few law and order advocates did, however, get in and work, and accomplished something, and foremost in that direction was Mr. T. H. Gojme. It takes organization to beat an organization, and as long as the law-abiding citizens are content to remain inactive and indifferent, they must blame themselves if the special interests accomplish their object in getting control of the city.

This is how the City of Scio cured the young fellows who occasionally go on a "spree," and it would be a good thing for other "dry" towns to adopt the same plan:

The unique ordinance of the City of Scio, which makes it a misdemeanor for any man to become drunk within the corporate limits of the town has now been in force a year and only three arrests have resulted. City officers of Scio say the law has accomplished its purpose and stopped drunkenness. This ordinance was enacted by the council last November, following some "spree," in which a number of young men of Scio had participated. The one saloon in Scio closed its doors July 1, 1906, when all Linn county went "dry," but liquor was being shipped in by express and some men were clubbing together for carousals. To stop this practice the Council passed this ordinance, which makes it unlawful for any one to become intoxicated in any "house, street or place" within the corporate limits of Scio. For violation of the law fines of from $5 to $100 or imprisonment of from two to 50 days were provided. The ordinance further provided that prisoners serving time under this act could be put to work upon the streets with ball and chain and all prisoners who should refuse to work should be fed on bread and water.

Here is a matter which should be straightened out. It was alleged and became common gossip on Monday that after the city caucus Geo. F. Zimmerman, who had been nominated for city marshal was out with the crowd, passed the bottle around and was as full as any of the boys, or words to that effect. When informed of what was being said about him, Mr. Zimmerman indignantly denied the accusation. We have since learned how this came to be circulated, and here we give the straight of it. J. L. Murphy, editor of the Herald, went into the Sheriff's office, and in the presence of Sheriff Greenhaw and Deputy Sheriff Holden, in the course of some conversation over the city marshal, accused Zimmerman of what is alleged above. The allegation soon traveled, for it was food for the gossips. When accused of setting about the reports, Mr. Murphy it seems, denied that he had done so, until Tuesday, when he was in the Sheriff's office, when Deputy Sheriff Holden put it squarely to him and asked him whether he did not make the accusations against Zimmerman in the Sheriff's office. Murphy had to cwa up to what he said, with this explanation, that he did not expect that they would repeat what he said. Here are the facts in the matter, without any comment, other than the matter ought to be straightened out to ascertain who has been deviating from the truth.

Death of Judge Frazer.

Judge Arthur L. Frazer died Tuesday morning at 9:30 o'clock at the Good Samaritan hospital at Portland from complications resulting from an operation for appendicitis. The jurist's death is considered one of the greatest losses the community has suffered for a long time and the loss will be felt not only in the city, but throughout the state at large.

Judge Frazer was stricken with appendicitis about 10 days ago and taken to the Good Samaritan hospital, where an operation was performed a week ago by the family physician, Dr. A. J. Giesy. His condition was not considered serious until about three days ago, when his nervous state began to tell on him and he became restless.

The Land Fraud Cases.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The manner in which the Oregon land fraud trials have been postponed from time to time has come to be regarded in official circles as a public scandal which cannot longer be tolerated. When the Attorney-General to-day explained the situation to the President, he was instructed immediately to issue specific instructions to District Attorney Bristol, directing him to see that all pending land fraud cases were taken into court and tried.

If Heney cannot go to Portland to try the Binger Hermann and John Hall cases, which were set aside at his request, in order that he might personally conduct the prosecution, then Bristol must prosecute them, and if for any reason Bristol fails to prosecute these and other cases, the Attorney General has instructions to select some one who can and will prosecute.

Further postponement will not be tolerated under any circumstances. It is no secret in Washington that the Department of Justice is decidedly out of patience with both Heney and Bristol on account of the dilatory tactics they are said to have pursued in the Oregon land cases.

It is reported that the French are the most saving people in the world, and the Bank of France at this time holds one-third of the world's coined gold. French small investors are encouraged by a postal savings bank system and by the issue of bonds of small denominations guaranteed by the government.

A Massachusetts judge thinks a man is entitled to a divorce if his wife searches his pockets. A woman reduced to this extremity seldom finds anything of value, so the punishment fits the crime without judicial interference.

The farm is not the only one that has made money this year and meet.

After working continuously for five years an Illinois man concluded to take a vacation and go to California. He said, "all my care and vacation sooner and easier off. Moreover, he will not leave his worries behind, age, habits both mental and are fixed and can't be changed will be restless all the way, afraid things are not on the farm, besides he will adapt himself to the change in travel. The beds in California suit him and he will continue only sleep well in his old bed he has been lying every generation. All reasonable farmers should take a vacation year, not once in a lifetime, stay at home for sixty years, as well stick there until the trip then will satisfy you."

Henry Hatch, of Gridley, is enthusiastic over the advantages of the agricultural industries of men of this age. He declares it is nothing better than general as a pursuit. It takes a man and through, to be a success now, but when he is successful, done something and has some beats clerking in a store or gives one much more freedom of any class of city work. It and for some years past farming a better opening for live young men other calling. While it has drawbacks and its risks, its rewards and cares, summed up career of years and taking into factors, there is no way of existence that yields better results.
