

Editorial Snap Shots.

As all the railroad condemnation suits went over until the next term of the circuit court, this does not indicate that the railroad company is in any hurry to complete the road.

We would think that most of the people in Tillamook would vote against Governor Chamberlain on general principles and for paroling the Sandlake murderer and in putting this county to a lot more additional expense.

It is just as well to look at the matter squarely in the face and accept the inevitable with as good grace as possible. It will be two or three years—perhaps more—before a railroad is built and in operation in Tillamook county.

Mr. Samuel Elmore has been kicking about the assessments on the canneries and the assessed saloon, taking the matter into court, which decided against him. It is really too bad that the canneries should be assessed and that Mr. Elmore has to pay taxes like the other on people of this county.

The Pacific Railway & Navigation Co. guaranteed over twelve months ago that the road would be completed and in operation in two years. Now it is ready to give another guarantee to the same effect, which forces us to have to admit that the P. R. & N. Co.'s guarantees are on a par with a good soap ball and easily broken.

It will be noticed that none of the leading business and professional men have signed the petition to submit the local option question to a vote of the people. The business men know that if a thousand dollars is put into circulation and a large proportion of that goes over the saloon bar they will do that much less business.

Is it the duty of the Press to expose the violations of law—in selling liquor and in gambling which has been going on of late in the well known joint and in other places—or should Mayor Johnson, as the executive officer of this city, put a stop to it? It is plain to see that the Mayor's "do nothing" policy has not elevated the moral condition of the city any.

We wonder how many persons, who claim to be red hot Statehood No. 1 advocates, have read the statement or are aware that the primary election law contains another statement which those who aspire to office may sign. It is the same thing with regard to the amendments and petitions which are to be voted on in June, but probably thirty or twenty will have read them or know their import.

It is not so long ago that people have forgotten it, yet Tillamookers have a clear recollection that the Pacific Railway & Navigation Company promised to have fifteen miles of the road built last year and the road completed and in operation this coming fall, and the company even bonded itself for $20,000 that it would make good or forfeit that sum. Well, what about it? Only that the people who put up money for the rights of way will be called upon to make good and the company is not. That is all.

It will be seen by a paragraph in another column that a millinery store in this city is advertising "Merry Widow Pattern Hats." To make the thing complete, if the merry widows are going to have pretty hats, we make an appeal in behalf of the widowers for pretty hats also, with the suggestion that if they are "Grass Widowers" their hats be trimmed with tufts of grass to distinguish them from the widowers who go around with crape bonnet hats with green eyes popping out from under them. We do not know what the "Merry Widow Hats" are like, but we suppose they are very fascinating, so it is up to the widowers to keep in the fashion.

Our distinguished friend Rollie W. Watson has jumped into the local option fight, which shows how ignorant he is in regard to that law, and there are others who think like he does and talk through their hats. The local option law is not a prohibitive or prohibition law, but it is a law which places in the hands of the people the right to say whether they want or do not want saloons in the precinct or county they reside in. Now as to Rollie's other hot air assertions we will answer them later, but the people of this county know, and our friend Rollie is aware of the fact, that it was the dirty, low-down manner in which the saloon business was run in this city, for some of them were simply robbers' roosts, which made the people vote for a "dry" county, for they would not stand any longer for the robbers carried on in the saloons. Vote the county "wet" and it will not be many months before there is a repetition of that kind of business.

Most every election the snap shot man is accused of a good many things for which he is not responsible, and he has to beat the odium, not that it troubles him one iota, for someone has to be the scapegoat. Probably most of our readers noticed that the Headlight gave all the candidates equal and fair treatment in the recent primary election, and even that did not please some of our readers, for they thought it was the duty of the Press to show up the records of some of the candidates. All the aspirants who called upon the snap shot man as to the attitude of the Headlight towards them were told the same thing and we lived up to our promise, as each of the candidates can now testify to. But because we happened to publish an item of news that E. W. Stanley was induced by a large number of representative citizens to run for justice of the peace for the second district in opposition to G. W. Sappington, the snap shot man and a few others are accused of doing what really a number of law and order citizens did. We have no desire to get into a political fight, but if Ialmage & Johnson, the two democratic attorneys, who are running Sappington's campaign pre-empt in making a fight on the snap shot man, we shall have to jump in just for the fun of it, and we will come out in the open and fight, and we will get the "special interests" newspaper to publish editorials or anonymous letters. The snap shot man is in a peculiar position. The Headlight has faithfully supported the republican ticket in previous elections and as Sappington is the nominee for justice, but looked the regular republican nominee for the same position four years ago, should the Headlight support or oppose Sappington, who has democrats running his campaign, and by two attorneys who will have business in the justice court doing everything to elect him? We will leave the question with some of the smart, abusive attorneys to quibble over, for they are dabblers at that kind of business.

"KNOW THYSELF, LEAST YE REPENT."

Written to commemorate an event in the life of Professor Rutherford.

The most philanthropic spirit of the age is to be found in the person of Prof. Rutherford. On April 21, it was necessary that some bills for the High School be taken to Bay City, and of course Prof. was the first to volunteer his services.

At a great sacrifice to himself, he, together with Albert Bramwell and Marcus Frankis Pike, undertook the injurious task of riding to Bay City on wheels to post the bills.

Although the way was long and the road rough, they persevered until they were midway of the long hill on this side of Bay City, where Prof.'s magnanimous disposition led him to make a great sacrifice of his own pleasures and comfort for the accommodation of his own pleasures and comfort for the accommodation of the fellow-creatures.

Approaching the foot of the hill and coming at a brisk walk, came a team of very dignified looking donkeys. Now, before entering into a detailed account of the trip, perhaps it would not be amiss to describe the hill down which they were going, and at the middle point of which, Prof. made his greatest hit.

The road down the hill is good with the exception that on each side there is an uprising of loose gravel. Nature has abundantly adorned the surrounding landscape with numerous clusters of wild blackberries, and taken altogether, it is an ideal place for an obliging person to make a sensational hit.

Arriving at about the middle of the hill, and seeing the mules coming, Prof. at once began pressing down upon the break of his wheel and was much surprised to find that, instead of slowing down, his speed was rapidly increasing. Fearing a collision, but probably thinking more of the drivers feeling than he did of his own, Prof. at once turned out of the road against the loose gravel at the side and in close proximity to a couple of fully developed blackberry vines. Upon hitting the loose gravel, (probably to save the mules from an embarrassing position), Prof. gave a flying leap over the handle bars. After alighting, Prof. slowly and painfully disentangled himself from his surroundings, and was soon again on his way.

Shortly afterwards he remarked that he had often been put to much trouble on account of his accommodating disposition, but never before had he been so jarred up by being accommodating to a pair of Jackasses.

John: "And how did you feel when he told you that he wasn't lending boots?" Albert: "Like thirty cents worth of radium."

"Profligacy," says Emersonian, "consists not in spending, but in spending off the line of your career. The crime which bankrupts men and nations is that of turning aside from one's main purpose to serve a job here and there."

Next Friday will close the contested programs of the societies for the year, so we shall soon know who has won the honors for this year.

We were pleased to read that the Astoria debating team has defeated Baker City High School, this winning the right to be one of the two teams which will contest for the championship of the state, at Eugene.

A Junior Annual is a book that every high school student should have, for to the years to come he can look at the book and think of the many good times he had in high school.

Anybody wishing to trade knives call on Clarence Stanley. He has a good supply of old knives.

Don't forget to give your name to Albert Bramwell or Jettie Shrode if you want a Junior Annual.

Conundrum: What relation to Michael Angelo is Mr. Elmore's Macaroni Angelo?

You see, Carl stayed all night at Lower Town. After the play he took a girl home, and could not find his way back.

Wanted, a suit case, see Ruth Easter.

There is one game that the rain can't stop, and that is marbles. You can see the smaller boys playing, rain or shine. It's all the same to them when they get started.

Ida Goyno, of last year's graduating class, finished a successful term of school in the Maple Leaf district last Friday.

We can't just figure out what the High School has done to earn the eternal enmity of the weather man, but he certainly evened up any old grudge he may have owed us in the weather we had for our plays this year.

Prof. said not long ago in speaking of some of the students monopolizing the tennis, that the great American hog was sometimes called the king of beasts, but he had never heard of him playing tennis. We think that if the great American hog could watch about three tenth grade boys play tennis that he would recognize some near and dear relatives.

One of the features of the Nehalem program which took best was Elmer's stump speech. Rumor has it that the socialists of Tillamook County have hired Mr. Allen to stump the county in their behalf before the June election.

We are afraid Elsie did not enjoy her trip to Nehalem very well, because she was in the custody of the "Sheriff."

John: "Professor, I am indebted to you for all I know." Prof: "Oh, don't mention it. It is a mere trifle."

This being the last month of school it is hard for some to stay in school, but this is the poorest time of the year to drop out.

The little folks enjoyed themselves very much the first day, hanging May baskets, ringing door bells, and then "Skidooing."

T. H. S. D. C. Yell, Macaroni! Macaroni! Zip! Boom! Bah! Army Beans, Army Beans. Bah! Bah! Bah!

"Where were you born, Sammy?" Sammy: "Wasn't born 'till I just washed ashore."

Mr. B. Beals has returned from Union county, and will live at Nehalem. Many of the students are hoping that Gladys will be in school here again next year.

Do's Boh know now who "Macaroni" is? We rather think he does.

Now that Mac has returned the May bees will be flying, and the answers will be "maybe" instead of "I guess so."

Will You Tell Me.

The Bugle Call's correspondence column. All reasonable questions on all reasonable subjects cheerfully answered.

To Macaroni A., Nehalem, Oregon.—Yes, we believe you did right in refusing to lend your boat to the gentleman you describe with the auburn hair and the smile that went come off. Careful in queries made by the editors as to this man's character prove him a dangerous man to lend anything to.

To H. H. Tillamook, Ore.—In answer to your question, we are glad to predict a glorious future for you. We would advise you to correspond with William Burdick, 3rd street and 5th Avenue, Tillamook, and secure him as a playing partner. With him we are sure you can go forth and conquer at the glorious game of tennis.

To Mr. F. P., Tillamook, Ore.—In answer to your question, we think you could easily get a place on the Beaver team. We hear that a few good all-around men are needed just now by Mc'reedie.

To Miss C. T., Tillamook, Ore.—Yes, ask him by all means, leap year does not come very often.

Teacher: "Yes, the diamond is the most precious of all stones." Jessie: "Why, I always thought that Jasper was the most precious."

A movement is now on foot to amend the constitution of the High School Debating League, so that all of the debates will be upon the same subject, and the Oregon Literary Commissioner is going to duplicate all debating libraries so that each school will have plenty of material for their preparation. This will make some excellent debates next year, and the F. H. S. should be figuring now on its team.

The Dramatic Club stayed in Bay City at the fine, big hotel which Mr. Trombley is just fitting up, and if Mr. Trombley needs any advertising most any of them can furnish it.

The old self made merchant said to his son, "You will meet enough of fools during the course of the day without having your name made here at night. We wonder where a fellow would find that 'main herd' in Tillamook."

Little drops of water, Falling one by one, Put a play's finances Badly on the bun.

The Trip to Nehalem.

As advertised in the last issue of the "Bugle Call," the players of the F. H. S. left for Bay City on Friday, May 1st, prepared to put the play, "Diamonds and Hearts," before a crowded house. Although none were enthusiastic over diamonds, all were fully determined to capture any and all hearts that might come their way. They reached their destination safely, and later in the evening were rewarded by an immense Bay City and most enthusiastic audience. Bay City has ever seen. At 9 p.m. the curtain rolled aside for the first act. The first notes to have a chance at winning hearts, were the Misses Anderson, Hathaway and Goyno and their success in this line was clearly demonstrated by the spirited applause showered upon them by the Bay City youths as well as by the charming serenade tendered, then by the Hobsonville band. After spending a night of gaiety and revelry, and in which sleep was a non essential feature, the merry troupe were ready to "show" at the next scheduled city, Nehalem. At 3:30 a.m. the jolly crowd were on their way to the fish strewn plains of Nehalem. The time in traversing the distance was spent in singing the most popular songs of the day, among which, "Those Army Beans," took a prominent place. "Holding Hands," was also a leading feature in the pleasures of the trip. Upon reaching the Nehalem, rooms were engaged, which, by the way, were only used as a refuge from the pillows and other articles of bed room essentials that were continually in the air. The play was given to an average sized and very attentive audience, and taken all together, the stay at Nehalem was pleasant to all. Sunday morning was spent in boating and in walking to and from "lower town." Macaroni, a man of undying fame in the eyes of the students who were in the play last year, was revisited this year and he made it even more impressive than before that under no consideration could his boat be hired or borrowed by the High School or any other school. At ten o'clock the bus was in waiting for the crowd to come aboard and the trip home was made merrier than the going by singing "Those Army Beans," and conversing upon all subjects that tend to make nie upon such occasions. Although there will be very little, if any, money put in the High School treasury as a result of the trip, there is no reason to believe that the players of the school will not be sent on pleasure trips in the years to come.
