Tillamook Jottings.

C. W. Thomas and wife and son came in from Kansas to locate in this county, and had quite an experience in reaching here. After waiting in Astoria for over a week for the steamer, they were left there on account of too many passengers, so they came in over the trail from Seaside. Mr. Thomas expects to go into the dairy business and is well pleased with the look of the dairy farms.

The steamer Sue H. Elmore left Saturday with the following passengers: Mrs. Miller and child, C. N. McReynolds, J. F. Catterall, A. F. Sholeston, J. Barrett, Mrs. Bennett and children, J. Mages, Mrs. P. Fowler, Mrs. Brindler, G. Atwater, R. Hollister, C. Lutman and family and Mrs. Larson. She is expected in today and the full number of passenger tickets are disposed of for her next trip from here.

George W. Grayson was down from the Trask river this morning. He has had considerable trouble in keeping the Trask road open the past few weeks on account of snow in the mountains. Twelve horses and six men were used to tramp the snow down and keep a trail open, and it was a long and hard day's work to make the trip from Fairdale to Trask in one day. There was about six feet of snow and it was wet and sloppy.

The Tillamook Hose Company's dance on Monday evening was well attended, and from a financial point of view was a great success, and a great deal of praise is due Dr. H. Morris and Joe Illingsworth for its success. Most of the business men gladly took a number of tickets to help the boys out, the committee reporting but few who raise objections to taking tickets. The Hose Company has now a large membership ready to protect the city from fire at any time, and as money raised in this and other ways go to buy fire appliances, the good cause was again helped along by the dance on Monday and the treasury will be raised over $100 by the dance after expenses are paid.

At the request of Representative W. C. Hawley, the river and harbor committee has passed a resolution asking the Board of Army Engineers to go over data now in their possession and report to Congress a feasible project for improving the Tillamook River from its mouth to Tillamook City. Before making its report, the Board is instructed to confer with the commercial bodies of Tillamook. [We presume this is meant for a project for improving Hoquarton slough from Tillamook river to Tillamook City, and Representative Hawley is to be congratulated upon getting the government to take hold of this improvement, for it will mean a great deal to this city to have a straight channel.—Ed.]

On Monday morning Homer Baker, son of Elmer Baker, was sent to Mrs. Morton's for a dress. He was told to come in, and Mrs. Morton went to the next room to get it for him, which took but a short time. After he was gone she missed her purse, containing $20, and she at once had her suspicions aroused that the boy had taken it, which proved to be correct, for he went to Patzلاف and bought a pair of gum boots, and from there went to King & Smith's store, where he bought some shells and hired a shotgun, paying for the same with the stolen money. The boy then went to Netarts to hunt, and when he returned he was accused of stealing the purse and money and owned up to it.

Tillamook reports the manufacture of 1500 tons of cheese in the county in 1908, the total value being $400,000. Here is freight traffic in as compact a form as could well be found, and may account for the light outward traffic by steamer from that rich coast port. While $400,000 worth of cheese was reduced to but 1500 tons of freight, the same value in wheat at present high prices would produce more than 12,000 tons of freight, and at ordinary prices fully 15,000 tons. In lumber the showing from a freight traffic standpoint is even more striking, for $400,000 worth of the ordinary run of Tillamook lumber would weigh more than 60,000 tons, or forty times as much as the same value in Tillamook County cheese. The Tillamook cheesemakers have some difficulty in reaching a market, but, from the figures on the product, there is a very small portion of the gross receipts paid out for freight.—Oregonian.

Editorial Snap Shots.

Be a booster! But not of the lawless class.

It is a pretty bad reputation to be caught in the sheriff's muck rake.

There's quite a number of other person who need watching from now on, Mr. Sheriff. But perhaps he has them in his muck rake.

Oh, yes, there are two factions in Tillamook City. The lawless faction and the law abiding, progressive faction. And which faction are you lined up with?

We are sorry to hear that the Sage of Hemlock is under the weather and in consequence the infant prodigy, Turner's Leaflet, has given up the ghost. He has our sympathy, with the hope that he will not follow the defunct sheet.

The state legislature would not allow the local option law to be amended in any particular, not even to pass a bill to enforce the law to better effect. The legislators contended that where the law is violated in "dry" counties the proper thing to do is to remove the officers and elect others who will enforce the law.

It used to be that those who kept the gambling joints in this city paid the city marshal to protect them, consequently the city lost hundreds of dollars in fines. And is it not remarkably strange also that since local option went into effect no person has been arrested for selling liquor for violating a city ordinance.

It is a matter of impossibility to have a decent, respectable city as long as there is a class of individuals who violate the law. They violated the law when there were saloons and they violate the law when there are no saloons. And they will do so until such time as the people rise up in indignation and demand that they be put where they belong—in jail. The city has been pestered with a dirty, lawless outfit for years, and we do not expect to see much improvement as long as chicken hearted methods are used to put a stop to it.

A point that needs to be taken up by the dairymen and cheesemakers of the different factories is: Does the milk from cows fed with yellow weed hay have off flavor? If so, then first grade cheese cannot be made from it. We see that the cheesemakers are insisting that they be supplied with clean, sweet milk, which is a proper demand if they are expected to turn out cheese which will grade A1. We will go a step farther as to where the starting point should begin. First, in having healthy cattle, and, second, in feeding them with wholesome, succulent food. Not knowing what a chemical analysis would produce, common sense seems to tell us that the milk from cows fed with clean hay and other wholesome provender would be more wholesome than the milk from cows which are fed with all kinds of weeds and brush. But Old Bossy is expected to turn nauseous, rank weeds into wholesome milk by some dairymen. Here is where the off flavor in milk originates in a great many instances, only to vex and annoy the cheese and butter makers who are expected to make a first grade article from weed tainted milk.

Lawlessness in Tillamook City is no new thing to contend with and no one need be surprised to see the curtain raised again, giving the people a small glimpse of what is going on behind the scenes. It is unfortunate for the city that such a condition of affairs have existed for so many years, and how to successfully grapple with it must be solved before this city can hope to become a clean, respectable, progressive, business town or center. Under the saloon regime lawlessness was rampant, and under local option the same lawless faction is violating city ordinances and state laws. And they will continue to do so, even should the county go "wet." So whether the county is "wet" or "dry," every citizen can see for themselves that the lawless element defy both city and county officials to make them amenable to the law. After local option carried there was a marked improvement in the city when the joints were closed. That was when the leaders in the city's lawlessness had left the city with their pips. The leaders in the recent lawlessness are amongst those who were leaders in the lawlessness and robbery which was carried on when saloons were running. The question which now confronts the citizens and which is of paramount importance to the city's future welfare, is not the saloon question, but whether the lawless element is to go on unchecked as they have done for so many years. The people of this county showed their disgust of lawlessness when they put the saloons out of business, for that was the reason, and if we do not misjudge public opinion, the respectable, law abiding citizens are becoming terribly disgusted with the lawless element and those who aid and defend them. For a number of years we have been in hope of seeing a better state of affairs, but alas, the same lawless faction continues to give Tillamook City a tough name, making people disgusted living in such a community and having to associate with such people. We repeat what we said before, as long as this condition of affairs exists, no one need expect Tillamook City to become a well-governed, wide awake business city, for wherever the lawless element predominate it is a well-known fact that it pulls down and never builds up a city. And how long are the citizens going to allow the lawless element to degrade the city and public morals?

THE BOOTLEG CASES.

Some False Swearing in Justice Sappington's Court.

The first bootleg case to be tried as a result of Sheriff Crenshaw's latest roundup of bootleggers took place on Tuesday before Justice Sappington and a jury composed of Morrison Mills, Harrison Booth, Dan Goodspeed, D. Fitzpatrick and Gus Wicklund, when W. O. Chase, accused of violating the local option law, was placed on trial, and the evidence proved false swearing somewhere in the case.

A D. Oliver, the State's witness, testified that at about three o'clock on the 23rd January he walked with Chase, from Billy Stephens to Chase's house, where Chase obtained two pint bottles of whiskey, for which Oliver paid him $1.50. The bottles were turned over to Sheriff Crenshaw on that day and marked, and at the trial they were produced and Oliver identified them.

Chase went on the stand in his own behalf, testifying that he was stocktaking in Edmund Bro.'s store on the day in question. He admitted that he had been convicted of gambling. The defence called Mrs. Chase, George Edmunds and Gorman Munson to back up Chase's story, but Munson admitted that he was in a different part of the building and did not see Chase often.

The jury brought in a verdict for the defendant, dismissing the case.

The case against Earl Ford, on motion of District Deputy Attorney Cooper, was dismissed, the justice taxing the cost of the case to the complaining witness, G. Balmer.

The next case to be tried is that of W. Langworthy on Friday, and he has waved a jury trial.

C. R. Kluger, the Jeweler, 1050 Virginia Ave., Indianapolis, Ind., writes: "I was so weak from kidney trouble that I could hardly walk a hundred feet. Four bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy cleared my complexion, cured my backache and the irregularities disappeared, and I can now attend to business every day and recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy to all sufferers, as it cured me after the doctors and other remedies had failed."—J. S. Lamar, Tillamook; Hawk & Miller, Bay City.

Hexamethylene-teramine
The above is the name of a German chemical, which is one of the many valuable ingredients of Foley's Kidney Remedy. Hexamethylene-teramine is recognized by medical text books and authorities as a uric acid solvent and anti-sputic for the urine. Take Foley's Kidney Remedy as soon as you notice any irregularities and avoid a serious malady.—J. S. Lamar, Tillamook; Hawk & Miller, Bay City.

What Do They Cure?

The above question is often asked concerning Dr. Pierce's two leading medicines, "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription." The answer is that "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most potent alterative or blood-purifier, and tonic or invigorator and acts especially favorably in a curative way upon all the mucous lining surfaces, as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels and bladder, curing a large per cent. of catarrhal cases whether the disease affects the nasal passages, the throat, larynx, bronchia, stomach (as catarrhal dyspepsia), bowels (as mucous colitis), bladder, uterus or other pelvic organs. Even in the chronic or ulcerative stages. Even in affections it is often successful in affecting the cures.

"The Favorite Prescription" is advised for the entire class of diseases—those peculiar weaknesses, disturbances and irregularities incident to women only. It is a powerful yet gently acting invigorating tonic and nerve. For weak worn-out, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the break-down, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most effective in building up the strength, regulating the womanly functions, subduing pain and bringing about a healthy, vigorous condition of the whole system.

A book of particulars wraps each bottle giving the formula of both medicines and quoting what scores of eminent medical authors, whose works are consulted by physicians of all the schools of practice as guides in prescribing, say of each ingredient entering into these medicines.

The words of praise bestowed on the several ingredients entering into "Doctor Pierce's" medicines by such writers should have more weight than any amount of non-professional testimonials, because such men are writing for the guidance of their medical brethren and know whereof they speak.

Both medicines are non-alcoholic, non-secret, and contain no harmful habit-forming drugs, being composed of glyceric extracts of the roots of native, American medicinal forest plants. They are both sold by dealers in medicine. You can't afford to accept as a substitute for one of these medicines of known composition, any secret nostrum.

Dr. Pierce's Peppets, small sugar-coated, easy-to-take as candy, regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

Selling "Carlyle."

Here is Whistler's story of how he sold his famous picture of Carlyle to the Glasgow corporation: I received them, well, you know, charmingly, of course, and one who spoke for the rest asked me if I did not think I was putting a large price on the picture—1,000 guineas—and I said, "Yes, perhaps, if you will have it so!"

And he said that it seemed to the council excessive. "Why, the figure was not even life size."

And I agreed. "But, you know," I said, "few men are life size."

And that was all. It was an official occasion, and I respected it. Then they asked me to think over the matter until the next day, and they would come again. And they came, and they said, "Have you thought of the thousand guineas and what we said about it, Mr. Whistler?"

And I said, "Why, gentlemen, why, well, you know, how could I think of anything but the pleasure of seeing you again?"

And naturally, being gentlemen, they understood, and they gave me a check for the thousand guineas.

The Southern Art of Conversation.

The north may think it knows something of conversation, but the north, as compared with the south, may be said never to have enjoyed a conversation. About the village courthouse, within the hospitable doors of some central store, in the office of the local daily or weekly paper or, above all, in the leisurely and genial intercourse around the fireside or on the inviting porch in summer of friend with friend, there will be heard a conversation which in wit, in the charm and force of its illustrations and in the directness and freedom of its criticism is not surpassed in American life today.

It is the product of leisure, of a world without haste, without ruthless preoccupations, without those resources of expression and interest which belong to the crowded and overweighted existence of the commercial city. It is, moreover, part of the tradition of the cavalier. It is part of the genius of climate and soil and social habit.—E. G. Murphy in "The Present South."

Sour Milk Cow.

The woman was new to the country, and her host took great pains to explain to her whatever she didn't understand about the farm. He had little regard for the truth, this farmer; he delighted to test her gullibility to the utmost.

The cows seemed to interest her more than any other domestic animal. One of the cows had lost her tail somehow, and this fact led the woman to ask why it was.

"That's the sour milk cow," the farmer explained, with a straight face. "We always cut the tail off one cow in the herd so as to get sour milk fresh every day."

The woman looked her doubt. "It's perfectly true," the farmer insisted. "You see, when the cow's tail is gone the sun shines continually on the cow's udder, and the constant heat sours the milk."

Few Buried Alive.

"It might be incidentally mentioned for the relief of anxious souls," says Dr. Woods Hutchinson in the American Magazine, "that the risk of any individual passing into a trance and remaining in it long enough to be buried alive is exceedingly slight. There is no authentic instance of the having ever occurred. I took occasion to investigate this question some years ago and communicated with a number of leading undertakers, and they all unanimously denounced it as one of the myths of the times. One of them at the time president of the National Funeral Directors' association, informed me that he had carefully investigated every instance of 'buried alive' reported in the newspapers for fifteen years past and found every one of them to be, in his own language, 'a pure fake.'"

Legs and the Alps.

In the visitors' book of one of the Swiss hotels an observing traveler has inscribed the following lines:
Some dashing young tourists, I see,
Wear trousers which end at the knee.
"Trousers better by half."
Just to cover the calf—
At least where the calf ought to be.
Only those who have seen the scrawny legs, incased in mountain climbing costume, of some of those tourists who "do" the Alps can fully appreciate the humor of the "limerick."

Nuts as Food.

One very great advantage which nuts possess over most foods is their absolute freedom from adulteration. When you buy nuts you always know what you are getting. Of course those bought in the shell are also absolutely clean.—Good Health.

Light and Hope.

Even in evil, that dark cloud which hangs over the creation, we discern rays of light and hope and gradually come to see in suffering and temptation proofs and instruments of the sublimest purposes of wisdom and love.—Channing.

At His Expense.

She—Jack told me that that hospital was built entirely at his expense. Is it possible? He—Well, Jack's money cut him off with a hundred dollars and left the rest of his money to build the hospital.

How many think to atone for the evil they have done by the good they intend to do and are only virtuous in perspective.—Elliot.
