CRENSHAW ARRESTED A BIGAMIST.

Portland Real Estate Agent Has Three Wives.

Whether W. P. Rihorn, a Portland real estate agent, came to Tillamook about two weeks ago to avoid arrest or to captivate a Tillamook belle and make her his fourth wife, suddenly petered out on Friday, for Rihorn, much to his surprise, found he had struck the wrong trail when he came to Tillamook, for it was only a few minutes after Sheriff Crenshaw was informed that he had the bigamist locked up in the county jail. It came about in this way. M. A. Morse knew Rihorn, and calling him by name on the street when he met him, Rihorn told Morse that he did not want to be known by that name again, and to keep mum about it. Mr. Morse informed his wife what Rihorn had said, and she advised him to inform Sheriff Crenshaw, which he did, and the sheriff having been advised that Rihorn was wanted in Portland, arrested him at the C.O.D. Laundry, where he was working, and after being locked up he admitted he was the man and was up against it.

The Oregon Journal gave some of the particulars of Rihorn's adventures in the matrimonial market, which only goes to prove that some girls are so anxious to get married, they are foolish enough to marry any kind of a stranger, regardless of character or reputation, with a pair of pants:

Six months ago Miss Anna H. Sanderson was a prim little school teacher of the Methodist persuation, in Pueblo, Colorado. What she knew of men she had learned from her father, an old-fashioned gentleman, and from frightened glimpses caught during two years at Alma college, Michigan, where she was too busy to learn much outside of her books and her classes.

But Miss Sanderson has had an awakening. She doesn't know positively whether her name is Sanderson, or Rihorn, or Williams, and she is somewhat mystified on several other matters. But her mind has been cleared up with regards to men. She says frankly that she never imagined there were so many wicked thoughts in the world. And as the incarnation of this new universe of mankind she wants her husband, or the man she supposed was her husband, W. P. Rihorn, a well known real estate dealer, placed behind prison bars.

Rihorn Disappears.

Rihorn has disappered, leaving behind him records tending to show that he has been married three times, and that from at least one of his previous wives he neglected to secure a legal separation. The police, the sheriff and the district attorney are looking for him, and Miss Sanderson, or Mrs. Williams as she has supposed her name to be, is waiting with a bundle of old love letters, school certificates of character and a marriage license, ready to help convict him of bigamy when he is found.

Little Miss Sanderson comes of a very strict English family. She was brought up in complete innocence of the world and its evils. She was sent to a strict sectarian college. She had determination, and when her father's money gave out she didn't go home and give up her work, but stayed and made her own way. Then she taught school, first in Michigan, and later in Colorado.

In Denver she made a reputation for herself as a competent teacher. So much so that when the Methodist church started a private school in Pueblo she was selected to take one of the classes in it. But still she saw nothing of men. They were entirely beyond her ken.

Appealed to her Soul.

Until last Summer she was visiting in Denver and her friends told her of their friend, Rihorn, who was making so much money in Oregon and how he liked girls. Somehow it appealed to the romantic soul of the little school teacher who didn't know much about men and who had taught children until she was tired out, and she agreed to a plan whereby she and Rihorn were to write one another.

It worked beautifully. Rihorn wrote and told Miss Sanderson of how he had longed to have an educated wife, how his parents had died when he was a boy and how he had had to give up college in Nebraska because of his poor health. And the fact that he had made his own way and that they might have to struggle a bit at first seemed to her just as it should be—the proof of their affection. So she told him how little she knew of men, but how much she trusted him and how proud she was of him. She also told that she was careful of her salary and that she believed whatever was the wife's was also the husband's.

Matters were arranged very quickly. The wedding was to have occurred in Denver, but several weeks before the Christmas vacation Miss Sanderson received a letter from Rihorn saying that he would be unable to go to Colorado for the wedding, but wouldn't she come to Oregon instead? It would have to be a quiet affair because he was not wealthy.

Also he said that a curious thing had happened—he had just learned that his real name was not Rihorn, but Williams—an old people had seen the advertisement of the Rihorn land company in the Alisky building, and come around to see him and told an interesting tale of how Rihorn had adopted him when [illegible] his real name was Pearl H. Williams. He asked her if she wouldn't address him as Rihorn until he could settle the legal difficulties connected with his changing his name and the title of his property.

Meet at Tacoma.

She left Denver, Christmas day, and met Rihorn in Tacoma, from where they went to Elma, Washington, where Miss Sanderson had friends. Here they were married by the Rev. J. T. McQueen, Jan. 11 of this year, the parties mentioned in the marriage license held by Miss Sanderson being Pearl R. Williams and Anna H Sanderson.

They came to Portland and the first disillusion occurred. Mrs. Sanderson-Williams-Rihorn learned that her husband had been married before and divorced, But he told her that the divorce had been secured on the ground of infidelity—the only one recognised by the Methodist church. Then the rooms they lived in were not quite what Miss Sanderson had been accustomed to.

He took her down to a rooming-house on First street, which is old and ramshackle, and in an unpleasant part of town. He didn't introduce her to his friends. He gave her no money. He told her that he was very busy and did not have time to see much of her. The day after bringing her to Portland he left her for 10 days, saying he had to put through a land deal. She had given him all her savings and had no money to live on. He returned, stayed a day or so and then left her again.

Calls on District Attorney.

This time her landlady in the first street rooming house interfered. She talked with the little schoolma'am, saw that she was completely ignorant of what was the matter, and took her down to see the district attorney.

Mr. Manning talked to her and couldn't believe such ignorance of evil existed in women. After an hour's talk he declared that most 16-year-old girls knew more of the world than did Mrs. Sanderson Williams-Rihorn. But he promised to help her out, searched for the real estate man and brought him up to the office, where he made him promise to pay his wife $30 a month for her support.

This was on March 20. The next day Mrs Williams received a letter fro her husband in which he told her that he no longer loved her. She saw nothing of him for several days, and then looked him up in his office at 209 Alisky building.

Here she found the name Rihorn Land company on the door and asked him about it. He told her he would explain it all. She didn't see him again, and a week ago Saturday he disappeared leaving his office furniture and papers all behind him, and several big real estate deals completed excepting for the paying of Rihorn his commission.

In the last week Mrs. Rihorn has been making an investigation, and not till then did she learn that she was not the second Mrs. Rihorn, but the third. The first Mrs. Rihorn was evidently an eastern girl. Mrs. Rihorn No. 3 has papers to show that her husband secured a divorce in Grayson county, Virginia, from G. H. Rihorn April 3, 1901. Then she learned that Rihorn had married another girl, the present Mrs. Cora Rihorn of Frankfort, Ohio.

The second Mrs. Rihorn had considerable money. Mrs. Rihorn No. 3 says she hears her husband lived with her three times, and she judges that the money gave out at the end of the last attempt to live together.

Lived in Pendleton.

Rihorn at that time was living in Pendleton, where he was very well known as a real estate and land dealer and a traveling man. A year ago Rihorn, through Attorney L. B. Reeder, of Portland, tried to secure a divorce from Mrs. Cora Rihorn. The suit was filed in Oregon City and a decree secured, but this decree was found to be illegal, because of technical mistakes and the suit was dismissed. Mrs. Sanderson Williams-Rihorn says she is certain her husband has not secured a divorce since then.

She is now living at 431 West Park street, and is waiting for the officers to locate her spouse. She says she will stay here until he is found and will then prosecute him to the end.

"He will fool other women as he has fooled his three wives," declared she yesterday. "He has the most convincing way about him—is very quiet and very sincere. But he always ingratiates himself with women. I have learned since my marriage that woman is his one great vice—he is not bad in other ways, but in what, is to my mind the worst."

She is rather small, has dark hair and wears eye glasses, and is between 35 and 40 years old. She is extremely neat and is well educated. Rihorn is described as being about 38 years old, 8 feet 8½ inches tall, brown hair and blue eyes and with a pale complexion. He wears spectacles when reading or writing. The officers have no idea in what direction he may have gone, but think he has not money enough to go far.

He Got What He Needed.

"Nine years ago it looked as if my time had come," says Mr. C. Farthing, of Mill Creek, Ind. Ter. "I was so run down that life hung on a very slender thread. It was then my druggist recommended Electric Bitters. I bought a bottle and I got what I needed—strength. I had one foot in the grave, but Electric Bitters put it back on the turf again, and I've been well ever since." Sold under guarantee at Chas. I. Clough's drug store, 50c.

A Woman's Back

Has many aches and pains caused by weaknesses and falling, or other displacement, of the pelvic organs. Other symptoms of female weakness are frequent headache, dizziness, imaginary specks or dark spots floating before the eyes, gnawing sensation in stomach, dragging or bearing down in lower abdomen, or pelvic region, disagreeable drains from pelvic organs, faint spells with general weakness.

If any considerable number of the above symptoms are present there is no remedy that will give quicker relief or a more permanent cure than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It has a record of over forty years of cures. It is the most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine known to medical science. It is made of the glyceric extracts of native medicinal roots found in our forests and contains not a drop of alcohol or harmful or habit-forming drugs. Its ingredients are all printed on the bottle-wrapper and attested under oath as correct.

Every ingredient entering into "Favorite Prescription" has the written endorsement of the most eminent medical writers of all the several schools of practice—more valuable than any amount of non-professional testimonials—though the latter are not lacking, having been contributed voluntarily by grateful patients in numbers to exceed the endorsements given to any other medicine extent for the cure of woman's ills.

You cannot afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for this well proven remedy OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, even though the dealer may make a little more profit thereby. Your interest in regaining health is paramount to any selfish interest of his and it is an insult to your intelligence for him to try to palm off upon you a substitute. You know what you want and it is his business to supply the article called for.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original "Little Liver Pills" first put up by old Dr. Pierce over forty years ago, much imitated but never equaled. Little sugar-coated granules—easy to take as candy.
