Why Temperance is Growing.

From the Oregonian.

"The liquor traffic is prohibited by law in one-half the territory of the United States," according to statements submitted by Charles F. Carter in the current number of Harper's Weekly. In detail, Mr. Carter explains how the temperance movement has been spreading through the South and West so rapidly that even old Kentucky with $100,000,000 invested in distilleries, has 97 "dry" counties out of 119.

Mr. Carter after discussing the various factories which have contributed to the present situation, decides that "the most moving of all temperance sermons though, do not come through the mails nor the schoolroom, nor yet from the pulpit, nor the lecture platform. They are delivered in brutally blunt terms by the conditions which confront every man who has a living to earn. It is becoming increasingly difficult for a drinking man to find employment." There is another very important feature of the movement and its causes which the liquor men themselves, if they expect to save anything out of the wreck of their business would do well to observe. That is the vital necessity for the better element in that calling, to place the business on a plane where it will be less offensive than at present. This cannot be accomplished by the men "higher up" in the liquor business rushing to the defense of the worst element whenever its members are guilty of law breaking.

If they would stay this rising tide of public sentiment against the business, they must not only refuse to stand by the lawbreakers, but they must actually stand with the law and deliver them up for punishment. There are undoubtedly all over the land men who have been more or less in sympathy with prohibition, but who under ordinary circumstances would object to being deprived of the right to drink any beverage that suited their taste. But these men have become exasperated by the continual abuses permitted by saloon men. We have plenty of examples here at home nearly every day. In yesterday's Oregonian appeared an account of the murder of a young man in a saloon in this city, the story being accompanied by the usual statement that "both men were considerable under the influence of liquor." Wednesday's paper told of the suicide at Hoquiam of a man who had been on a "prolonged spree." Tuesday we read of the murder of Waterford, Cal., of a saloon-keeper and an innocent bystander by a ranch hand "crazed by drink," and so on day after day.

Perhaps, respectable society might not be expected to care much for these numberless killings. But there is the "moss" to be cleaned up. There are innocent widows and orphans, fathers and mothers dependent on these men who were murdered because the cupidity of some saloon-keeper caused him to deal out liquor to men who were already "drunk" far past the safety point. These people generally become a charge on society which also has to foot the bills for murder trials, policing, etc., and their pitiable plight naturally excites sympathy and that uncomfortable feeling of sorrow and regret which we always feel over trouble or tragedy that might so easily be averted. People are so selfish and so much opposed to these needless murders and other crimes directly due to unrestricted drinking, that they are willing for their own peace of mind to go to almost any extreme to stop them. If the liquor men will demand of their people a decent observance of the law, the cause of prohibition will receive a setback, otherwise it will march triumphantly on.

How Diphtheria is Contracted.

One often hears the expression, "My child caught a severe cold which developed into diphtheria," when the truth was that the cold had simply left the little one particularly susceptible to the wandering diphtheria germ. When Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given it quickly cures the cold and lessens the danger of diphtheria or any other germ disease being contracted. For sale by Clough's Drug Store.

A Dangerous Deadlock.

that sometimes terminates fatally, is the stoppage of liver and bowel functions. To quickly end this condition without disagreeable sensations, Dr. King's New Life Pills should always be your remedy. Guaranteed absolutely satisfactory in every case or money back, at Chas. I. Clough, Drug store, 25c.

Any one who looks carefully over the annual report of the secretary of the treasury will ask himself how it is that such an uncommonly favorably showing could belong to a period of flurry in the market. Especially would a foreigner, comparing the exhibit with the budget of his own country, be surprised that their could be any talk of financial panic in the United States at this time. The secretary's estimate of income and outgo extends as far as June 30, 1909, more than a year and a half in the future, and, assuming that expenditures will continue on the scale of recent prosperous years, suggests no difficulties. In the fiscal year that ended June 30 last the treasury surplus was $84,000,000. For the present fiscal year the secretary expects a surplus of $42,000,000. On the basis of existing laws the revenue for the year beginning July 1 next is estimated at $878,000,000 and expenditures at $913,000,000, indicating a deficit of $35,000,000. But a look so far ahead is problematical. There will be new financial legislation. The country is growing. Last year's surplus went far beyond the prediction of the secretary. This year's surplus may be the more or less than the estimated $24,000,000. There was a surplus of several millions last month, which was one of financial anxiety. Perhaps some of the branches of revenue will fall off on account of business caution, but the returning wave of activity will mount higher than before.

Both the immigration and emigration of the United States this year will considerably exceed any former figures. For the twelve months ended June 30 last the total of aliens admitted were 1,285,349, going beyond the fiscal year 1906 by 184,614, and the fiscal year 1905 by 258,850, an increase of 17 and 25 per cent, respectively. The number rejected last year was 13,064, which is about the average proportion. These annual arrivals by the million represent a new era in the shifting of population from the old world to the new, or rather from many countries to one country whose republican form of government and fields of labor are most attractive to those who turn to a new home to improve their conditions of work and scale of living. The immigration of more than a million and a quarter a year could be indefinitely increased if the bars were let down to the Asiatics, but the wise restrictions in this respect can not be safely relaxed, and still be maintained with increasing firmness. New-comers from Europe will be assimilated. Their children become a part of the American composite. Not so with any of the inhabitants of Asia except the Russians of the northern region. There are profound reasons, racial, mental, moral, physical and political, why the Asiatics can not be Americanized. In many particulars they themselves draw the line against adaptability.

In 1896 Mr. Bryan carried but one county in New York and the majority against him was 268,463. In 1900 he led in only four counties and lost the state by 143,606. The chance that he could ever carry New York, or win without it, is inappreciable.

New York's lid closed the places of amusement, but the saloon side doors were open. The lid is an American institution that varies so much according to locality that foreigner can be excused for not understanding it.

The new $10 gold piece is in great demand among collectors, who have applied to the Treasury Department for early specimens. They say it is not pretty, but it looks good to those who want a full currency supply.

Last month no less than $131,000,000 was added to the money in the United States. To say it is in circulation is not exactly true, but hoarders are beginning to let go, and the increase will soon be felt generally.

Badly Mixed Up.

Abraham Brown, of Winterton, N. Y., had a very remarkable experience, he says: "Doctors got badly mixed up over me; one said heart disease, two called it kidney trouble, the fourth, blood poison, and the fifth stomach and liver trouble; but none of them helped me; so my wife advised trying Electric Hitters, which are restoring me to perfect health. One bottle did me more good than all the five doctors prescribed." Guaranteed for blood poison, weakness and all stomach, liver and kidney complaints by Chas. I. Clough, druggist, 50c.

A Home Made Happy by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

About two months ago our baby girl had measles which settled on her lungs and at last resulted in a severe attack of bronchitis. We had two doctors but no relief was obtained. Everybody thought she would die. I went to eight different stores to find a certain remedy which had been recommended to me and failed to get it, when one of the storekeepers insisted that I try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I did so and our baby is alive and well today.—GEO. W. SPENCE, Holly Springs, N. C. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy always cures and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by Clough's Drug Store.

Here's Good Advice.

O. S. Woolver, one of the best known merchants of Le Rayville, N. Y., says: "If you are ever troubled with piles, apply Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It cured me of them for good 20 years ago." Guaranteed for sores, wounds, burns or abrasions, 25c. at Chas. I. Clough, drug store.

OREGON WILL VOTE "DRY."

Milt Miller Says Prohibition Sentiment Is "in the Air"

SALEM, Or., Dec. 18.—"All Oregon will go 'dry' at the next election if the question be submitted as a state issue," said State Senator M. A. Miller, of Lincoln County, when in Salem on business at the state library. "The whole United States will be 'dry' within ten years," he continued. "The movement does not spring from any single event or argument but it is 'in the air,' as you might say, and is everywhere in evidence.

"The people are sick and tired of the liquor traffic. They are disgusted with the way the saloons have been run and are going to put them out of business. Merchants and business men of all kinds have given up the notion that it takes saloons to make a live town. The most prosperous, cleanest and best conducted towns in the state today are 'dry.' In those towns you will find the most orderly people.

"In the last few months I have traveled all over the state and have heard emphatic expressions against the saloon from persons who would be least expected to entertain such views. One Southern Oregon hotelkeeper who runs a bar told me he intended to vote for prohibition. The movement in this state is for the establishment of high schools, and where a high school comes in the saloon goes out.

Queer Items of Interest.

After searching for her husband for more than a year, Mrs. John Solis of Brooklyn finally met him in Liberty street, New York, recently and began to pummel him with an umbrella. Both were arrested and when arranged the wife relented, throwing her arms about her husband and promising to "be good" and refrain from further use of the umbrella as a club.

There is an unbroken rule that the cellar of the Winchester (Mass.) post office shall be cleaned out once in every 150 years. The cleaner was not onto his job last year because, if he had been, he would have found the letter addressed to E. S. Merrill, Winchendon, postmarked 1756, that M. J. McDonald discovered in the debris. The old postmark shows the cellar hasn't been cleaned out in 151 years.

Just because an alarm clock was so indelicate as to start its clamor of "ting-a-ling-ling" while reposing in the stocking of pretty Edith F. Wildor, she was arrested recently in Boston by a department store detective on the charge of larceny. With her was her chum, Blanch Dunn, who also was arrested. It was a most dramatic moment for the two pretty West End girls, who were delving with flashing eyes the charges of the store detective. It was about the moment when the girls seemed to be winning their point that the alarm clock went on its wild tell-tale rattle, and the girls were arrested.

At the palatial court seat at Sayville, Long Island, N. Y., of Frank S. Jones of Brooklyn, a strange phenomenon is recorded. A jet black bantam rooster, under the watchful care of Supt. Thomas Hawkins, has changed the color of its feathers to a pure white, which transformation has taken place during the past month. As though an omen of good fortune were hovering over them the numerous broods of the Jones extensive poultry yards seem to regard the newly-robed cock in its pure white raiment as one endowed with the super-natural, and, including the goose and ganders and turkey gobblers, follow after and look up to him as leader of every tribe and nationality.

A recent news item from Boston says:

"The terror of my life has been Friday. I'm not responsible for what I do on that day. On every day of the week but Friday I'm a regular Dr. Jekyll, but on Friday I feel like Mr. Hyde. I can't control my impulse to commit crime."

This was the novel plea made to Charles M. Stanton in accounting for the sensational robbery of a pawnshop, Friday, November 1, in which several thousand dollars were secured. Stanton, who was supposed to be a law abiding citizen, living industriously, says he does not know what took place that day. After every Friday's awful impulse to commit a crime, he claimed, things are blank to him until next day. The judge held him despite his plea.

For a number of years Mrs. Ella Seaman of West Creek, near Hanover, N. J., has been a sufferer from cataleptic fits, the cause of which has been a puzzle to physicians. Some of the symptoms of her trouble resembled those of indigestion, and some of the doctors treated her for that ailment, but with very little beneficial results. Just before the paroxysms came Mrs. Seaman would feel a sensation like something crawling from her stomach to her throat.

After trying many remedies no avail, Mrs. Seaman decided to experiment with an advertised remedy, and she now proudly exhibits in a glass jar a snake about 9 inches in length and an inch thick which the remedy expelled. The reptile has a crown back and white belly. Mrs. Seaman has not suffered from the fits since.

DOCTORS MISTAKES

Are said often to be buried six feet under ground. But many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another with pain here and there, and in this way they present alike to themselves and their easy-going or over-busy doctor, separate diseases, for which he, assuming them to be such, prescribes his pills and potions. In reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some chronic disease. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, keeps up his treatment until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better. The physician, the wrong treatment, but finally, the cause of suffering, directed to the cause, would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and insinuating comfort instead of prolonged misery. It has been well said, that "a disease known is half cured."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless. Its effects in many conditions of the female system are as follows:

As a powerful invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs directly feminine in particular. For over-worked, "worn-out," run-down, debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequalled as an appealing curial and restorative tonic. As a soothing and strengthening nerve "Favorite Prescription" is unequalled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and dependency. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. One to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

News Notes from Portland.

There is universal interest all over the State in the meeting of the Oregon Press Association, which convenes in this city on January 17th and 18th.

Upon several different occasions there were between 600 and 700 people in attendance upon the Dairy Convention and exhibit at one time, and from the moment that President Zudd called the meeting to order at 10 o'clock Thursday morning until it closed at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon, the interest never flagged. Hon. B. D. White, the dairy expert with the Department of Agriculture at Washington, D.C., who has participated in dairy conventions in all of the older states, said that he had never attended a better convention. The program was full of interest—it was a school of information and instruction, and facts were presented and views exchanged and actual results shown, which will be a tremendous value to all those engaged in the industry or contemplating a participation in it. The substantial character of the gathering was shown when the Chair requested those actually milking cows commercially to stand—75 per cent of the audience rose, and when a vote was asked to show what proportion of these were testing milk with the idea of keeping their herds up to the highest standard, at least three-fourths of the milkers rose a second time, a striking evidence of modern methods.

The proceedings in full will be printed in book form just as soon as the stenographers and printers can get their material in shape. Prof. F. L. Kent, of the Oregon Agricultural College, at Corvallis was made President, and W. L. Crissey, of the Portland Commercial Club, Secretary. The campaign in behalf of the next convention will begin immediately, for it is determined that that convention, like the one held, will be the most important and beneficial gathering of any held during the year 1908.

The exhibits were magnificent, equaling those at the international show. The whole state was represented. The convention was a tremendous success, and the men interested in dairying have determined that the products of this great industry will add at least $20,000,000 to the wealth of Oregon in 1908. 2904 people personally paid their dues while in attendance, the greatest previous record being 84, and before the next session of the Association is convened the rolls will contain to exceed 300 members.

The Thanksgiving Proclamation issued by the Portland Commercial Club giving the shipments of grain and flour from this State and Washington, was printed in full by many of the greatest papers in the United States. The New York Journal of Commerce, the leading financial paper in the country, giving it especial prominence. 35 vessels are loading wheat and flour in Portland's harbor, a greater tonnage than was ever before known.

Holiday shopper crowd the Portland stores, and this applies to points throughout the state. Merchants report business better than expected.
