Subduing Mother's Voice.

The successful merchant invited his parents to visit him in New York city. They came gladly and on the following Sabbath were escorted to a fashionable church in Fifth avenue. Some of the hymns were familiar. In their rendition the visiting pair contributed heavily, with the credit for volume in favor of the father. Although not always in correct time and sometimes in discord, yet the joy of this good couple leaped forth in joyous praise, and they did not see the glowering looks of nearby worshipers or the beetlike face of their devoted son.

"Father," explained the merchant that afternoon while his mother was taking her accustomed nap, "in our churches the congregations do very little singing. It is left entirely to the choir."

"I know, my boy," said the old man as he lovingly placed a hand on his son's shoulder, "that it was very embarrassing to you this morning, but, if I hadn't sung as loudly as I did the people would have heard your mother."—New York Press.

Muskrats.

Rare old Captain John Smith in his quaint "History of New England and the Summer Isles," published in London in 1624, gives probably the first written account of the muskrat. He says that "the mussacus is a beast of the form and nature of our (English) water rat" and adds that "some of them smell exceedingly strong of musk." These animals may be caught in almost any sort of trap baited with sweet apples or parsnips. Muskrats have very strong teeth and can use them on wood effectively, so it is wise to protect all corners and cracks in your wooden traps with pieces of tin or sheet iron. They have good noses and can smell an apple a long distance off. Place your traps in the shallow water at the edge of the mill pond or stream inhabited by these rats, and they will doubtless find it without difficulty. Young muskrats are very gentle and playful and may be handled without fear. They do not grow fierce with age if reared in captivity and accustomed to gentle treatment.

Receiving Tommy.

There is a certain inspector of schools who prides himself on his original method of examining, but occasionally his originality receives a shock. In a fatherly manner he had gathered a class of young children round him and soon had their open mouthed attention.

"Now, suppose that you and I were playing a game of marbles," he said to little Tommy Jones. "You have ten marbles and I have eight."

The class gathered closer round.

"At the end of the game you have won half of my marbles, and of course I want to play again to win them back."

The children pressed even nearer.

"At the end of the second game I win half of those you now have. Tell me"—excitement waxed intense—"tell me," he continued, "how many marbles you are left with?"

With a look of inexpressible disgust the boy addressed fell back. "Why, Billy," he said, "blowed if it ain't sums."—London Answers.

Infant Prodigies.

In nine out of ten cases your infant prodigy is a musician. Among painters the prodigy of prodigies was Sir Thomas Lawrence. One of his earliest pictures, it is said, was produced in 1775, quite early enough, for the lovely cherub who painted it was then six years old. He was getting on in life, tottering on the verge of twelve, when the quality crowded his studio at Bath. The fates were kind to the infant prodigy when they made his father landlord of the Black Bull, Devizes, the inn where fashionable men and women called for rest and refreshment on their way to the waters. At the Black Bull the prodigy made his first acquaintance with the great world which flattered him in after life and which he flattered on canvas.—St. James' Gazette.

True Charity.

Every good act is charity. Giving water to the thirsty is charity. Removing stones and thorns from the road is charity. Exhorting your fellow men to virtuous deeds is charity. Smiling in your brother's face is charity. Putting a wanderer in the right path is charity. A man's true wealth is the good he does in this world. When he dies mortals will ask what property has he left behind him, but angels will inquire, "What good deeds hast thou sent before thee?"—Mohammed.

Good Actions.

When we have practiced good actions awhile they become easy. When they are easy we take pleasure in them. When they please us we do them frequently, and then by frequency of act they grow into a habit.—Tillotson.

Corrected.

"Mamma, Mrs. Oldcastle just went wild over our new bust of Shakespeare when she was here this afternoon."

"Burst, my dear, burst. Mercy sakes, how can you use such slang? And you've been to Europe twice too!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

No Joke to Him.

"That fellow," said Tete de Veau, "is always getting off the old joke about difficulty of ...ing a woman's ...plain-

BOULDER CREEK.

We are sorry to state that Mrs. Will Ray is very ill at the home of her mother at Blaine.

Mrs. Mattie Gray, of East Creek, has been down in this neighborhood for the past week visiting old friends and neighbors.

Carl Jensen, son of H. L. Jensen, who is attending school at Three Rivers, came home Saturday to visit his parents.

Ernest Smith, of Cloverdale, visited his friends and former school mates last week.

W. D. Gladwell and Mrs. Roza Borba, who have been quite sick for some time, are both reported to be on the mend at present.

Mrs. Grace Chopard and son visited Mrs. Chopard's brother, L. E. Getchell, at South Prairie last Tuesday and Wednesday.

We are informed that the boundry line between school districts 32 and 50 has been changed as was petitioned for in December.

J. Borba, Sr., went to Tillamook last Tuesday and back Wednesday and John, Jr., made the same round trip Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Kinnaman also visited the county seat last week.

Mrs. Grace Chopard and son Norman were visitors at the home of E. L. Kinnaman a week ago last Saturday.

H. L. Jensen and family spent last Sunday at Blaine visiting with Mrs. J. J. Hollett.

It Does The Business.

Mr. E. E. Chamberlain, of Clinton, Maine, says of Bucklen's Arnica Salve. "It does the business; I have used it for chapped hands and it cured them. Applied it to an old sore and it healed it without leaving a scar behind." 25c. at Chas. I. Clough's drug store.
