We wonder how Governor George E. Chamberlain would get along as deputy clerk of Tillamook county at $50 per month? Why, that wouldn't pay his "personal" expenses for a month.

If the wet weather would let up for a while it would afford an opportunity in making a start in the development of the county, which is going to make some rapid strides the new few years. Watch Tillamook County grow.

Tillamook justice! Well, what is Tillamook justice, anyway? It is simply this: Threatening and intimidating witnesses and getting them out of the way, and in letting persons go free who should have been sent to jail.

What a lot of fool questions our temporary did ask about county affairs last week. It is something for the county court to laugh at, however, for any Billy Goat butting in would have shown more common sense in his Bill of Particulars.

We cannot see the necessity of the city marshal and the special policeman both attending the meeting of the city council and remaining there throughout. It is occasions like that when something happens about town. But, perhaps, the city peace officers think that the city dads need watching more than the city.

We suppose it would shock the people to arrest persons for selling whiskey without a license. But, then, could a jury be found in Tillamook to convict on such a charge? There is nothing like trying anyway, now that the city has a new city attorney. Scrap it out. The taxpayers always have to foot the bills.

A great many persons have complained about the sheriff and the deputy district attorney because they did not enforce the local option law. Do not complain again. The travesty of justice in the recent cases in the justice court is only another disgrace to Tillamook, for it is freely stated that most every juryman believed that the defendants had violated the law.

The system of peace officers taking certain drunken individuals home instead of locking them up in the cooler to sober up is altogether wrong. Either take all the drunken, crazy individuals home or run them all in. The citizens have seen too much of that discrimination in this city, and we are going to raise our protest against peace officers taking home dirty, beastly, drunken, crazy sots who reside in this city and locking up those who come to the city and make fools of themselves.

For the information of those who are wanting to know the proper procedure in taking up cattle in precincts where cattle is prohibited from running at large we will quote the law on that point:

Under penalty of $10 for the first offense and $20 for each and every subsequent offense, to be recovered from the owner of the stock in civil action in the name of the State of Oregon before a justice of the peace of the precinct in which such owner or keeper, or either of them, may reside; and such penalty shall be for the benefit of, and when collected paid into, the common school fund of the county in which such action is brought within sixty days after such animal is proved to be at large.

There are four precincts—Tillamook, Hoquart, Fairview and South Prairie—in this county where stock is prohibited from running at large. The recent state legislature passed a bill relating to taking up stock, but we are not conversant with its provisions at present.

Sheriff Crenshaw is deserving of great credit for unearthing the brutal murder which took place on Sunday. Although it was midnight when he was informed that something might have happened, it was the promptness with which he acted which enabled him to run down the murderer, but a few hours after he had had his suspicions aroused and before it was known that a murder had even been committed. It was quick action on the part of the sheriff which prevented the murderer getting away. And the way he handled the murderer and succeeded in getting a confession from him was certainly out of the common for sheriffs to do in murder cases. The sheriff cleared up the mystery of Peter's disappearance slick and clean in a few hours, and he would do the same with the bootleggers if citizens would rely to his assistance and demand that that class of lawbreakers be punished as well as murderers.

You may stake all you're worth on the fact that the "blind-pigs" man never forgets to square himself first with his Uncle Samuel. He pays that little $25 any how, knowing well that he cannot throw dirt in the eyes of the federal inspectors and courts. But, for the rest, he will take all the chances of fine and imprisonment, and do it gladly, with even contemptuous bravado—until a grand jury and a practical prosecutor rounds him up and makes him "dig" and do other compensating stunts—Astorian.

It is the same with Tillamook's bootleg fraternity, they pay government license to sell booze and undertake to bulldoze city and county officials. But who would have believed it a few years ago that Astoria's whiskey ring would be caught in the muck rake? The Clatsop County grand jury filed 76 true bills against the lawless class, and a great majority of the indictments were for violation of the liquor laws. In every instance but one the defendants pleaded guilty, and up to last Saturday fines collected were $1400 for selling liquor on Sundays, $700 for selling liquor without a license and $950 for violating the local option law by selling liquor in "dry" precincts. We live in hope of seeing arrests being made in Tillamook City for selling liquor without a license, but this fact still confronts the city officials, that notwithstanding the fact that the lawless element have been violating a city ordinance more or less since local option went into effect, not one person has been arrested in this city for selling without a license. Why?

A Religious Author's Statement.

Rev. Joseph H. Fesperman, Salisbury, N.C., who is the author of several books, writes: "For several years I was afflicted with kidney trouble and last winter I was suddenly stricken with a severe pain in my kidneys and was confined to bed eight days unable to get up without assistance. My urine contained a thick white sediment and I passed some frequently day and night. I commenced taking Foley's Kidney Remedy, and the pain gradually abated and finally ceased and my urine became normal. I cheerfully recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy."—J. L. I gave him two boxes of Foley's Orino Laxative and the next morning the fever was gone and was entirely well. Foley's Orino Laxative saved his life." A. Walkush, Casimer, Wis.—J. L. Japanese Party.

On Saturday last, Mrs. T. Sarchet, assisted by Mrs. Walter F. Baker, entertained her class from the Presbyterian Sunday School.

The party proved to be all the more enjoyable because they had with it the fun which goes with a real surprise.

Each member of the class, as well as the hostess and her assistant, wore Japanese costumes for the occasion. The dainty loose-sleeved gowns, according to the pattern of their sisters over the sea, gave them quite a grown up appearance.

If they had not practiced setting long enough to enjoy the ease of a posture which seems possible only for the so-called "Japanese knee," they did show that they were just as cheerful and ready for a holiday and that they could act with very much the same grace of courtesy as do those little people whose temperament and politeness are so attractive to the tourists who visit their shores.

Mothers and friends of the young folks came during the course of the afternoon to see them at their play, and each guest was served with fragrant tea by a little Japanese maid in waiting.

By an arrangement of the hostess, which was not understood before hand by the class, they all came in to make obeisance to the guests as they entered and then the two girls who were thought to be the best Japanese were rewarded with handsome and useful presents.

The rooms of the house were bright and inviting with gay colors and characteristically Japanese designs, the hanging lanterns, the umbrellas, fans and hand painted plates upon the walls transferred the place into an arbor of delight which was a credit to the hostess and no end of pleasure for the young Japanese and their American cousins who were there to spend the afternoon. At 5 p.m., after refreshments, the invaders dispersed in good spirits for their own homes.

Members of the class who were present were: Jeannie Anderson, Elizabeth Whitehouse, Lottie Crane, Evelyn Hoag, Leona Gaines, Mattie Himes and Lela Drew. Invited guests of the class also were Japanese costumes, were: Lavelle Baker, Frel Whitehouse and Lee Stephens. Prizes for the best Japanese were awarded to Helen Case 1st and Lela Drew 2nd.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure not known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. THE HORRIBLE CRIME

Committed a few days ago for the purpose of robbery would not have happened if the murdered man had kept his money in a bank.

Keeping money on the person or about the house invites murder and arson, and besides is very unbusiness-like.

Only a few months ago a man in this county lost his home by fire presumably set by thieves to cover their crime. He had nearly $200.00 hid in the house, which was a total loss as well.

That our American forests abound in plants which possess the most valuable medicinal virtues is abundantly attested by scores of the most eminent medical writers and teachers. Even the untamed Indians had discovered the usefulness of many native plants before the advent of the white race. This information, imparted freely to the whites, led the latter to continue investigations until to-day we have a rich assortment of most valuable American medicinal roots.

Dr. Pierce believes that our American forests abound in most valuable medicinal roots for the cure of most obstinate and fatal diseases. If we would properly investigate them; and in the investigation of this conviction, he points with pride to the almost marvelous cures effected by his Golden Medical Discovery, which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach tonic, liver invigorant, heart tonic and regulator, and blood purifier known to medical science. Dyspepsia, or indigestion, torpid liver, functional and even valvular and other affections of the heart yield to its curative action. The reason why it cures these and many other affections is clearly shown in a little book of extracts from the standard medical works which is mailed free to any address by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., to all sending request for the same.

Not less marvelous in the unparalleled cures it is constantly making of woman's many peculiar affections, weaknesses and distressing derangements, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as is amply attested by thousands of published testimonials contributed by grateful patients who have been cured by it of catarrhal pelvic disease, painful periods, irregularities, prolapsus and other disorders caused by weakness, ulceration of uterus and kindred affections. Orders after many other advertised medicines, and physicians had failed.

Both the above mentioned medicines are wholly made up from the glyceric extracts of native medicinal roots. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce, and they are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of apparatus and appliances specially designed and built for this purpose. Both medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful, habit-forming drugs. A full list of their ingredients is printed on each bottle-wrapper.

CHINESE METHODS.

Why a Street, Newly Paved, Was Torn Up by Official Order.

M. Monnier, the French Asiatic traveler, vouched for the truth of the following story of how his friend, Hop Sing, a man of means and refinement, was on one occasion sorely victimized. Hop Sing lived in the street of the roasted corn, as unsavory and as ill paved a street as any in all Peking. The local mandarin was an intimate friend of his, and Hop Sing availed himself of this friendship to press the mandarin to have the street repaved. Certainly, at once. The men would be at work on it before Hop Sing could get back home. A week passed, then another visit, and so on until, in despair, Hop Sing determined to have the street repaved at his own expense. The work was satisfactorily completed.

The surprise of Hop Sing was only equalled by his indignation when on awakening one morning he found a gang of coolies upheaving the newly flagged street. His surprise grew when he heard from the mandarin that own lips that the men were there at his orders.

"You see, my dear friend," said the mandarin, "I am expecting the head inspector around here in a few days. Now, if he were to see the beautiful pavement he would come to the conclusion that there was money about, and he would assuredly bleed every vein in my body. This would mean my ruin. Do not you see why your pavement really must come up? It cost me one fortune to secure my post. I don't want to spend another in keeping it."

THE CHARM OF NEW YORK.

An English View of the Metropolis of the New World.

New York caught by most artist standards of the past to be hideous. Instead (as I made up my mind, with a shock of pleasure, a few weeks ago) she is as beautiful, as individual almost, as Venice. Of course there are her sky and her atmosphere. Even a regular old tramp of a city could wear a spurious charm when golden wine of sunshine dripped over her from a crystal cup studded with turquoise or in a sunset such as heaven and Turner alone could conceive, glittering like a heap of jewels behind a veil of sprinkled gold dust. But the starling, Li-marr beauty of New York could exist even in a London fog.

What is there to say of a vast city where all the architectures of the world and some that were never seen (anywhere else) on land or sea rub shoulders together? Would you not think that they would refuse to speak to each other, even if they didn't fight in disastrous battle dreadful to witness? But go to New York and see. I said to myself as I drove about New York that the gay, colorful city was like a huge flower garden where the gardener had sown his seeds anywhere—crimson hollyhocks, golden sunflowers, dainty pinks, modest violets, tall white lilies, larkspurs, pansies and a thousand other early things helter skelter, leaving them to come up all among each other as they chose, and instead of the experiment being a failure it turned out a glorious success.—Mrs. C. N. Williamson in London Chronicle.

Obesity and Will Power.

Obesity is easily cured with the exercise of the proper care and restraint on the part of the patient. Without this, however, the cure is impossible, and no physician or medicine can be of any help. The happy-go-lucky dispositions of fat people, their tendency to regard their illness lightly, cause them to look upon nothing seriously to deny themselves nothing. These characteristics, which generally are responsible for their ailment, furnish the greatest obstacles in the way of curing them. As a rule, the fat person does just the opposite of what he ought to do. He eats the very foods he should avoid, avoids those he should eat, shuns exertion of every kind, indulges in rest and luxury and seeks the way of the easiest resistance generally—"Will Power."

The Ancient Manufacture of Copper.

The ancient Syrians and Phoenicians were well known to have been active traders in copper, and they manufactured this metal into bronze by melting it with tin. Learned antiquaries assure us that the Phoenicians actually came to England and to Ireland in search of tin for this purpose, and some years ago some curious bronze articles were found in several of the old mine workings in Cornwall, which are believed to have been left there by that ancient people at a time when no bronze was either made or used in England—"Chambers' Journal."

A Willing Victim.

"Well, Mr. Bickers," said Lawyer Brief, "your wife sues for divorce and asks $5,000 a year alimony. Of course we will defend it."

"No, Mr. Brief, we will not defend," replied Mr. Bickers.

"But that is an enormous alimony."

"That's all right, but I am for peace at any price."—Detroit Free Press.

Juvenile Wisdom.

"What did people do before steel pens were invented?" asked the teacher.

"The pinions of one go so were used to spread the opinions of another," answered the wise boy at the pedal extremity of the class.—Judge.

It is said that the Parisian gives up about 20 per cent of his income for taxes.

HOLDING THE CELLO.

An Anecdote of Dupont and the Emperor Napoleon.

Napoleon, in a way, was fond of music. It is admitted that the musical tastes of "the Corsican ogre" were not elevated. But for all that he loved singing so much that many a time after a concert he ordered the vocalists to come to the palace and sing before him and the Empress Josephine.

A curious anecdote is told of his brusque manner of dealing with artists. One night at a concert at the Tuilleries, while Dupont, the famous violinist, was performing a solo, the emperor suddenly entered. His majesty nodded his head approvingly and when the piece was finished said to Dupont:

"How the deuce do you manage to keep that instrument so motionless? And, taking up the cello, he tried to jam it between his spurred boots.

Poor Dupont nearly fainted when he saw his treasure treated like a war horse. For several minutes he looked on, trembling from head to foot. At last, however, he darted forward and called out "Sire!" In such pathetic tones that the emperor handed him back the instrument.

Dupont thereupon showed how the instrument was held, but every time his imperial master extended his hand to attempt to do it himself Dupont threw himself back in alarm till finally Josephine whispered something to her husband, who burst out laughing and put an end to the cello lesson.—New York Sun.

SHETLAND PONIES.

Active as Terriers, Sure Footed as Mules, Patient as Donkeys.

Shetlands are "foaled in the fields, live in the fields and die in the fields." They have a rooted dislike for indoor life and thrive best when allowed to feed naturally on green grass, with perhaps hay in winter. Until two years old nature provides a soft, wool-like covering. Afterward the mature coat of hair appears, to be shed each spring, when the ponies appear sleek and handsome. Full grown they are immensely strong, with wide quarters, powerful legs and a great width and depth over the heart and lungs. And, as Benjie wrote in 1879 in his "Tour in Shetland": "The Shetland pony is the most lovable of animals in the wide creation. They are sprightly and active as terriers, sure footed as mules and patient as donkeys. The horse is accredited to the noblest of the lower animals, and the Shetland pony stands at the head of this noble race as the most intelligent and faithful of them all."

The great value of the Shetland to the coal miners lies in its ability to work in the low galleries in the seams pits, where other ponies could not travel. Their strength does not correspond with their diminutive proportions, and they will travel thirty miles a day in the seams, drawing from twelve to fourteen hundred weight. Underground their lot is hard, but use becomes second nature and they are treated, if roughly, as unkindly.—St. James' Gazette.

The Chinaman and His Dragon.

If a Chinaman wishes for happiness and peace in this world and the next he feels obliged to consult his master dragon as to where his house should be built and his grave be made. Through the earth, so say the Chinese, flow two currents—the dragon and the tiger. Now, for a man to have good fortune in life or, as he would say in "pigeon English," to "catch chance," his house must be put in certain position in reference to the currents. If he is to rest quietly in his grave, that also must be correctly placed. So called "wise men" make business of choosing favorable sites for homes and graves, professing means of a wand and incantations and other kinds of tomfoolery to be able to detect the presence of the dragon and the tiger and to tell in what direction they flow.

Skating.

Skating is believed to have been invented in northern Europe in prehistoric times. William Fitz-Stephen speaks of it in London toward the end of the twelfth century, but it did not really catch hold until the rollers who had been in exile at Charles II. brought it with them to Holland. On Dec. 1, 1662, Mr. Pe having occasion to cross the river, "first in my life, it being a great deal to see people sliding with skates, which is a very pretty sight." On the 8th he went purposely to the sight and again found it "very pretty."—London Chronicle.

Works Both Ways.

"So you think it is an advantage a man to go to congress for awhile?" "Yes," answered Senator Sorensen. "It gives the people in his own State a chance to think he is a great man in Washington and the people in Washington a chance to think he is a man in his own town."—Washington Star.

Her Motto.

"I think it is high time," said Oldcastle, "for the people of this city to take a firm stand against section."

"So do I," replied her hostess, north, no south, is my motto."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Barrier.

First Tramp—You won't get a decent there; them people is rascals. Second Tramp—Is that First Tramp—Yes, and they've dog wot aint.—Philadelphia Record.
