

Editorial Snap Shots.

If the Portland papers are to be relied upon Dave Martiny has married a sweet young woman of "21" summers.

Now see the democratic party go to pieces. Or it may be that Hearst or the Socialist party will gobble it up, leaving Bryan stranded.

The democrats at Netarts claim that they stood the "rascals" off in that precinct, the vote being a tie—4 to 4—as a few republican did not have enough ginger in their make up to go to the polls.

It was really too bad to disappoint the democrats who were figuring upon becoming postmaster of this city. Well, do not lose heart. There is nothing to prevent Bryan from running four years hence.

Let everybody get into the booster's hand wagon and all pull together for the purpose of converting Tillamook City into a moral, progressive, up-to-date city. Bury the little hatchet and put your shoulder to the wheel.

It will be perfectly in order for the grand jury to investigate the chicken pilfering at the meat market, just to show who are the culprits and to teach them and others that breaking into people's premises will not be tolerated.

Quite a few persons on Tuesday took some delight in informing the snap shot man that they had killed his vote. That is all right. But it was a surprise to us to know that it took so many democratic clubs to kill one little, insignificant republican vote.

A great deal of credit is due the Oregonian and the country republican press for the big republican vote in Oregon on Tuesday. It was a republican landslide, and conclusively proves that newspapers like the Oregon Journal have not the influence with the voters that they claim to have.

Taft carried every precinct with the exception of two. There was a tie vote at Netarts and the demizens at Dolph must have thought the ballot box contained an infernal machine, for it was not opened, this being the second time that the election went by default in that precinct.

As an illustration of obtaining correct election forecasts, the Oregonian asked its correspondents to furnish it with a conservative estimate, which they did, predicting that Taft would carry Oregon with a plurality of 20,000 votes. The vote was 25,000, which showed that the correspondents allowed plenty of margin so as to be on the safe side.

The effort to create dissatisfaction amongst the dairymen by making the absurd and unreliable statement that they are losing $50,000 a year disposing of the cheese output has level flat and met with a frost, for the dairymen are wise enough and wide awake enough to let well enough alone. It is really too bad that the dairymen won't bit at another creamery stock bait, so as to allow the speculators and the middlemen to make a profit.

Evidently the dairymen, judging from the votes cast on Tuesday, did not want butter fat to drop to 12c a pound, that being the price paid under the last democratic administration. And because we pointed out this fact it appears to have aroused the political ire of a few worn out democratic war horses. Don't feel too bad about it, gentlemen, the dairymen have now a broad smile on their countenances, with an assurance that there will be but little fluctuation in the price of butter fat.

There are nine councilmen in the City of Portland who are doing more to make that city "dry" than the prohibitionists, for they want women in saloons. That alone will create a strong anti saloon sentiment, and it would not surprise us much to see the whole state go "dry" if the liquor interests think they can run things like they used to. It was the lawlessness and depravity of saloon keepers in other parts of Oregon which placed so many counties in the dry column, and it is surprising that they cannot see the drift of public sentiment now that the public conscience is aroused in Oregon. The councilmen of that city, although they may not be aware of it, are doing a great deal to make Multnomah "dry," as well as the entire state.

The Headlight for a number of years advocated that Hoquarton should be straightened and deepened, and it gives us much pleasure to note the large vote cast on Tuesday to re-organize the Port of Tillamook Commission. This is a matter of much importance to this city, and with a Commission composed of men who will get in and do something, we see no reason why Tillamook City cannot have a good wide harbor and a deep straight channel leading to it. And this can be accomplished at comparatively little cost. It is pleasing to note, however, that the improvement of the harbor and the slough is a project where all can pull together and carry through without any knocking.

The people of Tillamook were greatly surprised last week when it became known that a conspiracy had been successfully carried out in spiriting away Eva Wolfe, who is the principal witness in the Wolfe rape case. This was done to defeat justice and to defeat the District Attorney's office in the prosecution of the case, allowing Wolfe, charged with rape upon his own daughter, to go free. It is the duty of the officials to unearth this conspiracy and bring the perpetrators of this conspiracy before the bar of justice. The seriousness of the case demands it and the people of this county also have a right to demand it. The system of tampering with witnesses in Tillamook county is no new thing, for it is a well known fact that numbers of witnesses have gone on the witness stand and testified falsely to defeat justice. This is a condition of affairs which should not be allowed to exist, and, probably, this system has been brought about by the trickery of attorneys, who resort to such methods, when they find that the preponderance of evidence is against them. Now that there appears to be a clear case of tampering with the State's witness and spiriting her away, the Press and the people await the action of District Attorney J. H. McNary and the grand jury next week. This is the second time this year that the State's witnesses have been tampered with in Tillamook City, and it is allowed to continue there is no telling what the next conspiracy will be to defeat justice. This is a serious menace to our courts of justice and to litigants who have to resort to law to obtain their rights.

CLEVER DETECTIVE WORK.

Eva Wolfe Captured in Nebraska by Sheriff Crenshaw.

When it became known on Monday week that Eva Wolfe, the State's witness in the Wolfe case had been spirited out of the county, Sheriff Crenshaw and Deputy District Attorney Cooper became busy, and lost no time in unearthing her whereabouts. Although several false reports were circulated to mislead them, they eventually got onto what they thought was the right track, for it was surmised that the girl had been sent to one of three places. Which for some time was not known. Sheriff Crenshaw slipped off the middle of last week and had few persons knew that he had left the county, for the middle west, where some of the girl's relatives resided, and where she had been sent.

A message was received from Sheriff Crenshaw on Monday from Nebraska, which signified that he had captured the girl and had left for Tillamook.

The Election in Tillamook

The election in Monday passed off quietly, and the vote was below what was expected. The republican vote was 66 and the democratic 252, being a plurality of 374. The official count will probably change, these figures in a few precincts. Dolph precinct did not organize, and Taft carried every precinct in the county with the exception of Netarts, where it broke even. Following are the figures:

Table with 3 columns: Precinct, Rep., Dem. Rows include Hoquarton, Tillamook, Fairview, South Prairie, Bay, Foley, Garibaldi, Nehalem, Barnegat, Beaver, Carnahan, Hebo, Blaine, Union, Little Nestucca, Sandlake, Netarts.

The Port of Tillamook Commission amendment carried by a big vote, as follows: Hoquarton; For 91, against 14; Tillamook; For 109, against 27.

The vote for or against stock running at large was overwhelming to keep stock up, and was as follows: Hoquarton, For 50, against 92; Tillamook, For 54, against 94; South Prairie, For 8, against 48; Fairview, For 15, against 46.

The official count will be given next week. Taft carried every county in Oregon and his plurality will be about 25,000. Taft swept the country, having 309 votes, with two states, Maryland and Missouri, in doubt. He carried New York.

Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflammation of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever, since cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

SYMPTOMS OF RABIES.

Signs by Which You May Know When a Dog is Really Mad.

Hydrophobia is so rare and terrifying that its symptoms and treatment are little understood. As a matter of fact, the commonly accepted expression of madness in a dog is often misleading. The real mad dog does not shun water, as it is said. On the contrary, mad dogs often rush to the water and drink it eagerly, if they are able to swallow. The mad dog does not froth at the mouth. It does not run amuck, snapping at everything in its path. What, then, are the indications of the mad dog? To those familiar with a given dog the surest symptom and the one which should excite closest attention is a distinct and unaccountable change in the dog's disposition, a staid dog becoming excitable and a frisky one dull. That condition does not necessarily mean rabies, but it is suspicious, and in addition the dog has trouble in swallowing, as though it seemed to have a bone in its throat, beware! That dog should be instantly tied up, because if it be rabies it takes but a day or two for ferocious instincts to develop. The unmistakable evidence, however, of a dog with rabies is the sticky, whitish saliva which covers the teeth and shows on the drawn lips. The eyes glare and are red; the dog has paroxysms of running fury, during which it barks hoarsely, which alternate with periods of temporary exhaustion. — Caspar Whitney in Outing.

BORED AND PLUGGED.

The Truthful Story of a Ship Struck by Lightning.

"In Duluth down on the docks some days ago some fresh water Ancient Mariners were talking of adventures on the raging main," began an old steamship man. "Captain H.' said one, 'it seems to me I've heard somewhere that your vessel was once struck by lightning while sailing, sailing over the bounding main?'"

"'Yep, twice,' said Captain H. 'Happened off Point Aux Barques 'bout fifteen years ago. We were joggin' 'long when a thunderstorm overtook us, and the very first flash of lightning struck the deck amidships and bored a hole as big as my right leg right down through the bottom of the vessel.'"

"'And she foundered, of course?'" "No, sir. The water began rushin' in, and she would have foundered, but there came a second flash, and a bolt struck my foretop gallant mast. It was cut off near the top, turned bottom end up, and as it came down it entered the hole and plugged it up as tight as a drum. When we got down to drydock we simply sawed off either end and left the plug in the planks.'"—Washington Herald.

Fatalities.

"Yes," said the beautiful young thing, "when I asked papa if I might go mountain climbing he took my head off. But I had my own way, of course, and finally the crowd got started, and you know they made me put on a lot of wraps and things that simply suffocated me. And about halfway up I slipped and fell over a cliff and broke my neck! Indeed, yes. And when they had lifted and pulled me back on the trail I absolutely died from pain. But before long I was able to go on to the top, but by the time we were almost there I collapsed and sat down, for I could never breathe again. But they made me pull myself together and in time we got to the summit, and there it was so cold I froze to death! Oo-oo! And I was glad, I can tell you, when we came down at last, and as soon as they got me home I went to bed, dead from exhaustion."—Independent.

Will Remember His Friends.

When Patrick McGinnagan became a member of the Chicago police force a delegation of his friends burst in upon him while he was at dinner and presented him with a handsome night stick in honor of his popularity and their esteem. Completely bewildered by this unexpected token, the new policeman nevertheless struggled to his feet and stammered his appreciation. "Friends, ye have upset me wid y'r kindness," he said, flourishing the night stick. "O'ill try an' do me duty wid this little shillalah, and I hope an' trust that ivry man her'll live t' feel its indoolence."

The Alphabet.

The great Phoenician alphabet, the parent of every form of European writing and of the scripts of Persia, Arabia and India as well, owes but little to Egypt. It is true that in the construction of their alphabet the Phoenicians made use of certain hieratic characters found in their trade dealings with Egypt, but this fact in no way detracts from the glory of the invention which belongs to the "Yankees of antiquity."—New York American.

A Woman's Era.

"If I were a man" is surely a very unnecessary cry these days. The epoch of the man is past. The twentieth century is the era of the woman.

There is with a few very slight exceptions nothing that a woman as a woman cannot do, and do every bit as well as if she were a man.—London P. T. O.

OUR BIG COUNTRY.

A Season When the Sun Never Sets on the Stars and Stripes.

There is only one flag that the sun never sets on—the British. But the American flag is a close second, for the sun during half the year never sets on it either. That is to say, these two are the only flags that the sun is continuously shining over, no matter what his position in the heavens—the one all the year round and the other during exactly half the year, from March 22 to Sept. 22.

Of course it is true that on no day at all during the year can the sun be seen from any two points of continental United States at all times during a period of twenty-four hours. But the United States naval observatory has made careful calculations which by including Alaska, Porto Rico and the Philippines show that between the spring and fall equinoxes the sun never ceases to shine in the eyes of the American eagle.

Perhaps nothing could make us realize how great a nation our expanded country is better than this simple astronomical fact. Moreover, within these two dates there are also several other pairs of eastern and western extreme points where the same condition obtains, though for much shorter times.

It is not generally known, but the easternmost point in the United States and its island possessions is in the island of Porto Rico—longitude 85 degrees 12 minutes west, latitude 18 degrees 20 minutes north. The westernmost point is in Balobe island, in the Philippines—longitude 116 degrees 40 minutes east, latitude 8 degrees 0 minutes north. When the sun is at what the calendar makers call "north declination" of 0 degrees 19 minutes—that is to say, on March 22 and on Sept. 22—it rises in Porto Rico at exactly the same time that it sets in the island of Balobe. Between these two dates during the winter months the sun does set on the United States, and during the remainder of the year, the summer months, it does not.—Scrap Book.

RATTLESNAKES' TEETH.

If You Should Happen to Get Any, Handle Them With Care.

The zoo keeper carefully unfolded a small paper packet, which looked as if it might contain a headache powder. "Want a rattlesnake's tooth?" he inquired.

"Tooth?" "Well, call it a fang if you want to, but ain't there something in the good book about 'sharper than a serpent's tooth'? Look at this one and you'll think that the old fellow that wrote that must have known what he was talking about."

He opened the paper and showed what seemed like a miniature horn. It was shaped like a cow horn, which has only one curve. It was yellowish white, like a discolored tooth.

It was about three-quarters of an inch long and a sixteenth of an inch in diameter at the base, where it seemed as if it had been broken off. The point was as sharp as a needle. An eighth of an inch back of the point, on the outer curve of the tooth, was an opening, the end of a sort of tube, which ran the whole length of the tooth.

This little channel through the tooth seemed to be full of a dried substance, which the zoo keeper evidently regarded with proper suspicion, for he warned the recipient of the tooth to handle the same with care. He did not think that one would get a true case of snake bite from one of these discarded teeth, but if the skin should be scratched or pierced by it a bad sore would probably result.

According to him, the keepers at the zoo often pick up these loose teeth in the snake cages. They are apparently shed in the course of natural changes, something as the serpent sheds his skin. They are not merely the snake's baby teeth, for he sheds them more than once.—Washington Post.

The Gaelic Language.

The old Gaelic language was spoken by all the branches of the great Celtic race, for, while a dialect of the Celtic language, it was so like the other Celtic dialects that no Celt would find difficulty in speaking it. Specifically, it was the speech of the Manxmen, Welsh, Scotch highlanders, Cornishmen, Bretons and many of the Irish. It is still spoken in some parts of Ireland, Wales, the highlands and the Isle of Man.—New York American.

A Mere Pittance.

He came with a note from her, an' she said in the note, "I must find employment for my boy, even if he works for a mere pittance." The nerve of her callin' me "a mere pittance!"—Philadelphia Press.

A Dry Joke.

"Will you take something to drink?" "With pleasure." The photo was taken, and the sitter said: "But what about that little invitation?" "Oh, sir, that is just a trade rose of mine to give a natural and interested expression to the face."—Tit-Bits.

RAN INTO HEAVY SEA. STEAMSHIP ROSE CITY REPORTS TROUBLE. WEATHER OFF COAST.

Terrific seas broke over the liner, Rose City, Captain Kalmeyer, her trip up the coast, and many passengers on board wished for a moment or two that he was ashore. It was worst blow experienced the year on record to the crew of the liner of the San Francisco line. The liner reached Ainsworth wharf at 10 o'clock this morning none the less her experience, however. She had a good cargo of freight and passengers filed over the gang planks. The craft had made last.

Golden Gate to Cape Mendocino, steamer pitched in a fearful sea and had to buck a living gale for a number of days. After that the weather moderated slightly towards the north. Off Tillamook the steamer passed the torpedo boat Davis, towing another of the five wasp warships. That rescued harbor this afternoon.

W. D. Gladwill and family spent Saturday at the home of J. J. Blaine. We are told it was a happy celebration.
