

Boycotting in 1735.

This may be read in the Daily Comment of 1735:

"There being some Indian and French silks now selling by auction in this town and two or three brewers' wives in the Earl of Meath's liberty having bought a few pieces thereof, the master weavers and dyers as well as journeymen of those corporations give notice by beat of drum that they would not drink any liquors whatever brewed by the husbands of the said ladies, who would encourage foreign manufacturers when there are numbers of poor weavers in a starving condition in this town and all over the kingdom for want of employment."—London Notes and Queries.

Something New in Tablecloths.

She had come into the store to buy tablecloths, and she stated in the beginning that she wanted something "new."

"The salesman was patient and showed her everything in stock, but nothing suited."

"Oh, dear," she exclaimed fustily, "haven't you anything different?"

The clerk brought out one of the discarded tablecloths that he had put back on the shelf and said, with an air of interest:

"Here is one of the very newest designs, madam. You see, the center is in the middle, and the border runs right around the edge."

A. T. Stewart's Way.

Alexander T. Stewart was the first "merchant prince." Today we have a number of merchant princes, even kings, and if Stewart were alive he would find very lively competition.

An Old Greek Glutton.

Occasionally we hear of voracious gluttons among the old Greeks. One of the most noted was Philoxenus, who wished he had a neck like a crane, so that his enjoyment of what he swallowed could be lengthened by several inches.

Fountain Inkorns—Fountain Pens.

Matthew Henry, the English biblical commentator, who lived from 1662 to 1714, in his commentary on the vision of the "candlestick all of gold and two olive trees by it," mentions "fountain inkorns" and "fountain pens."

Origin of "Blackleg."

"Blackleg" has become so familiar in its special labor application that this is now more common even than the use of the word in its original sense.

His Wonderful Curious.

The author of "Idyls of Spain" speaks of a notary who he met whose naive simplicity surely could not be exceeded.

Sir Walter Scott's Dogs.

Scott was perhaps the most devoted dog lover that ever was. Any one who has ever read Lockhart's "Life" will readily admit this.

The Red Death.

It will be remembered that Edgar Allan Poe in his "Masque of the Red Death" described a plague, the main symptom of which was a bleeding from the pores of the body.

In Central America the red death is personified in the blood snake, or, as the Spaniards call it, vivora sangre. This snake is of a red tinged black on the back, while underneath it is of a bright vermilion.

Military Prisoners.

Although living in a part of New York city, the military prisoners on Governors Island have many customs which make it seem as though they were in another land.

A Judge's View of Women's Oaths.

"Do I believe a woman under oath?" commented a judge whose name has figured prominently in many big cases.

An Actor's Power.

An example of how an audience may be deceived by gestures, delivery, facial expression, eye and voice was once given by an English actor named Dugazon, then the idol of the hour in London.

Squaring the Account.

An old negro in a small Georgia town had helped himself to some of a white neighbor's chickens. The owner traced the theft to him, however, and brought him to task.

A Square Deal

It assured you when you buy Dr. Pierce's family medicine—all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and their formulas are attested under oath as being complete and correct.

Glycerine plays an important part in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, heartburn, foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs.
