We wonder how many Tillamookers were "soaked" with Worthless, Windless, Wireless? It is not likely that any of the co-operative associations "bit." But who'd?

We think this is no more than right that when the business streets need to be cleaned up the expense should come out of the city treasury, for, surely, the business men pay enough taxes.

We were misinformed last week as to the amount of water rent for the court house under the meter system. Instead of $1.74 it was only $1.42 which is quite a saving for the county for $16. Who said water hogs!

King & Smith received a letter from a San Francisco wholesale house saying that the Argo had been taken off the run and was wanting to know by what route they should forward their freight. Which shows that Tillamook knockers are still in the knocking business.

We didn't "heel" about paying taxes this year, but to receive a tax receipt which was printed in Portland is a big pill for a local printer to swallow. We would like to know how much taxes the Portland printers pay into this county and what they have done to advertise and boom Tillamook? No matter, the home print shops still advocate patronizing home stores and home industries.

Whenever there is a travesty of justice the taxpayers have to foot the bills. It was so in the Hembree case, for the taxpayers had to pay a big sum of money for the second trial. It is so in the bootleg cases, for instead of the violators of the law being made to pay for crime, the taxpayers have to foot the bills. As an instance of this we refer our readers to one month's expense in Justice Sappington's court, which appears in the bills allowed by the county court last week. All that we need add is this, if the taxpayers like to foot the bills for travesty of justice they should not complain because their taxes come high. Quite a few persons predicted what would take place after the last county election and we suppose it is no surprise to them.

The old timers, the men who were conspicuously identified with the early development of Tillamook county, are gradually passing to the great beyond. It is with much regret that the Headlight, which has for over twenty years watched these sturdy pioneers, that we have to announce the death of Mr. Peter Brant, a man who was esteemed and highly respected in Tillamook County. He, in common with great many of the early settlers brought the county into reputation by their persistent efforts in behalf of dairying. It was no easy task to turn this country into an ideal dairying section, for it took Western grit and persistence to bring this about. Mr. Brant was one of those who put his shoulder to the wheel, and it is to men of his sturdy character that we can thank for the prosperous, thrifty condition of the people and the county that we see today in Tillamook. A great many persons have come to this county to remain but a few years, yet the early settlers, for the most part, stayed with the county through many hardships and vicissitudes, and for that reason we hold in reverence and honor the names of the early settlers of Tillamook county, and amongst them must be included Peter Brant, who quietly passed away Sunday night.

The new business section of the city is to have concrete buildings. That will be a great improvement, for frame buildings, like the old shacks which did for business for many years, will have to give place to something more modern and which will afford better fire protection. Tillamook City is sure to have a great many improvements the next few years, and those who invest money in modern concrete buildings will be doing a great thing to improve the city. Let the good work go on, for conditions are wonderful fully improving in this city. With an electric light plant up-to-date, a modern, equipped saw mill and the prospects of several concrete buildings being erected in the new business part of the city, it is plain to see that many permanent improvements and changes are taking place in the city. Let the good work go on and everybody pull together to make Tillamook City a modern, well built city, with fire proof structures taking the place of frame, fire trap buildings. Every business man with a costly stock knows that he is taking too much risk in a frame building and in a frame building district. And for that reason this is a most opportune time to cease erecting frame buildings and construct concrete business premises.

It is the jail sentence in the local option law which is disliked by those who violate that law. In proof of this we will quote a news item from Klamath Falls:

The offender of the local option law in Klamath Falls is being severely dealt with whenever he falls in the clutches of the law. Joe Seed was tried before the justice of the peace here and found guilty of bootlegging.

Seed served notice of appeal to the circuit court and the judge placed his bail at $2000. This was somewhat more than he could raise and he was compelled to go to jail. Many of the former saloon men have stated that they would be perfectly willing to pay a large fine on conviction, but when they are threatened with a jail sentence they decide that they will not take the chances, the most of them have either left the city or have engaged in other business. With the present stand taken by the officers it is believed that illegal selling of whiskey in Klamath Falls will soon be a thing of the past. And so it will be in Tillamook when the bootleggers are given jail sentences. Not before.

It would not surprise us much to hear those who are putting money into frame buildings, especially in the congested business part of the city, will regret doing so before long, especially where large and expensive stocks of goods are kept in them, and which is at the mercy of fire originating in any of the fire traps in the vicinity. With insurance rates almost prohibitive, or so excessive that it keeps business men at the grindstone all the time, it is a serious problem which confronts them. To prevent this fear and anxiety, some other kind of material will have to be used. And to this end the company which is to erect a large concrete building have taken a step in advance and which will be followed, no doubt, by others in the near future. In fact, it would be a wise move for the city council to prohibit any more frame buildings being erected within the business limits, for the danger of fire is such that it is imperative that something should be done to get the city built up with something more safe and substantial than wood structures. As concrete appears to be especially adapted to this climate, and to build up the city on a permanent foundation the frame structures and small fire traps which have answered the purpose for business for many years will have to go. As the business part of the city will more than likely grow in the direction of the depot, where there is plenty of sites for concrete buildings, and away from the congested wood structures, it is a doubtful question where the business center of the city will be located with the changed conditions which will take place the next few years. Other towns have had to condemn frame business buildings, and it is about time that this city get out of the old ruts and started in with new ideas. This is a most opportune time, for there is no reason why Tillamook City cannot grow and develop and become one of the most up-to-date towns in the state.

Probably the Headlight has taken too advanced a position as to how and by whom road work in this county should be carried on, yet for all that it will not be many years before the taxpayers and the good roads advocates will eventually coincide with the system which we advocated. It takes time and careful consideration to jump from one system to another, especially when so radical a change is advocated. The believe, however, that it is the right system that we have recommended, and the Headlight will not budge one iota from the position that it has taken. There are who want a local man for the road engineer, and there are those who contend the all road work should be done by contract. Anyway, we have set the people thinking as to practical, economical road building, and we want to reiterate what we have previously advanced, and that is, a practical engineer should be at the head of the road work, who should draw plans and specifications for all road improvements for the information of the county court, and as early in the spring as possible he should organize a road crew and build and improve the roads for which road money had been apportioned. Only repair work should be done in winter, and as soon as the road work is shut down the roller, rock crusher and other road building equipment properly housed and cared for during the winter. And we may add this by way of throwing a little more light on the subject. If an engineer is employed it should be for one specific object, to plan and to construct modern roads throughout the county. That is the only reason why an engineer is need. We are not in favor of paying an engineer a big salary to occupy an office in the court house to draw a few blue prints. As we take it, we want an engineer to plan and take charge of the construction of road work, otherwise it is hardly worth while to create another office with a big salary simply to boss road work. Whoever is employed for that position must "make good" with good roads, and that is the reason why we advocate the engineer superintending and becoming the head of the road crew and see to it that all men employed put in a good day's work, which is also another important matter. However, we are all wanting good roads, and by the county court purchasing the necessary equipment to construct roads the county is in good shape to make some good road improvements this year even under the present system.

Rheumatism. More than nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism are simply rheumatism of the muscles, due to cold or damp, or chronic rheumatism. In such cases no internal treatment is required. The free application of Chamberlain's Liniment is all that is needed, and it is certain to give quick relief. Give it a trial and see for yourself how quickly it relieves the pain and soreness. The medicines usually given internally for rheumatism are poisonous or very strong medicines. They are worse than useless in cases of chronic and muscular rheumatism. For sale by Lamar's drug store.

Death Was On His Heels. Jesse P. Morris, of Skippers, Va., had a close call in the spring of 1906. He says: "An attack of pneumonia left me so weak and with such a fearful cough that my friends declared consumption had me, and death was on my heels. Then I was persuaded to try Dr. King's New Discovery. It helped me immediately, and after taking two and a half bottles I was a well man again. I found out that New Discovery is the best remedy for coughs and lung disease in all the world." Sold under guarantee at $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Christain Church Notes. The social and Dutch supper, given by the Ladies' Aid last Friday evening, was a success in every way. The attendance was large and everybody had a fine time. A union bible class has been organized and meets every week on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Christian church. Anyone wishing to take this course of study is cordially invited to join the class. The sermon subjects for next Lord's day will be as follows: In the morning, "Going to Heaven when Convenient." In the evening, "The Rightful Sovereign of Tillamook." The Mayor, City Council, Lawyers and business men are especially invited to the evening services.

Card of Thanks. I wish to thank the many friends and neighbors between Pleasant Valley and Blaine, who joined in the faithful search for my wife, who was supposed to be lost or demented, also for their attendance and that of physician, Dr. Smith to me. I wish also to make plain to the public that my wife was not insane or lost, but had fled from home and took refuge in the woods to save her life, as they tell me I was attempting to kill her in a temporary spell of delirium due to stomach trouble, which the physician declare is only temporary. Yours respectfully, L. F. SMITH.
