HILLS' OFFICIALS ARE IN TILLAMOOK.

Good Prospects of the Coast Road Being Built.

Traffic Manager J. G. Woodworth, of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, of St. Paul, Minn., with D. C. O'Reilly and E. W. Wright, of Portland, arrived in this city on Tuesday, coming down the Coast from Seaside. It is generally supposed that Mr. Woodworth came to Tillamook to look over the country in Mr. Hill's interests, for the time appears to be about ripe for the extension of the Seaside road into Tillamook and down the Coast, the preliminary survey having been completed over a year ago, and it would not surprise the people of Tillamook that when Mr. Hill visits Portland next month to celebrate the completion of the North Bank road that he will make the announcement that he will extend the Seaside road into Tillamook and build down the Coast. Quite a number of people in this county have frequently predicted that the first road to give Tillamook railroad connections would be from Seaside. Mr. Woodworth was non committal as to this railroad project, excusing himself by saying that he came from the interior to the Coast for a vacation. In his trip from Seaside he had a splendid opportunity of seeing the country north of Tillamook City and some of the best timber in Oregon. He was anxious to see the beaches, for the Hill survey comes down the Garibaldi beach, and coupled with the rumor that the condemnation suits are to be taken up at the next term of the circuit court, indicates that something of importance is taking place. When Mr. Hill does start in to build everybody knows that he will carry it through, and in the least time possible. Mr. Woodworth will have a good idea of the traffic and summer and beach travel that will develop as soon as a railroad taps this county before his summer "vacation" is over. The party took in Netarts beach on Wednesday.

JOHN W. MAXWELL IS DEAD.

Another Prominent Tillamook Citizen Passes Away.

We are sorry to announce the death of ex-State Senator John W. Maxwell, which took place at the home of his son, Mr. William Maxwell, on Wednesday morning, the cause of death being Bright's disease. Thus another prominent citizen of Tillamook County passed away, for he figured in the development and the politics of the county.

He was born in Hancock County, Ill., on the 3rd December, 1831, being the son of Abner and Isabel Maxwell. He was married twice, first to Elizabeth A. Founts on the 3rd December, 1857, to whom two children were born, one dying in childhood and the other now residing in Missouri, and on the second occasion to Esther A. Graham on the 28th June, 1868. Nine children were born to this union, five of whom are now living, viz. Mary E. Jones, of New Mexico; William Maxwell, Riley Maxwell, Bertha Carlson, and Robert Maxwell, all of Tillamook County. Mr. Maxwell served in the war of the rebellion as a union soldier, serving as a lieutenant and mustered out as captain in Company K, 7th Illinois Cavalry. He came to Oregon in 1881, locating in Eastern Oregon, and came to Tillamook in the fall of 1883. He took great interest in the development of the county and was a prominent figure in politics, for he was elected once as joint senator for Tillamook, Washington and Clatsop counties and twice as joint representative for Tillamook and Yamhill counties. A little over three years ago Mr. Maxwell moved to New Mexico on account of the sickness of his son-in-law, and it was during that time that his wife died in this city. He returned the 1st of May of this year, feeling and looking well, and it was a great surprise to his friends to be told a few weeks ago that Bright's disease had taken hold of him and that he could not recover. Deceased was a Mason and a member of the local lodge for a number of years.

The remain were buried this morning in the Oddfellows' cemetery, the funeral service being conducted by Rev. L. D. Shrode in the Grange Hall at Fairview.

MURDEROUS ASSAULT.

Victim Unconscious for Days with Concussion of Brain.

Quite an excitement occurred in this city on Saturday morning, soon after ten o'clock, when it became known that James H. Feeny, the foundry man who came here from Portland and started up the foundry, had been found on the road north of the city, but outside of the city limits, unconscious and with a wound on the head and chin, and he was in such a critical condition that he came near dying.

It seems that John Day had been looking for Feeny that morning and found him in the foundry. He invited him out, saying that he wanted to show Feeny something. The two men were seen to walk down the road together, and at the same time Dr. Smith, with Sheriff Crenshaw, took a short spin down the road in the doctor's automobile. When they returned they found Feeny bleeding from the wounds and unconscious, with Day and his wife trying to revive Feeny, having obtained water in a hat for that purpose. It was fortunate that Dr. Smith happened along at the time, for Feeny was in a critical condition and almost lifeless. He was removed to a room over the foundry shop and Sheriff Crenshaw took day into custody, who had a charge of assault and battery filed against him, Justice Sappington placing the bail at $100, which he furnished and was released from custody.

Feeny remained unconscious until Tuesday, with the exception of several brief intervals, when it appeared as if he was insane. He was taken to the home of Mrs. Walker on Monday where he could be looked after, and the next day he gained consciousness sufficiently to be able to talk, although it was with great difficulty that he did so. All that he could then remember was that Day took something from under his coat and then struck him with it. Whatever it was, a club or brass knuckles, which knocked Feeny senseless to the ground, it caused concussion of the brain. It was evident that Day had laid his plans and premeditated as to what he would do, for it seems that Day had accused Feeny of stealing beer out of his shop, and it was over this it is thought that had blood existed between the men.

Day, although saying little about the affair, admitted striking Feeny when he was down.
