The Most Common Cause of Suffering.

Rheumatism causes more pain and suffering than any other disease, for the reason that it is the most common of all ills, and it is certainly gratifying to sufferers to know that Chamberlain's Pain Balm will afford relief, and make rest and sleep possible. In many cases the relief from pain, which is at first temporary, has become permanent, while in old people subject to chronic rheumatism, often brought on by dampness or changes in the weather, a permanent cure cannot be expected; the relief from pain which this liniment affords is alone worth many times its cost. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by all druggists.

Bad Attack of Dysentery Cured.

An honored citizen of this town was suffering from a severe attack of dysentery. He told a friend if he could obtain a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, he felt confident of being cured, he having used this remedy in the West. He was told that I kept it in stock and lost no time in obtaining it, and was promptly cured," says M. J. Leach, druggist, of Wolcott, Vt. For sale by all druggists.

It Reached the Spot.

Mr. E. Humphrey, who owns a large general store at Omega, O., and is president of the Adams County Telephone Co., as well as of the Home Telephone Co., of Pike County, O., says of Dr. King's New Discovery: "It saved my life once. At least I think it did. It seemed to reach the spot—the very seat of my cough—when everything else failed." Dr. King's New Discovery not only reaches the cough spots; it heals the sore spots and the weak spots in throats, lungs and chest. Sold under guarantee at Chas. I. Clough, drug store, 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Reading for Amusement.

According to the reports of the public libraries, most of the books taken from them are novels. The percentage of works of sterling quality—books of science, ethics, and even biography—drawn from these popular institutions is very low indeed. It is true that the public libraries are designed to provide reading for the people at large, while in most cities there are libraries provided for the use of scholars. The Athenaeum, in Boston, is an aristocratic institution designed for the use of cultivated and literary classes. The Astor Library in New York City, is the resort of students and specialists, and the books most called for in institutions of this kind are of sufficiently substantial character to satisfy the most exacting. Still it is a questionable truth, that most of our people read for entertainment and not improvement; and those who read works of a serious character do so to fill the vacancies of idleness with diversion rather than for serious ends. But I am not sure this is an evil to be deplored nor a vice to be condoned. Reading is a form of amusement, and a vastly wholesome and more elevating pastime than many popular recreations. It is the only amusement thousands of people can indulge in. The novel is the chief pleasurable resource of thousands who have no gay and joyous society, no brilliant and fascinating entertainments, no exhilarating excursions into the country nor indulgence of musical and artistic tastes, no admission to the favored company of the great. The novel creates an ideal world for their enjoyment, introduces them to the society of kings and nobles, and surrounds them for the time with an atmosphere of poetry and enchantment. It stimulates the feelings through the imagination, and sometimes excites the faculties as wine. To the poor, overwrought, and unfortunate, the sick and solitary, the value of this source of ideal enrichment and exhilaration cannot be estimated, and its moral importance in preventing dangerous dissipation has been too long overlooked by most ethical writers and exhorters. The more reading the less rioting. Romance is vastly better than rum. Story reading is a marked advance on idle gossip and scandal-mongering. The shop girl or the servant girl who finds relief for weariness and a retreat from bad conditions in the splendid pictures of fiction, till she forgets her lot in the play of passions and fancies her real life furnishes no scope for, is vastly better off than her sister who has no taste for reading and is too often drawn into questionable excitements and companionship. The mechanic who finds delight in the pages of Dickens and Shakespeare is not likely to lose himself in the dissipations of the gaming table or saloon. And often those who begin reading for entertainment continue for serious ends. The taste it cultivates is refining. The habit it forms is improving and insensibly awakens a love of knowledge. Flower gathering often leads to a study of botany. The chase after butterflies frequently ends in zoology. Waverly and Bulwer are introductions to history, and George Elliot invites her readers to science, philosophy and ethics.

The moral value of recreation is only half suspected by too many of our religious teachers. When a circus company, in an eastern city, applied for a license, a second time it was opposed by only two classes, the clergy and the rum sellers. The former objected to it for its supposed immoral tendencies; the latter opposed it because it drew customers from their bar. It was a rival entertainment, and emptied their saloons. Reading, as a mere amusement, has the same effect. Nor is it, as some persons seem to imagine, a bad thing that people are more bent on entertainment than improvement. It is unnatural and unwholesome to keep the mind keyed up to a moral pitch all the time; and the man who is perpetually on the stretch and strain for self-culture seldom, if ever, gets the best culture. The richest, the finest, the highest personal qualities are not achieved in that way. Somebody has said, "Culture is a kingdom that may be conquered by force, but can never be possessed by it." Improvement is a good thing to seek, but obedience to the laws of the universe is infinitely better. The object of life is living, not the working of one's self up into this or the other sort of creature. Whoever lives, totally and grandly, realizes his destiny. Our teachers are just beginning to learn that education should be made a pleasure instead of a penance. Knowledge should be absorbed, instead of being rammed into the mind like a bullet into a barrel that is too small for it. The reading of even the best books should be an entertainment and recreation in order to absorb and assimilate their contents, just as eating should be spiced with conversation and laughter that the food may digest and contribute its utmost nutriment to the body. And books of substantial quality and scholarship should be made as interesting as arship in style and arrangement that they can be enjoyed.

Valued Same as Gold.

B. G. Stewart, a merchant of Cedar View, Miss., says: "I tell my customers when they buy a box of Dr. King's New Life Pills they get the worth of that much gold in weight, if afflicted with constipation, malaria or biliousness." Sold under guarantee at Chas. I. Clough, drug store, 25c.

Good Liniment.

You will hunt a good while before you find a liniment that is equal to Chamberlain's Pain Balm as a cure for muscular and rheumatic pains, for the cure of sprains and soreness of the muscles. In case of rheumatism and sciatica it relieves the intense pain and makes sleep and rest possible. In case of sprains it relieves the soreness and restores the parts to a healthy condition in one third the time required by the usual treatment. It is equally valuable for lame back and all deep seated and muscular pains. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by all druggists.

Cures Woman's Weaknesses.

We refer to that boon to weak, nervous, suffering women known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Dr. John E. Foote of the Editorial Staff of THE ELECTRIC MEDICAL REVIEW says of Unicorn root (Helonia Dufourea) which is one of the chief ingredients of the "Favorite Prescription": "A remedy which invariably acts as a uterine invigorator... makes for normal activity of the entire reproductive system. He continues 'in Helonia we have a medication which more fully answers the above purpose than any other drug with which I am acquainted. In the treatment of diseases peculiar to women it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedial agent.' Dr. Foote further says: 'The following are among the leading indications for Helonia (Unicorn root). Pain or aching in the back, with leucorrhoea; atonic (weak) condition of the reproductive organs of women, mental depression and irritability, associated with chronic diseases of the reproductive organs of women; constant sensation of heat in the region of the kidneys; menorrhagia (blooded) due to a weakened condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhoea (absence) or scanty monthly periods; aching from or accompanying an abnormal condition of the digestive organs and aemic (thin blood) habit; dragging sensations in the extreme lower part of the abdomen.' If more or less of the above symptoms are present, no invalid woman can do better than take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. One of the leading ingredients of which is Unicorn root, or Helonia, and the medicinal properties of which it most faithfully represents. Of Golden Seal root, another prominent ingredient of 'Favorite Prescription,' Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says: 'It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb in all catarrhal conditions and the most general properties of which it is universally regarded as the tonic useful in all debilitated states.' Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Medical College, says of Golden Seal: 'Valuable in uterine hemorrhage, menorrhagia (blooded) and congestive dysmenorrhoea (painful menstruation).' Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription faithfully represents all the above named ingredients and cures the diseases for which they are recommended.

The German Coach Horse.

The German Coach horse is today the all-purpose horse of Germany and is employed in draft work of all kinds as well as to till the soil. He is also fit to parade and draw the commodious carriages with strength and style at a jaunty cheerful road gait. The demand for this breed of horses has gradually increased from year to year, as a result of their merit, up to the present hour, and it is no uncommon thing to meet large numbers of buyers in the coach horse districts of Germany, from France, Italy, Switzerland, Belgium, England, Russia and North and South America, which are taken to these various countries to improve breeding stock. The German coach horse has been regularly and thoroughly bred in one line for so many ages that he is enabled to become a predominant and most impressive sire, wherever used, all kinds of mares; hence it is an easy matter to go into a community where a German coach stallion has been in stud and readily procure perfectly matched teams of a quality and size that always command large prices for carriage and coach service. The farmer who breeds this class of stock can rear and develop it without being compelled to incur any expense outside of feed and the ordinary care such as would be required in the rearing of the various draft breeds. They run in height from 16 to 16½ hands high and weighing from 1350 to 1650 pounds. They mature very young and are fit for work at two years old, and for breeding purposes they are horses that produce all about one size, all bark, deep color. No horse can stand for service in Germany unless he either belongs to the government or has a certificate of soundness, breeding and individual appearance issued by an examining government committee. The owner of a commissioned stallion is liable to prosecution if he has in the same stable a non commissioned stallion, although he may be simply used for farm work. When a horse has such a certificate he may stand for service anywhere in the empire. The German coach horse being so purely and strongly bred, reproduce themselves with wonderful certainty, and in the colt you see almost the image of his sire. This is not surprising when we know these horses have been so carefully bred in one line by the German government for several hundred years, and are probably the purest horses that live. The best of these horses is the horse that has long been wanted, and suits the eye of everyone, as he has the color, size, style, action and finish.—Rural Spirit. Mr. B. O. Snuffer has brought into Tillamook one of the finest German coach stallions in the west. Margo is 6 years old, height 16½ hands, weight 1580 pounds, color beautiful bay, block points. Margo will make the season at Snuffer's barn. Terms made known on application.
