A serious accident happened on Monday to a party from Gaston, who were on their way to Netarts to camp for a few days. The wagon ran up onto the bank and turned over, and the seat catching Mrs. Allumbauth by the foot, broke her left leg so badly that the bone protruded through the flesh. Dr. Boals was called and attended to the woman's injuries. She resides at Forest Grove.

The good news of the resumption of work on the Lytle Road is drawing a strong contingent of idlers from all over Northwestern Oregon, many going in via this city both by land and sea, while many are striking for the railway front through the Nehalem country, which, by the way is considered the real trick to do as those going in that way are likely to reach the camps first.—Astorian.

The Ray Feed Company is the name of a new feed store in this city, with store room in the rear of the Tyler building. Chas. Ray, of Cloverdale, and W. G. Dwight, of this city, are back of the new feed store, and they have bought about 500 bushels of barley and oats from the valley and had it shipped direct from Portland. William Curtiss will be the manager of the feed store, and the new company solicits a share of the business.

Mrs. P. J. Jonas, teacher of the piano, has started a class of piano music in this city and another in Bay City, and those who are desirous of taking lessons will find this a splendid opportunity to do so on an accomplished teacher. She is highly recommended by professors of music in Canada, Chicago and Portland.

Glen Woolfe, a son of C. H. Woolfe, met with a bad accident on Wednesday evening by being thrown from a horse. The horse was going at a fairly good pace, and the boy did not appear to have the reins in his hand. He was seen to lean to one side and immediately after he was thrown off, striking the ditch by the side of the road with great force with his face, which caused a bad wound and knocked him senseless. He was picked up and taken to Dr. Ross' office, who attended to the injuries.

W. B. Alderman has sold his farm of about 48 acres for $14,400, Gust Wicklund paying $9,100 for about 22 acres, which is the meadow, and Andrew Anderson pays $5,000 for the 25 acres of land which was logged off this summer. Mr. Alderman has his herd of cattle, the milking machine and farm implements left, which he will auction off on the first of the month, besides his hay. The herd of cows is one of the best in the county. Mr. Alderman's 21 cows averaging him $113.61 per cow last year.

The Tillamook Lumber Manufacturing Company was incorporated on Saturday with $10,000 capital stock, the incorporators being Geo. B. Lamb, C. Haberlach, Fred C. Baker and H. T. Botts. It is proposed to erect a saw and planing mill on the mill site owned by the Tillamook Lumbering Company, and the new company is figuring with Portland firms for new machinery. Mr. Whitehouse has given the new company an option on the mill property and agreed to furnish about four million feet of logs when the saw mill is re-built.

A divorce case was filed in the Circuit Court on Tuesday by Mrs. Ida J. Davis against her husband, Otis P. Davis. These parties were married in this city on the 21st January, 1903, and there are no children born to the marriage. They resided in the State of Washington for about three years, and in the middle of the month of May, 1905 the plaintiff was obliged to separate from defendant on account of his cruel and inhuman treatment of herself and children. At the time of the marriage plaintiff had two children; that defendant had not furnished support for plaintiff and her children; that defendant had taken money from patrons when Mrs. Davis was running an hotel and that he had threatened and beaten his wife.

Harry Mitchell was arrested Saturday by Sheriff Crenshaw and was brought to this city, charged with assault with a deadly weapon upon Alvin Juhris, who was working in the saw mill at Hobsonville. It seems that Mitchell, who was under the influence of liquor, went to the saw mill and became engaged in a wrangle with Juhris. The latter was seen to make a motion as though he would strike Mitchell, who immediately procured a crow bar and struck Juhris a vicious blow across the back, above the kidneys. The blow staggered and partly paralyzed Juhris, who fell on the rollers of the saw mill, where he was taken off by some of the mill hands. When the whistle was blown for the manager Mitchell left to mill building. He had a preliminary hearing before Justice Sappington on Monday, who bound Mitchell over to the circuit court, placing the bail at $500.

We are sorry to record the death of Mrs. Flora Carter, wife of F. J. Carter, which took place in this city on Monday, after a short sickness. Mrs. Clark had been confined of a still born child, and for several days was considered to be in a critical condition, but had so far recovered that it was thought she was out of danger. Sinking spells, however, set in, and she quietly and peacefully passed away. The remains were buried on Wednesday in the Oddfellows' cemetery, the religious service being conducted by the Rev. D. L. Shrode in the M. E. church and was attended by a number of sympathizing friends. Deceased was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Rogers, and was born in Jackson Co., Oregon, on September 18, 1880. She was married to F. J. Carter, April 27, 1898. To this union three children were born, all having died in infancy. Mrs. Carter has been a great sufferer, but this she bore with meekness and patience. She was a kind and loving wife and was admired by all who knew her. She left a husband, father, mother, two brothers and three sisters to mourn their loss. Her age was 28 years and three days.

A meeting of the city council was held on Tuesday evening when Mayor S. S. Johnson and Councilmen Lamb, Wilt Williams were present. Special policemen for the show were appointed, viz., Emmett Jenkins, E. W. Stanley, N. J. Myers, W. Trombly, Eugene Jenkins and Cliff Hiner. John Harter made the same proposition to submit to arbitration the matter of the ownership of the street opposite his house, which was continued until the next meeting. H. Crenshaw, in behalf of the Electric Light Company, made a proposition to light the city with 14 arc lights for $100 per month. He was asked to submit his proposition in writing at the next meeting. An ordinance was passed for the licensing, taxing and regulation of moving picture shows, which makes it prohibitive for these shows to exhibit in the business parts of town on account of the risks from fire in connection with them. A call meeting was held on Wednesday to reconsider the ordinance because Mayor Johnson threatened to veto it, and it was decided to eliminate the distance clause, license them at $5 a week or $20 a month and they are required to comply with certain regulations as to fire protection.

A. J. HEMBREE SENTENCED TO DEATH.

All Motions and Technicalities Overruled.

DALLAS, Or., Sept. 21.—Circuit Judge George H. Burnett this morning overruled the motion to have the verdict set aside and a new trial ordered for A. J. Hembree, who was convicted of the murder of his wife last June, and sentenced the prisoner to the death penalty. Even at that most trying moment the remarkable nerve of the prisoner which has held him up in stoical calmness throughout the changing fortunes of his case did not fail him and a barely perceptible change of color was the only evidence which he gave that he had heard or heeded the words which pronounced his doom. A second motion similar to the first was filed by the attorneys for the defense and again overruled, and they were granted until November 1 to file a bill of exceptions.

Brief History of the Case.

The crime for which A. J. Hembree was sentenced to death on Monday was one of the most shocking in the history of Oregon. The murder was committed on the night of December 29, 1905, at Sandlake, in this county, where Hembree lived with his family, which consisted of a wife, daughter and two boys. It was on that night that Hembree's house was burned down and next morning a few charred remains of his wife and daughter were found, the bodies being so completely burned that when they were gathered up they only half filled a cranberry box. This caused some suspicion, for hardly any one could believe that the small frame building could have consumed the bodies so completely, and as Hembree had threatened to murder his wife and burn her body, with other suspicious circumstances in connection with the burning of the house, led people to believe that Hembree had killed his wife and daughter and then set fire to his house to cover up the crimes. Coroner Reynolds made an investigation but did not hold an inquest. Deputy District Attorney W. H. Cooper ordered Sheriff Wolfe to arrest Hembree, and he was brought to this city and charged with the murder. He waived examination and was taken to McMinnville for safe keeping, as there was no county jail at the time. Soon after bones were found in an old stove, and on being examined by two doctors, they pronounced them skull bones, one of the pieces being the bone near the ear.

At the following April term of the circuit court the grand jury returned two indictments against Hembree, one for murdering his wife and the other for murdering his daughter and at that term of court Hembree's attorneys filed a motion before Judge Galloway for a change of venue, which the judge overruled and set the date for the trial. This was before Judge McBride on the charge of murdering his daughter. It took some time to secure a jury, as a large number of citizens had their minds made up that Hembree was guilty. When the jury retired on Saturday night, eleven of the jurymen had made up their minds that Hembree was guilty. All that night and part of Sunday the jury tried to reach a verdict, but C. B. Hadley, the ex saloon keeper, held out for acquittal. As there was but little prospect of reaching a verdict some of the jurymen agreed to a compromise, as they did not want to put the county to the expense of another trial, when a verdict of manslaughter was returned. The defense then moved for a new trial, and failing to comply with this, Hembree decided that he would not stand by this, and at the next term of court, as Judge McBride had failed to come over and sentence Hembree, Judge Burnett sentenced him to an intermittent sentence, which is from one to fifteen years in the penitentiary. Hembree served 12 months in the state penitentiary, and when that time was up Governor Chamberlain paroled him, claiming that he did not believe Hembree was guilty. This aroused a good deal of indignation in Tillamook, so much so that District Attorney McNary was advised and Deputy District Attorney Cooper ordered Hembree's arrest on the indictment for murdering his wife, and much to the surprise of a good many persons Sheriff Crenshaw had Hembree locked up in the county jail before they knew that any move was made to bring him back. At the next term of the circuit court Judge Galloway granted a change of venue, and the case was taken to Polk county and tried, before Judge Burnett, the jury bringing in a verdict of murder in the first degree. Numerous motions were made on technical grounds and for a new trial, all of which Judge Burnett overruled, and Hembree was sentenced to death on Monday.

Briefly stated, Hembree committed the murders to cover up another crime, that of ravaging his daughter, a girl of 16 years, and it is generally thought that while performing an abortion upon his daughter she died under the ordeal, and to cover up all knowledge of this he murdered his wife, and after butchering and burning their remains he set fire to his house to cover up all traces of his gruesome and bloody deeds. There are several strong incidents to prove this, such as going to a doctor and asking him to perform an abortion, sleeping with his daughter in the hotel, sending his two boys away from home, and his peculiar behavior after the fire and indifference as to his wife's and daughter's fate. At both trials Hembree took the stand in his own defence, and it was this, as much as anything, which made the jury men believe that he was guilty.
