The Efficacy of Prayer.

Among my esteemed neighbors there is a family known for the piety of its members and their implicit confidence in the efficacy of prayer. One of the daughters, Miss Kate B., has almost reached the age when she could be referred to ungalantly as an old maid.

LIFE OF THE ROOSES.

Flourish on the Housetops of Florence, Italy.

There still exists in Italian cities a style of roofs that is distinct and characteristic and of which the mere traveler and tourist is entirely unaware. Particularly is this the case in Florence. Mount to the top floor of these grim, big palaces standing in gloomy, sunless street, often reached by a stern, forbidding door and dark, steep stairs, and you will hold your breath with wonder at the surprise that awaits you, for here your eyes stretch an unfeigned, a red and green city of expanse and varying altitudes, a less architecturally beautiful one you have left below and behind, too, most unexpectedly by the very heart of the city, on its apex, there is no trace of the air is pure and wholesome. Indeed, its breezes are charged with the small suggestion of sea and salt breath. As for the smoke could exude from hanging above the roofs of a densely populated city, it is conspicuous by its absence, and only the faintest of meals does some faint plume rise for the briefest space into the atmosphere.—Helen Zimmer's "Verdant Roof Garden" in Century.

Grant the Hero.

General Grant was seized with a fatal illness in the autumn of 1884 and passed before the world in an enervated character. From being viewed as the stern, uncompromising and unbending military commander, the son of his simple resignation in his great suffering claimed for him fame as a hero in another life. His last battle with the great hero destined him for grander than were gained on any of his triumphant fields. It was the human side of his nature that appealed to the general sympathy of mankind. Thus his last and only hero was his greatest victory. If there were otherwise, history would have treated itself of an example of an fortitude the like of which is seldom recorded.—Dr. G. F. in Century.

New York Church Choirs.

There is a New York choir has advantages, one of which is the fact, said a soprano. "I sang in four different cities being here, and everywhere I find from month to month. That custom in most churches in other cities are afraid to enter a contract on account of water they will get into if the water is unsatisfactory. Congregations in other cities are very finicky in the matter of music. I don't take things as easy as they do here. The average New York choir is the most obliging body unless a choir is hopelessly uninteresting, so the trustees in hiring the singers by the New York Sun.

Scientific Sammy.

"I," said Mrs. Tucker, who was bringing him through the geology department of the museum, "these aerolites. They are supposed to be fragments of some planet that broken up. They come with a vibration of our planet and fall from the sky."

Her Worse Half—Wut's the trouble, Wamthany?

His Thanks.

"I notice," said the young man's employer, "that you are always about the first in the office in the mornings."

Needed Practice.

"Little girls should be seen and not heard, Ethel."

A Contradiction.

Although a woman's age is undeniably her own, she does not always own it.—Exchange.

Starting Early.

Wangles was married recently, and there was a regular hall of rice, cornetti and old shoes for good luck as he got into the cab. Moreover, on turning round he was struck above the eye by a friendly shoe with rather a heavy heel.

Circumstantial Evidence.

"You say you met the defendant on a street car and that he had been drinking and gambling," said the attorney for the defense during the cross examination.

The Old, Old Story.

Old Lady (reading a letter from her son in college)—Lor sakes alive, Joslar, if John ain't gone an done it! An' he warn't no hand fer the gals nuther!
