

BOULDER CREEK.

H. L. Jensen went to Tillamook last Tuesday and returned on Wednesday.

Mrs. H. A. Chopard visited Mrs. Jno. Borba last Friday and in the afternoon called on the school.

Jno. Borba went to Cloverdale Wednesday and was caught in the severe storm that passed over here that day.

Miss Bessie Bays who has been working in Tillamook since last August, came out home last week and was lucky enough to choose Wednesday for the trip.

Mrs. A. Chopard came home from Blaine Saturday evening and remained until Monday morning.

R. Y. Blalock made a business trip to Tillamook and back last week.

Mrs. Dawson spent Thursday night with Mrs. May Blalock.

Carl Jensen came up from Three Rivers Saturday to visit over Sunday at home but was so unfortunate as to fall down stairs, hurting his back so badly that he was unable to go back, and is only slightly improved at the present writing.

Miss Bessie Bays visited the families of H. L. Jensen and H. A. Chopard Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Dawson and her scholars are making preparations to give a Christmas entertainment.

Miss Fannie Smith went to Tillamook Monday to take home her sister, Mrs. Wilbur Booth, who had been visiting at her mother's for several days.

Mrs. Maggie Nicklaus was down in our neighborhood last Wednesday canvassing for "Comfort."

Harry Smith made a trip over the road to the valley and back a few days ago.

Oscar H. King of Sweden, died at 8:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

The death of the venerable monarch occurred in the royal apartments of the palace, where, surrounded by the members of his family, including the aged Queen, Sophia, and the Crown Prince, Oscar Gustave, and high Ministers of state, the inevitable end had been awaited.

While outside the palace great crowds stood with bowed heads and tearful eyes long after the announcement came of the death of their well-loved sovereign.

A BUSINESS LESSON.

New Peter Cooper Taught One Man the Value of Money.

Peter Cooper was one of the most successful, careful and prudent business men of his time.

Once, while talking about a project with an acquaintance, the latter said he would have to borrow the money for six months, paying interest at the rate of 3 per cent per month.

"Why do you borrow for so short a time?" Mr. Cooper asked.

"Because the brokers will not negotiate bills for longer."

"Well, if you wish," said Mr. Cooper, "I will discount your note at that rate for three years."

"Are you in earnest?" asked the would be borrower.

"Certainly I am. I will discount your note for $10,000 for three years at that rate. Will you do it?"

"Of course I will," said the merchant.

"Very well," said Mr. Cooper. "Just sign this note for $10,000, payable in three years, and give your check for $800, and the transaction will be complete."

"But where is the money for me?" asked the astonished merchant.

"You don't get any money," was the reply. "Your interest for thirty-six months at 3 per cent per month amounts to 108 per cent, or $10,800. Therefore your check for $800 just makes us even."

The force of this practical illustration of the folly of paying such an exorbitant price for the use of money was such that the merchant determined never to borrow at such ruinous rates, and he frequently used to say that nothing could have so fully convinced him as this rather humorous proposal by Mr. Cooper.

HIS RULING PASSION.

Old Harpagon Carried It to the Brink of the Grave.

The following story is commonly related as true in France: Old Harpagon was fast approaching his end.

"Well, doctor," he said in a feeble voice, "how long have I yet to live?"

"Only half an hour. Would you like me to send for somebody—a clergyman, for instance?"

Harpagon was silent for a few moments. He passed his hand over his chin, bristling with a grizzled beard of several days' growth.

"Quick—send for a barber!"

The barber soon afterward arrived with his shaving tackle.

Harpagon, whose voice was getting weaker, asked him, "You—charge—two-pence—for shaving?"

"That's the price," was the answer. "And—how much—is it—for shaving—a corpse?"

The barber paused a moment and then said, "Five shillings."

"Then—shave—me—quickly," stammered old Harpagon, casting a feverish glance at the watch which the doctor still held in his hand.

He was too feeble to utter another word, but the doctor understood the mute appeal and said:

"Fifteen minutes more!"

A smile of satisfaction stole over the features of the patient. The barber set to work and in a very short time finished his task notwithstanding the nervous twitchings that distorted the face of the dying man.

When the operation was over old Harpagon uttered a sigh of relief and was heard to whisper:

"That's a good thing—four shillings—and tenpence—saved!" And he breathed his last.—London Chronicle.

Sentiment in a Pawnshop.

A watch had just passed from the hands of a seedy young man into those of a pawnbroker.

"Here's a picture—a woman's picture—in the back of this watch," he said. "You'd better take it out."

"It isn't worth while," he said. "I'll redeem the thing in a week or two."

"Maybe you will and maybe you won't," retorted the broker. "You never can tell about these things. I may not be strong on sentiment, but one thing I insist on is that no man shall leave a woman's picture in a watch that he pawns here."—New York Press.

Ageless Love.

It is a splendid thing to think that the woman you really love will never grow old to you.

"You really love her, you will always see the face you loved and won. And a woman who really loves a man does not see that he grows old. He is not decrepit to her. He does not tremble. He is not old. She always sees the same gallant gentleman who won her hand and heart."—Robert G. Ingersoll.

THE COW'S HORN.

Various Ways in Which It is Made Useful by Man.

Have you any conception of how useful that horn is to us? Scientifically it is known as a combination of phosphate of lime, gelatin and albumen.

The lime makes the horn hard, but there is just enough lime to make it hard without making it brittle.

The outer end of the horn is hard and solid, and that is used for making knife handles and other things.

It is then spread out flat and put between iron plates. There was a time when these horn plates were made very thin by hard pressure.

When the horn is heated it may be molded into almost any desired form.

That is the way knife handles, buttons and other articles are made.—Chicago News.

ENGLISH STORIES.

The Striking Way an Oxford Notable Won a Nickname.

Dean Stanley once went late to dinner with his collar flapping.

"Oh, yes!" answered the dean. "Do you mind?" "Not at all," said the lady. "Then I don't mind, either. The button dropped off while I was dressing."

A Nice Calculation.

A Flemish gentleman conceived the idea that he would only live a certain time, so he made a nice calculation of his fortune, which he so apportioned as to last just the same period as he guessed his life would extend to.
