Editorial Snap Shots.

The next order of business is to raise a $400 subsidy and import a monkey show. Who will father this? Don't all speak at once.

* * *

Let the next grand jury take up the matter of the Sunday closing, and between now and November the Deputy District Attorney can make a great big catch.

* * *

So the city officials claim they could not prevent the show people from performing on Sunday. Probably not, but they could and should have arrested them for causing an obstruction upon the streets.

* * *

It would have been a disgrace to the city, wouldn't it, to have allowed the show people to have performed on Sunday. But, then, some people do not care one iota about the reputation of the city or the moral standing of the community.

* * *

A great ado was made in this city on the Fourth of July when the Socialists raised a red flag. It was a wrong thing to do on the National holiday. But we want to say this and most emphatically that in draping business houses with the Stars and Stripes for a riff raff show—especially in regard to the muscle show—it was dragging the national colors down to a very low standard of morals.

* * *

Tillamook City was not benefitted one cent by allowing the show people to pitch their tents in the main streets and block public thoroughfares. To our way of thinking this caps the climax and we hope the city council will use more discretion in the future. We are raising no objections to shows, but we do so to shows of that character occupying the business street. Here, however, is another instance of the business men fooling away hundreds of dollars to bring in a riff raff show, which neither helps the business of the city nor creates a pay roll, something which Tillamook City is sadly in need of before it can expect to grow in population. Look at it from any standpoint the riff raff show of last week was on the same order of the fakir shows in recent years.

* * *

The business men of Tillamook City does peculiar things occassionally, which calls for comment. They raised a subsidy of $400 for a few side shows to come to this city and gave them free use of the main streets, and when the show people announced that they were going to show on Sunday but few persons in the city had the moral backbone to raise a protest. When shows of that character go to other towns they have to pay a city license like other people and pay ground rent, but here in Tillamook City a subsidy is raised, the city show license is not enforced and the public thoroughfares are turned over to them. And Tillamook City does not add one cent to its finance by allowing this. Another thing, why compel the moving picture shows to pay a city license and not the show people?

Engineer Davis expects that the P. R & N Co.'s railroad will be completed in about fourteen months. We hope so and we only express the sentiment of the people of this county when we say that the completion of the railroad will afford a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction. The snap shot man is no pessimist, but we must say that we would breath with more ease if the presidential election was out of the way. We have no doubt whatever but what the railroad will be completed as soon as possible. But in the event of Bryan's election it would not surprise us much to see a slum in the money market and a cessation of work in many places. And it would in all probability affect the building of the P. R. & N. Co.'s road and other projected electric and steam roads into Tillamook. A large number of our citizens take this view of the situation, for there is a lack of confidence in Bryan in the industrial and money centers of the country.

* * *

A representative of the Oregon Coast Railway Company was in the city last week and met with a number of the business men, who wanted the people of this county to form a company, subscribe $10,000 to run a survey from the Clatsop county line to Tillamook City and secure options for rights of way to be good for two years, also, with this provision, but with nothing positive about it, that the money subscribed would be returned when the road was financed. We do not want to throw cold water on any new enterprise, but here is another promoters scheme which will meet with failure in this county, for the reason that the people have been humbugged with promoters so often. The point we want to raise is this: Tillamook County was tributary to Astoria for years, yet it did nothing to secure better transportation for this county, in fact it was Astoria people who monopolized the transportation business and the salmon industry. It is certainly pleasing to know, after all these years, that Astoria has woke up to the fact that she has lost a rich territory by hankering after a railroad into Portland and not into Tillamook.

It was the violation of the saloon law by saloon keepers which created a strong public sentiment against saloons, consequently local option is making rapid strides all over the country. The same excesses in regard to the Sunday closing law appears to be another political issue to confront the people of Oregon. This city had a striking example of this last Sunday when the show people undertook to turn the public streets of Tillamook City into a turmoil. There was nothing else to do but to put the "lid" on, and Deputy District Attorney Cooper did so. All who have the interest of the city at heart must approve of this, but in doing so the "lid" was put on the local people. In the local option fight the decently conducted saloon had to go with the low dives, so it will be in regard to Sunday closing, the respectably conducted places will have to succumb on account of the excesses of others. Having put the "lid" on we cannot see how he can consistently remove it, for it will show on the face of it that would be discrimination to do so. The city council, in giving the show people permission to monopolize the streets, should have kept them under control, and in that case it would not have been necessary for the county officials to butt in and invoke the Sunday closing, but having butted in to put a stop to what would have been a disgraceful procedure, we cannot see how Mr. Cooper can consistently receded from the position he took on Sunday. No matter whether the law is popular or unpopular it should cut no figure with prosecuting attorneys, the law should be lived up to by the people and enforced. Under these circumstances, it looks to us that there is now only one thing for the officials to do, and that is to keep the "lid" on, for failure to do so will result in Sunday's shut down being looked upon as a discrimination.

In Defence of Local Option.

[TO THE EDITOR TILLAMOOK HEADLIGHT.]

DEAR SIR,—The editor of the Herald thinks that the regulated license saloon would be better than the present system where young boys get booze and there is no money coming in the way of revenue for street improvement, lights, etc. I would rather walk through mud a foot deep than walk on the finest pavements that were built from the revenue derived from so cursed a business. The voices of starving children would cry out against me. I would feel that I was depriving them of the necessaries of life in order that I might have electric lights and fine paved streets. Before local option went into effect a friend came to me and she was sobbing and wringing her hands in blackest despair, and she said "Mrs. G—— I am going to drown myself and children, for my husband is drinking and gambling and we have nothing to eat or wear." She said "I will end it all." I said "There is a cloud in the distance and after a while if you just wait you will see the silver lining, for you know every cloud has its silver lining." She said "there is no silver lining for me." I said, "cheer up, I am sure things are going to be better for you later on." Local option carried and in a few months I met her and said, "How about the cloud" She said "my husband has not tasted liquor since local option went into effect, and we will soon be out of debt, thank God." I could tell you of dozens of such cases. There are men in our county that were always in debt when we had the lisence saloon and their families did not have enough to eat, and to-day they are independent.

Young boys used to frequent the saloons. One mother came to me and told me that her boy, only fifteen years old, had went to the saloons and had been beastly drunk more than once. They had the rottenest gambling joint out side of the lower regions. Every morning the boys in school would hear how much this one lost and that one made. Was this not a pretty state of affairs for the coming men of our land. If you want to regulate a rattle snake that is about to bite you why cut its head off with an ax and to regulate a saloon prohibit the manufacture of intoxicating liquor and you will have succeeded splendidly. You don't see a dozen men soaked with whiskey on the saloon corners every time you pass as you used to and there were ten drunks to one now, and you still have as good side walks as when the saloons were in power and the gamblers had the key to the city. Besides whiskey has caused two thirds of the divorces in this nation and furnished its quota of suicides.

Respectfully yours,
A SUBSCRIBER.

SANDLAKE.

The cold frosty nights of the past week have made the gardens have a very sad appearance.

Atkinson Brothers finished picking their cranberries Saturday. Crop very light and only a little over half as much as last year.

One of Mr. and Mrs. E I Carters, little children was badly burned while playing around a fire last week.

A Sunday School was organized on Sandlake Sunday.

Miss Grace Spaulding will commence teaching school in the Sandlake district on Monday.

Who would have thought the Cars would come to Sandlake, but they have a whole family of them.

Sandlake is settling up again, there being five new families arrived here.

U. S. Edwards lost a fine colt last week by rearing up and falling over backwards, which broke its neck. Mr. Edwards was breaking the horse to work but the horse could not see it that way.

Will Roemcke was on the lake last week.

Will Webb made a flying trip to Woods Saturday.

Miss Ethel Hoyt has accepted a position in the Cloverdale hotel and left Sandlake Tuesday to start in with her work.

Herman and Hana Tohl were picking huckle berries Sunday. They report the crop as being very short.

The blasting on the railroad can be heard very clearly hear.

Ira Diamond has eight potatoes that weigh eight pounds apiece. They are the early gem.
