NTURE FOR THE PATIENTS.

ery Ailment Beyond Diagnosis Was lassed as a Fever, and Pills, Plas- ers, Burning and Bleeding Were the legulation Remedies.

he proverb "The remedy is worse n the disease" must have been coin- in the eighteenth century, when ysicians treated their patients with violence that bordered on assault battery. It was held that sickness some kind of a demon that must overcome by pills, plasters, bleeding burning, and if the patient inci- tally got the full effects of the tor- e and died, so much the worse for . Air and water were considered most dangerous things for a sick son to have, and his misguided de- nd for them was interpreted as a that he should have still less. windows were shut and the cur- ns of the four poster tightly drawn und the recumbent unfortunate ping for breath. If he burned with er the blankets were piled on him. iesire for water meant that he could e none, while a lack of appetite ved that he ought to be stuffed h food. A bath was positively un- kable.

he deadly results of breathing ght air" were accentuated by med- writers, says S. G. Tallentyre in Cornhill Magazine. All air was , but the night quality often prov- fatal to "young ladies of beauty, tune and great merit" and to "young tlemen of parts and breeding." One medico recommended that a bed- mber should be ventilated—in the time. Another dared to suggest t consumptives might benefit from ping in a pure atmosphere. The for ablutions was "hands often, seldom, head never," but a physi- far in advance of his age sur- ed that invalids might bathe their in warm water once a week and ier extraordinary circumstances e a warm bath once a month.

vereating and drinking caused ny of the diseases of the upper ses. Montesquieu said that dinner ed one half of the Parisians and per the other half. Everywhere it the custom to pile the table with st beef, mutton, capons, boars' ds, pasties, creams, stuffings and icemeats. A fearful repast of twelve igestible courses was brought on all ether, so that the diners knew what expected of them. A large break- t of small beer and meats preceded gigantic midday meal, when people oyed a Gargantuan gorge for three rs and spent two more in Falstaff- potations. After this the gentle- joined the women for a dish of in the drawing room, and it was long before the whole party of hu- anacondas returned to the dining m for a supper on the cold rem- ts of the dinner. Amid this orgy gluttony Walpole and Voltaire were inguished for an abstinence that longed their lives.

eavy drinking was universal and ely reprimanded by medical men, by Dr. Tronchin. One Dr. Cheyne ised women not to take a whole tle a day. Another authority wrote opular treatise in which the best ins of attaining longevity was ted to be a bottle of wine at dinner three glasses after. Those who fol- ed such advice were in danger of g dubbed temperance cranks. A y is told of the celebrated and con- ial Dr. Garth, who was tipping opera at the Kit-Kat club when re- ded that his patients needed at- tion. "'Tis no matter," said Garth, ady half seas over, "if I see them not. Nine have such bad constitu- s that all the doctors in the world 't save them, and the other six e such good that all the doctors in world can't kill them."

physician named Brown became pet of fashionable women by al- s prescribing pleasant remedies, glass of wine in the forenoon from e to time," "several glasses of port punch after dinner till some enliv- g effect is perceived from them." ether with inordinate quantities of or and food, Dr. Brown recom- ded to his male patients the com- y of "delightful young women." of the natural consequences of h an agreeable regimen was the f, for which eighteenth century h livers took seas of liquid medi- e, mountains of pills and bins of rders.

ny disease beyond diagnosis was down as "a fever." Whether ty- s or typhoid, scarlet or gastric, non- tagious or violently infectious, any- g which caused a rise in tempera- e was sufficiently described by the n fever. Smallpox, scurvy, spotted jail fever were maladies distinctive the age. Disinfection and first aid natural were never dreamed of. e the patient was dosed with hor- e drinks and nauseating compounds d on every possible occasion. is XIV. was bled nine times for rst fever. Bleeding killed the hess of Tremouille and her hus- d. When a mob attacked the Duke Bouillon's house in 1765 the doctors nded the outrage by bleeding the fourth next morning. A young man o fell against a marble table and his head open was treated by hav- a few pints of extra blood drawn m his veins by an expert surgeon. stoning was esteemed next to bleed- . A fashionable remedy for con- mption was a mash of raw snails, shell and all, taken from a spoon.

DIKES IN GERMANY.

They Are Built With Great Care and Exactness.

When a dike is to be built—and they are still in places making dikes—it is first mapped out by the neatly sharpened stakes, a long straight causeway leading out from shore and widening into a rounded head which abuts on the red line of the channel. Then a ground sill or foundation mattress of willows is woven and sunk at this head and pinned down and held in place by the sharpened pegs. Then wattles are woven and sand filled in, and in places rock, and then, rounding up neatly out of the water and forming a tight covering to the whole, the hand squared blocks of stone are laid, as closely as a city pavement, all over the head and back along the neck to the old shore. It is as permanent and stable as the Harvard stadium, the dike so built, and the river, abandoning the space back of the tip to slack water or to be filled in with sand, flows on with entire grace in the restricted channel beyond the tip.

The care and exactness with which these dikes are made would be laughable if it were not so successful. In a land where hand labor is very cheap days are devoted to doing what in America would be roughly cast by machinery in a couple of hours. But the result is so admirable that one remembers regretfully the ugly pile dikes, the horrid fringes of the improved "off channel" banks of the Mississippi.

Where the dikes have accomplished their purpose and generally on the banks opposite to them the river is revetted above middle water. This, too, is done with the hand squared stones, and as a result the Elbe where completely finished resembles a broad canal between stone lined banks, the stone rising a few feet above the water, and above it the green slope of the fields or a fringe of willows. It is all peaceful, complete and generally beautiful, with at least the beauty of utility where it lacks that of ruggedness and wildness.—Boston Transcript.

GILA MONSTER'S BITE.

The Reptile Turns Over to Get Venom Into Its Victim.

It was his turning over habit that led me to the discovery as to the bite of the Gila monster. This creature, more like a short, stocky snake with legs on than anything else, has no poison fangs, like the rattlesnake, yet his bite may be just as dangerous. His poison teeth are in his lower jaw, and the poison comes from a gland under the tongue. If he bites without turning over the wound is not serious, but if he turns over there is great danger.

Dr. Snow of the University of Kansas wrote me some time ago of an experience he had with the bite of a Gila monster.

The reptile was caught and put in a bucket, the top of which was covered with paper. The bucket was then put in the wagon in which the doctor was driving. As the road was somewhat rough, the bucket was bounced up and down, and in order to steady it Dr. Snow put his hand behind him and took hold of the bucket, thrusting his fingers through the newspaper cover on its top so that he could hold it secure. Suddenly he felt the monster's grip on his fingers. Startled and somewhat alarmed, he carefully pried the jaws of the reptile open and released himself. The wounds were such as any ordinary bite would have made, and he suffered no more inconvenience than might have been expected.

There are many stories current in Arizona and Sonora as to deaths that have occurred from Gila monsters' bites, but it is hard to get at the facts. Careful experiments made with animals show that when the reptile bites and turns over, so that the poison flows down the tooth grooves into the wound, the bitten creatures die in a short time.—Suburban Life.

A Dead Bird.

Samuel Butler, the witty but eccentric author of "Erewhon," which means "Nowhere," and of many other remarkable and suggestive books, is now more read than during his lifetime. He died in 1902. In one of his notebooks he tells this incident, which must have amused the great Charles Darwin:

"Frank Darwin told me his father was once standing near the hippopotamus cage when a little boy and girl, aged four and five, came up. The hippopotamus shut his eyes for a minute.

"'That bird's dead,' said the little girl. 'Come along.'"

Her Lucky Number.

The byways as well as the highways of church life furnish much in the way of wit and humor. What, for instance, could be more mirth provoking than the naive confession of the cook of a London vicar who, being allowed to choose a hymn for the family prayers, was complimented on her choice by the vicar's wife?

"What a nice hymn you chose!" said the latter to the cook.

"Yes, mum; it's the number of my policeman."

Taking an Advantage.

"Your family seem to enjoy going to Europe."

"Yes," answered Mr. Cumrox. "Mother and the girls have observed that I am weak on getting the value of foreign money. Things are ordered and paid for before I have time to make any intelligent inquiries as to the expense."—Washington Star.

Truthful.

"I hadn't been talking with him three minutes before he called me an ass. What sort of a person is he?"

"Well, I never knew him to tell a lie."

Nursing Mothers and Over-burdened Women

In all stations of life, whose vigor and vitality may have been undermined and broken-down by over-work, exacting social duties, the too frequent bearing of children, or other causes, will find in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the most potent, invigorating restorative strength giver ever devised for their special benefit. Nursing mothers will find it especially valuable in sustaining their strength and promoting an abundant nourishment for the child. Expectant mothers too will find it a priceless boon to prepare the system for baby's coming and rendering the ordeal comparatively painless. It can do no harm in any state, or condition of the female system.

Delicate, nervous, weak women, who suffer from frequent headaches, backache, dragging-down distress low down in the abdomen, or from painful or irregular monthly periods, gnawing or distressed sensation in stomach, dizzy or faint spells, see imaginary specks or spots floating before eyes, have disagreeable, pelvic catarrhal drain, prolapsus, anteversion or retro-version or other displacements of womanly organs from weakness of parts will, whether they experience many or only a few of the above symptoms, find relief and a permanent cure by using faithfully and fairly persistently Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This world-famed specific for woman's weaknesses and peculiar ailments is a pure glyceric extract of the choicest native, medicinal roots without a drop of alcohol in its make-up. All its ingredients printed in plain English on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Dr. Pierce thus invites the fullest investigation of his formula knowing that it will be found to contain only the best agents known to the most advanced medical science of all the different schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments.

If you want to know more about the composition and professional endorsement of the "Favorite Prescription," send postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for his free booklet treating of same.

You can't afford to accept as a substitute for this remedy of known composition a secret nostrum of unknown composition. Don't do it.

CONTEST NOTICE.
Department of the Interior,
United States Land Office,
Portland, Oregon,
February 26th, 1909.

A sufficient contest affidavit having been filed in this office by GEORGE VANDERSEE, contestant, against homestead entry No. 14164, made June 3rd, 1902, for Sw ¼ Ne ¼, N ½ Se ¼ and Sw ¼ Se ¼, section 19, township 3 south, range 9 west, by THOMAS C. KING, contestee, in which it is alleged that he is well acquainted with the tract of land embraced in the homestead entry and knows the present condition of the same; also that the said Thomas C. King died near Salem, Oregon, on or about March, 1904; that said Thomas C. King, according to the best knowledge and belief of affiant, was, at the time of his death, a single man, and that he has no knowledge of such heirs, except that he has been informed that at the time of the death of said King two or three brothers survived him, and that said brothers reside in some of the Southern States; but affiant has not been able to learn any or either of the names of said brothers, nor of their residence or post office address, that between the time of making entry upon said lands and the death of said King, the said King did not cultivate or improve said lands according to the law and that since his said death up to the present time the heirs of said King have not in anywise resided upon, cultivated or improved the said lands, or any part thereof, to any extent whatever; and that to the best knowledge and belief of affiant said alleged absence from the said land was not due to his or their employment in the Army, Navy or Marine Corps of the United States as a private solder, officer, seaman or marine, during any war in which the United States might have been engaged.

Said parties are hereby notified to appear, respond and offer evidence touching said allegation at 10 o'clock a.m., on April 12th, 1909, before W. H. Cooper, U. S. Commissioner, at his office at Tillamook City, Oregon, and that final hearing will be held at 10 o'clock a.m., on April 22nd, 1909, before the Register and Receiver at the United States Land Office in Portland, Oregon.

The said contestant having, in a proper affidavit, filed February 18th, 1909, set forth facts which show that after due diligence personal service of this notice can not be made, it is hereby ordered and directed that such notice be given by due and proper publication.

Good for Everybody.

Mr. Norman R. Coulter, a prominent architect, in the Delbert Building, San Francisco, says: "I fully endorse all that has been said of Electric Bitters as a tonic medicine. It is good for everybody. It corrects stomach, liver and kidney disorders in a prompt and efficient manner and builds up the system." Electric Bitters is the best spring medicine ever sold over a druggist counter; as a blood purifier it is unequaled. 50c. at Chas. I Clough's drug store.
