The Tillamook Headlight. Fred C. Baker, Publisher.

There is nothing doing in the jungle, it seems, while Mr. Roosevelt is writing his first magazine article.

Expert statisticians estimate that the new tariff bill about to be completed in the Senate will add $10,000,000 to the government revenue.

Speaker Cannon says he is not a mind reader and therefore can not tell what a member of Congress may be thinking of at a given time.

Speaker Cannon ought not to presume to instruct former President Roosevelt as to the correct mode of living.

Gov. Johnson evidently does not share in the estimate of the force of the tariff issue in the Northwest.

Twenty members of the Japanese Parliament and many directors of a sugar company have been arrested in connection with charges of bribery by the company.

The belt in the machinery of the Standard Oil Company all over the country during the funeral ceremonies over J. H. Rogers was an impressive tribute to the man who, more than any other one person, made that combine a power all over the business world.

SANDLAKE.

As we haven't noticed any news lately from our part of the county, will try and let the outside world know what we are doing.

Ira Dimond has made some fine improvements on his ranch by putting in some new gates.

Emmet Webb and son, Willie, Miss Ethel Hoyt and Jim Thompson, visited the most interesting places in Tillamook, Wednesday and Thursday.

Wonder if there won't be another wedding on the lake soon, as our friend, Jay Hoyt, is the proud possessor of a new suit of clothes.

Myrtle Owens was seen out riding Friday, with rain coat and hat. She says, "Let it rain," but she doesn't say "I'm neither sugar or salt or anybody's honey."

Ira Dimond, assisted by Emmet, Webb ran the plainer Friday. Ira put out good lumber last winter.

Joe Finigan passed through our neighborhood Thursday enroute for Tillamook. Did you find a cook, Joe?

Boys! beware of the cars (Karrs) they may run over you. You had better keep on the safe side and keep away from the track.

Our little friend Emma Ballard will now live with Jim Mills, of Hebo. We hope she will like her new home.

Richard Miles would be very thankful if some one would invent some new kind of walking machine so he can walk as fast as Joe Finigan when he comes to Sandlake.

While out riding with Miss Hazel, Joel's horse got rather gay and almost backed them off over the bridge near Mr. Hoyt's.

Sandlake is coming right to the front. There will soon be more families moving in here to prepare ground for cranberries.

Mr. Myers is getting along fine with his work. He has several men busy from an early hour until six at night, and says he will soon have more help.

The one great drawback in our country is our roads, and we are living in hopes that that fault will, before many months, be a fault of the past.

One of the young men of our community has been a thrilling experience "hunting dears."

If we have not tired yet editor to much, perhaps, we may call again.

PLUCKING BATS.

A French Industry That is Linked With the Restaurants.

"I plucked bats in Paris once at 4 francs a day," said a sailor. "Bats hibernate in the winter. What I mean to say is that they fall into a kind of drugged sleep. In this here sleep, clingin' together in big, black, soft bunches, they hang from the roofs of caves or the inside of chimbleys.

"He showed me the ropes the first day. I soon got on to it. It was dead easy. Just go into a cave, you know, locate a bunch of bats and then pluck 'em one at a time like grapes and drop 'em in your burlap bag.

"You don't feed these to your clientele, Jacques? I said to the boss one night.

"Maybe—oh, yes," said he. "They always figure in our farmed one franc dinner."

"I gave him a reproachful look. "Bat's meat is excellent," he says. "The meat is pink and very fine. Fried in butter with a parsley sauce, the gourmets in the Cafe Anglais could never, never tell it from ventson."

"He chuckled and nudged me in the ribs. "No?" says he. "No? And yet, mon vieux, the bat largely figures in our excellent five son navarin that you so dearly love!"

LINCOLN'S IRONY.

His Reply to a Petition For a Dishonest Boy's Pardon.

The Hon. Alexander H. Rice once paid a visit to President Lincoln on behalf of a Boston boy who had been imprisoned for robbing his employer's letters. After reading the petition, signed by many citizens of Boston, the president stretched himself in his chair and asked Mr. Rice if he had met a man going downstairs.

"Yes, Mr. President," replied Mr. Rice. "His errand," said the president, "was to get a man pardoned out of the penitentiary, and now you have come to get a boy out of jail."

"I'll tell you what it is, we must abolish these courts or they will be the death of us. I thought it had enough that they put so many men in the penitentiary for me to get out, but if they have now begun on the boys and the jails and have roped you into the delivery let's after them!"

"They deserve the worst fate," he went on, "because, according to the evidence that comes to me, they pick out the very best men and send them to the penitentiary, and this present petition shows they are playing the same game on the boys and sending them all to jail. The man that you met on the stairs affirmed that his friend in the penitentiary is a most exemplary citizen, and Massachusetts must be a happy state if her boys out of jail are as virtuous as this one appears to be who is in."

"Yes, down with the courts and deliverance to their victims, and then we can have some peace!"—Boston Post.

The French Schoolboy's Hard Day.

French children are often on their way to school a little after 7 o'clock in the morning. If they have concluded their lessons by 9 o'clock in the evening it is only by dint of great application.

How High a Tiger Can Jump.

For the benefit of the prospective big game hunters a correspondent finally disposes of the theory that a tiger is unable to jump to any height from all fours. He records that he took refuge in a tree from a particular tiger. The beast, however, jumped up to him, "like an india rubber ball, a good seven feet, and it was only "by letting go with my right and ramming both barrels down his mouth that I did not have a very bad time of it."

Compensation.

"I must have an iron bedstead," declared a tourist at an inn. "Sir," answered Boniface, "I am sorry there ain't a single iron bedstead in the 'ouse. But you will find the mattresses very nice and 'ard, sir!"—London Tit-Bits.

A Concession.
