The High School girls have become in a basket ball of late. Societies have each one team, and the girls are thinking of getting a team. They were organized in the middle of last week, and have been practicing hard and all of us to see the rain commence. The team are as follows:
Captain—Violet Noyes.
Jennie Blanchard,
Viola Mapes.
Daisy Goodspeed,
E. L. S. are:
Captain—Eula Noyes.
Elsie Lamb,
Mabel Edmunds,
Eva Wheeler.

It has been heard singing quite late, and this is what he sings:
"Because your hair is curly,
And your eyes are blue;
Reason why I love you,
Is you, just you."
Why E's cheek are such a pale color.
I am glad to hear that the Misses, Carrie Hathaway and Clara are coming home to spend Christmas Holidays.

Editors wonder if Albert will be much time in sweeping the first while Miss Marvel is sick.
Results of Kindness.
News, Harold, "his mother asked me quietly into the house. She have asked, for Harold's face sober and his merry whistle usually announced his approach heard that evening.
"Very sorry, but I have inquired, and could not get work. I one newspaper office, but he seem to need anybody but a boy hands, and would only give him, and I am afraid it would take to earn $12."
"Now, son, you must not give up. I'd probably mean life to little we could have a change of.
"For the doctor was here to-day she would rather have to go to a climate, where there would be bees, or she might take quick tion, and then there would be that could save her."
At thirteen was a very industrious little girl who wanted to get into the struggle to obtain food for the little family, and as she went into the room talk ceased, and his mother began talking of other things which were more pleasant. They all gathered around the fire place, and as the mother read a few verses from the old family Bible, Harold was strengthened for the next days trial and he went to bed and slept peacefully.

When Harold woke up the next morning the sun was shining brightly, and he thought of the little cottage which was advertised in the paper for $2 a month in the pleasant country of California. Oh, if I could only earn $12 to pay rent for six months and then we would have an income from the garden, and the two cows, which might enable to pay the rent and live.

While at breakfast that morning he and his mother were wondering what ever because of the man whom they gave a home to when very ill. He said something about his paying us back for our kindness to him, but I suppose he has forgotten us, said Harold.
Just then carriage wheels were heard, and who should it be but the gentleman they had been speaking of.
Two weeks later Harold was whistling merrily as he was packing things into the old trunk.
The mother was also busy packing, and she thought of the goodness of the man whom they had taken care of. For he had given them money to buy the little cottage in California, and now Dottie would grow up good and strong.
"I think we are done now mother, dear," said Harold, "and now, Dottie, you can get your hat and coat on and get ready for a long sea voyage."
—By MABEL GOYNE.

It is rumored among the students of the High School that Prof. Eberman will take charge of the high school after the holidays. L. Eberman is highly recommended by the teacher and scholars of the Primary grades.

The High School girls have suddenly taken a mania for athletics. Both societies have a basket ball team and Capt. Carry Olson has picked out a base ball team. Next season she expects to have a foot ball team that will be strong enough to play O. A. C.

His father once found it necessary to rather severely punish Lynn in his younger days. The little chap went running to his aunt with resentment in his heart.
"Auntie," he sobbed, "Did God make you?"
"Yes Lynn," she answered.
"And did he make me?"
"Yes."
"And did he make me?"
"Certainly, my boy."
"And did he make pa too?"
"Of course he did."
"Well," sobbed Lynn, "that's where he made his mistake."
Ernest Kirby was elected organist of the L. T. S. last Sunday afternoon. Carrie wanted Percy to hold that position but the others seemed to prefer Ernest.

The societies debaters are working on the troyout debate which will decide who will debate with Astoria this year. Our debators will go there this year instead of Astoria coming here.

Mable and Warren are lovers of old, Warren's love is deep, he cares not for gold.
But Ralph has fancies he dreams about, And the thought comes to him, "I'll cut Warren out."
But Mabel's love is as true as steel, And love for Ralph she does not feel, So when Ralph says, "will you my true love be,"
This pretty maid says, "For you twenty-three."
Now Ralph's soul with despair is rent, And on a downward course he is bent, While Warren's ambitions are on a higher plain
And no other maid's love he strives to gain.

Miss Shirk: "What is knowledge?"
Theo. Finney: "That part of ignorance which can be classified."
A Bear Story.
It was a bright beautiful day in July when the white fleecy clouds were lazily floating overhead and the birds were singing merrily, that four young girls started out for a walk. They were going a little way up the mountain to see some falls which they had heard much about and longed to see.
They walked and walked until it seemed they would never reach those falls, but at last they found themselves at their destination and there they stayed until they grew tired of looking at the falls and then turned to go home.

On the way back two of the girls grew very tired and climbed up on a stump to eat huckleberries and rest. The other two moved on, but suddenly a most startling scream was heard from both of them. Hurrying to the scene of confusion they found that the two girls had seen a bear drinking from the spring but upon seeing them had hastily taken its departure up the hillside.

The girls being very plucky picked up the largest clubs they could find and started up the mountain after the bear. They soon found, however, that they were too slow, so they went swiftly home and told the men folks about it. The men grabbed their guns and started out. The end of this exciting narrative is this: When the men returned they carried a large bear with them and one of the girls now has a rug in her room made of its hide.

By Elsie Lamb.
The Emersonians will give their third program Friday the tenth.
"The rain fell in torrents, and great was the fall thereof."
The High School pupils, with the help of Mr. Goldsworthy, intend to give an entertainment the last Friday night before the holidays.

Estella Miles has lots of smiles, For all of those around her, She watches the styles, In the newspaper isles And oyer them she does ponder.

The Tenth Grade would like to know what Miss Centerwall said to Mr. R. Friday that made him cranky.

The E. L. S. girls have secured the promise of Tommy Holman to coach their basket ball team.
The High School foot ball team at a meeting last week decided to disband for the season. Tommy's injury received in the last game disabled him for the season and Capt. Bramwell cannot play Christmas. The team also heard that Kid Edmunds could not play any more this season and it disheartened the team so greatly that there was a unanimous vote for disbanding.

Cheer Up. Don't Be a Grumbler
TO EDITOR OF TILLAMOOK HEADLIGHT.
Take it all in all this is a pretty good world. There are love and sunshine sprinkled through it. There is beauty of the ocean and of the hills, of the rivers and of mountains. There are flowers and birds in it, and its nights are crowned with stars.
Pretty good old world, don't you think so? People in it might be improved, I admit, but you and I are of them, and we are not the ones to render judgment. Besides, if we don't like them we can let them alone. We can at least make ourselves better, and that is so much in the right direction.

But this is not a sermon, only an attempt to say that the planet, whose name is earth, on which we are now functioning is not a very good world for a kicker, not but what there are evils to reform, millions of them. But did you ever know a man afflicted with a chronic case of sourhead to do much toward reforming the world? Now did you?

The way to reform the world is to go about it with a loving and honest heart, and willing hand to be strong. The man who whines and grumbles is nearly always weak. Do not abuse the fate, but put your shoulder to the wheel. Do not swear at the world because it has not developed to your ideal, but grab hold of the car of humanity and push it along in the journey up the mountain to success we must all help.

If you see a wrong and there are so many of them to see, speak out frankly and manfully, oppose it with energy. Point out a better way. But don't grumble.
