

GOOD ROADS CONFERENCE

Will be Held in Tillamook City Tomorrow (Friday).

A Good Roads Conference is to be held in this city tomorrow (Friday) at the Court house, lasting all day, concluding with a banquet at the Allen house in the evening. Judge John H. Scott, president of the Oregon Good Roads Association, with a number of prominent citizens and speakers from Portland, will be present. As this is the first good roads conference to be held in Tillamook City it is to be hoped that the people will turn out. The county courts of Yamhill and Washington counties had been invited to attend, but the following letters will explain why they are unable to do so:

McMinnville, Ore., Aug. 21, 1908. Mr. Carl Haberlach, Tillamook Development League.

DEAR SIR:—I received yours of the 19th last last evening. I thank you very much for your invitation to the meeting of your good roads convention, but we will be unable to attend as we will be in the business of our county court and unable to spare the time at the date of your meeting.

Yours very truly, R. P. BIRD, County Judge.

Hillsboro, Ore., Aug. 27, 1908. Mr. Carl Haberlach, Tillamook Development League, Tillamook, Oregon.

DEAR SIR:—In reply to your invitation to attend Good Roads meeting in your city on September 4th, will say I have been making every effort to arrange matters so that either myself or one of the Commissioners could attend, but on account of the regular session of Commissioners Court on the second and third, and other important matters will be compelled to decline your kind invitation.

The subject of good roads is the paramount issue with us in Washington County, and at no time before has the popular demand for first-class macadam roads been so great with us.

The good roads meetings throughout the state should demand of our legislature an appropriation to aid the counties in this permanent road building and to place the work under state supervision.

In regard to the road by way of Willamette river from this county to Tillamook, I can assure you that this county will cooperate with you in any improvements necessary.

Wishing Tillamook county great benefits from her good roads meeting, I remain, Very truly yours, J. W. GOODIN, County Judge.

Letter from the Secretary.

Portland, Oregon, Aug. 31, 1908. Mr. Carl Haberlach, Tillamook, Oregon.

My dear Sir: The Ways and Means Committee of the Oregon Good Roads Conference has just been in session in this office, their principal theme of discussion being the Tillamook meeting.

Judge Scott will be there all day, and with him will be other members of the committee, though I cannot definitely advise who—Judge Scott's address will of course be the central feature of the meeting, and it is especially desired that the program should not be elaborate, to give every opportunity for plain results—getting talk, on practical questions.

Judge Scott will advise regarding any legal project or condition at Tillamook, taking an extra day for it if necessary. There may be some road construction you wish him to inspect, some rock quarry you want an opinion on.

Notice has gone to every newspaper of the state concerning this Tillamook meeting, and I am enclosing a few of the numerous clippings, thinking they may be of interest.

Tillamook has the honor of holding the initial meeting in a movement which will do more than any other one factor to develop the state of Oregon. And few places have more abundant resources to be opened through the medium of good roads than Tillamook county.

Each and every member of the Ways and Means Committee predict for you a rosy meeting.

Very truly yours, W. L. CRISSEY, Secretary, Ways and Means Committee, Oregon Good Roads Conference.

TILLAMOOK STAGE ROBBER.

Postal Inspector Recovers Money Taken From Stage—Shotgun Found in Valise.

Matt Jackson, alias A. Carlson alias "The Swede," who held up the Tillamook stage, robbed its three passengers and rifled the United States mails July 2 last, is under arrest in San Francisco, as has been announced in dispatches to The Oregonian. Postal inspector E. C. Clement returned yesterday from the Bay City, where he recovered about $8000 worth of checks, drafts, money orders and postage stamps, practically the total value of the booty.

Although Jackson is wanted in San Francisco for highway robbery, the California authorities will surrender their charge to the Federal officers in this state when the latter are ready to proceed with the trial. Having used a firearm and endangered the stage driver's life in committing the Tillamook robbery, Jackson will be liable to a life sentence at McNeil's Island if convicted.

When the Tillamook holdup was reported the local post inspectors sent out notices to all Pacific Coast points. These including a description of Jackson, who was suspected, he having just concluded a sentence of 14 years in the Oregon Penitentiary for robbing a street car in this city. Not long afterwards Jackson appeared in San Francisco, where he attracted the attention of the police by the lavish way in which he spent money. Automobiles and women occupied the greater portion of his time, and soon he was arrested on suspicion and lodged in the City Jail, where another old offender recognized in Jackson the man who was arrested in San Francisco about 20 years ago for highway robbery. At that time Jackson contrived to escape.

Detectives were assigned on the case and succeeded in locating in a downtown saloon a valise Jackson said was his property. In it was found a sawed-off shotgun, the same kind of a weapon that was used at Sterling City a few days before, when 15 laborers, returning from the Lumber camps, were held up by a highwayman and robbed of their wages. Later, in another saloon, the detectives found a coat, admitted by Jackson to be his property. In one of the pockets were six gold watches.

With the coat was a package which, on investigation, was found to contain the rifled mail that was taken from the Tillamook stage.

Upon examining the package Mr. Clement found that it contained, practically intact, every valuable letter and package that was taken from the stage. The robber had proceeded deliberately in rifling the contents of the pouch. Wherever a letter was found to contain a money order, check, draft or postage stamps, its contents were not disturbed, the letter of remittance being found in the contents of the envelope. Mr. Clement says this will enable the postal authorities eventually to forward all such letters to their proper destination.

When arrested Jackson was wearing the gold watch that he had stolen from J. B. Cartwright, a traveling salesman of this city, who was one of the passengers on the Tillamook stage.

Inspector Clement yesterday received from Yamhill County another package containing other mail which evidently had been thrown away by Jackson after he had appropriated the valuable paper. These letters were found near the scene of the robbery in Yamhill County.

Jackson is known to be a desperate character. Under the name of A. Carlson he was sentenced to the Oregon Penitentiary from this city in 1899 for 14 years for holding up a streetcar. Allowing for credit marks, it was possible for him to earn release by reason of good behavior.—Oregonian.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure. In all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure not known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. The Best Machines.

The idea that peace could be the formal relation of the nations never entered Napoleon's head or the head of any man about him, declares A. L. Kiehlend in "Napoleon's Men and Methods." In his mind peace could only mean a pause between two wars. He had no idea to give to the world. His thoughts did not go beyond his own life. He shrinks at once in comparison with a man of science, who expands his life to create a thought that will nourish and elevate posterity.

If Napoleon reached the highest summit of a prince and a commander, he was also the last who succeeded in gathering about his person all the glamour that had been wont to accompany and adorn the bloody business of war. There was no more of it after his fall. War became afterward an academic study. Military affairs came to resemble industrial interests, in which it is the best machines that gain the victory.

We now strip our armies of their gold cords and waving plumes. The admiral, who used to stand on the bridge in his gala uniform, with his decorations and sash, now sits in a steel box and presses buttons like a telephone girl. When the glamour goes from a thing it is near its end.

The Greatest General.

All things duly considered, the greatest general of whom we have any knowledge was in all probability the Carthaginian, Hannibal. All the information we have of Hannibal comes from his enemies, and yet what achievements they were forced to credit him with! The second Punic war—the most brilliant in history—was practically one man against a whole nation. With the army that he had molded out of raw and barbarous levies Hannibal had to fight a nation of the stoutest and best trained warriors of ancient times, and he had to do this without any assistance from home. It has been well said that there is nowhere else an example of what a single man of genius may achieve against the most tremendous odds.—New York American.

The Color of Jade.

The idea of Jade possessing the virtue of bringing the wearer food fortune arose in China, where the stone is so valued that the finding of a particularly fine piece causes the state to take possession of the land where it was found. The best specimens represent all the hues and effects of sea foam, but these are eagerly snapped up by collectors and seldom come into the public market. There is another cause for the popularity of jade. Its peculiar green tinge has the effect of making the human skin look very white. In this connection the quality of the stone is of no account so long as the color is there. Indeed, many of the less expensive jade ornaments are made from chips of the stone which contain noticeable flaws.—Pearson's.

The Actress' Retort.

Georgette Leblanc, the actress, wife of Maurice Maeterlinck, was on tour in a French town, where the local company "supported" her in one of her husband's plays.

But the support was weak and halting. The poet's lines were mangled and several characters seemed unable to understand what they were saying. Mme. Leblanc sought out her manager and spoke to him.

"A writer like Maeterlinck should be treated with more respect."

"Madame," he answered, "M. Maeterlinck is not the first to suffer. Sophocles, Moliere, Racine, Shakespeare, Goethe and other great dramatists are daily murdered in the same way."

"Possibly, but they are not murdered alive, at any rate."

The Unappreciative Londoner.

London is a marvel. But we Londoners do not wax passionate over its qualities as the enthusiastic Frenchman does over his Paris. There is more beauty, more charm, more wealth, more culture and more art to be found in London than anywhere in the world, and we stolid English people do not really appreciate it.—London Graphic.

An Unwritten Law.

The smaller man bristled up. "See here," he growled, "you have applied two unpleasant terms to me." Then he paused and scowled and came a little closer. "I just want you to understand that a third term doesn't go in this country."

Whereupon the big man drew back a little and said no more.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Located at Last.

Drummer (settling bill in Engle House, Hayfield)—Pardon my curiosity, sir, but what do you stuff your beds with in this hotel? Landlord (proudly)—Best straw to be had in this hull county, b'gosh! Drummer—Ah! That is very interesting. I know now where the straw came from that broke the camel's back!—Puck.

His Was Hers.

"I heard him behind the door pleading for just one. They must be engaged."

"Now, they're married. It was a dollar he was pleading for."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Baby Will Get Even.

Hewitt—Does your baby keep you awake? Jewett—No, I fooled him. As soon as he was born I got a job working nights.—New York Press.

A Poetic Comparison.

The poet was favoring a friendly soul with his last verses, says a writer in St. James' Budget. The verses were descriptive of a beautiful girl. The poet read:

"Her hair was massed in flowing curls, The color of a whisper."

This made the listener "sit up." "What's that?" he said. "Read that again."

"I thought you would say something about that," the poet answered. "I don't want to appear egotistical, but that little phrase gives some scope for the exercise of the mind."

"In what way?"

"Don't you see," he said, "how beautifully that describes the shade of her hair? Every poet speaks of golden hair or raven locks. To be a success one must be original. Well, she did not have golden hair. It was nearly golden, and I convey the impression by means of that one word."

The other still looked puzzled. "You have heard," said the poet patiently, "that silence is golden?"

"Yes," the other admitted.

"Well," resumed the poet, "if silence is golden what would a whisper be? It would be nearly golden, wouldn't it?"

The poet laughed again. The other was sitting down and could not stagger, so he laughed too.

Indian Burials.

The Indian method of burial was to fasten a corpse upon cross sticks supported by poles in the ground or in the boughs of the treetops. Here the air and the elements silently disposed of the lifeless clay until in a year or so but little remained to bear evidence of a tomb, perhaps some broken sticks in the top and a few scattered beads or human bones beneath the burial place. I cannot conceive of anything more pitifully grewsome than an Indian burial ground of this type. I have seen them in the fall of the year, when the winds were shaking and swaying the platforms and wringing the leafless trees, flaunting the burial rags like signals of distress from the dead and whistling through and over the whitening bones and neglected remains of those who had many a time withstood the tempest and storm when the breath of life stirred within them.—Army and Navy Life.

The Pelican.

The pelican is not an attractive bird. He offends both the eye and the nose. But he is commendably regular in his habits. The parent birds catch fish and after eating their fill deposit the others in their pouches under their bills and carry them to their young. These pouches will hold from three to eight pounds of fish. They are elastic and when distended to their utmost nearly touch the ground. When empty, the pouch lies close up under the big bill and is merely a mass of wrinkles. It is this pouch that gives the pelican his characteristic and disagreeable odor, caused by particles of decaying fish. The pelican's legs are short and strong, and its feet have large webs. It is not a fast swimmer or a rapid flier, but it is practically tireless in both air and water. On land it is awkward and unwieldy.

How Frozen Insects Revive.

Experiments in reviving frozen insects by a naturalist show some surprising results. A large cecropia moth, frozen in the center of a snowball until it was perfectly brittle, revived in twenty seconds when held near a stove. Several newly hatched moths revived in a similar manner after being frozen stiff and then thawed out. Similar experiments with ants, butterflies and house flies gave the same results. But the naturalist noticed that recently hatched insects resist cold better than older ones.

The Organ.

Like most important inventions, that of the organ is veiled in mystery. The invention of the organ has been attributed to Ctesibius, a barber of Alexandria, about 250 B. C.; also to the celebrated Archimedes, 220 B. C. It is certain that the organ was brought to Europe from the eastern or Greek empire and was applied to religious devotions in churches about A. D. 650.

Out of the Hymnbook.

A minister, having given out his "notices," was about to read his hymn when he was reminded of one notice he had forgotten. Stopping, he made this announcement, apologizing for his forgetfulness. Then, much to the amusement of his audience, he began to line out the hymn as follows: "Lord, what a thoughtless wretch am I?"—Judge's Library.

To Simplify English.

It is the vowels which are the great difficulty of English pronunciation. We want our vowel sounds standardized for us—all the pronunciations, with the correct intonations, set down for us in some intelligible and easily understood form.—Country Life.

The Genius.

Mark Twain said of genius at a New York banquet: "A genius, as an old lady in Hannibal once explained to me, is a man who knows more'n he can find out and spill's vittles on his clothes."

Handel's Philosophy.

Handel, when the curtain would rise upon a nearly empty house, would say soothingly to his associates: "Ach, never mind; the music will sound all the better!"

There are two ways of meeting a trouble—either give it no attention at all or give it a great deal of attention promptly.—Atchison Globe.

What Do They Cure?

The above question is often asked concerning Dr. Pierce's two leading medicines—"Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription." The answer is that "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most potent alternative of blood-purifier, and tonic or invigorator and acts especially favorably in a curative way upon all the mucous lining surfaces, as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels and bladder—curing a large per cent. of catarrhal cases whether the disease affects the nasal passages, the throat, larynx, bronchia, stomach (as catarrhal dyspepsia), bowels (as chronic constipation), bladder, uterus or other pelvic organs. Even in the chronic or ulcerative stages of these affections it is often successful in effecting a cure.

"Favorite Prescription" is advised for the cure of one class of diseases—those peculiar to the nervous system, such as neuritis, weakness, debility, and all irregularities incident to women only. It is powerful yet gently acting invigorating tonic and nerve. For weak worn-out, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the break-down, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most effective in building up the strength, regulating the womanly functions, subduing pain and bringing about a healthy, vigorous condition of the whole system.

A book of particulars wraps each bottle giving the formulae of both medicines and quoting what scores of eminent medical authors, whose works are consulted by physicians of all the schools of practice as guides in prescribing, say of each ingredient entering into these medicines. The words of praise bestowed on the several ingredients entering into Doctor Pierce's medicines by such writers should have more weight than any amount of non-professional testimonials, because such men are writing for the guidance of their medical brethren and know whereof they speak.

Both medicines are non-alcoholic, non-secret, and contain no harmful habit-forming drugs, being composed of glyceric extracts of the roots of native, American medicinal forest plants. They are both sold by dealers in medicine. You can't afford to accept as a substitute for one of these medicines of known composition, any secret nostrum.
