

Editorial Snap Shots.

There are a large number of strangers in the county, drawn here out of curiosity or with a view to locate in Tillamook. For the most part the strangers are agreeably surprised at the progress the county has made considering that it lacked railroad connections. The county has steadily developed, notwithstanding this drawback, and now that it will be less than a year when the railroad will be finished, the county will build up from now on quite rapidly.

The new saw mill, several new business houses on Main street, the two concrete building and the erection of several pretty residences have all helped to give Tillamook City a wide-awake, progressive appearance this summer, which put considerable money into circulation. Now that the city has made a start in the right direction, other improvements will follow in quick succession. Let the work of building up and improving the city go on. This is a good center for industries, and these, too, will locate here as soon as the city grows and improves.

Mrs. Donaldson sized up the situation correctly when she wrote: "It is the result of bad men's bad example and bad, very bad, influence that is having such effect on our boys." The editor of the Herald knows this to be the case. Why is it, however, that he makes so much ado when boys get into mischief, while the disgraceful affair of the questionable character from this city who broke into the Grange hall at Fairview and turned that place into a little hell upon earth was not noticed. And the bad influence set by some parents is also another matter should not be overlooked when looking for the cause of boys disgracing themselves.

Next Tuesday the election takes place in Tillamook, Hoquart, South Prairie and Fairview precincts to decide whether a new Port of Tillamook shall be formed. At this election it will be decided by a majority vote in the four precincts. Happily, no ill feeling have manifested itself, and as it is a square cut issue to give the center of the county a good harbor and a straight channel, all those who look up this as a necessity in the development of the county should go to the polls on Tuesday, and in that way help boost the county. We have repeatedly pointed out the advantages of making this an important seaport, but it is now up to the voters to decide the question for themselves.

The untimely and sad death of Alfred Wyss is to be deplored, for he was an industrious, hard working and thrifty young man, who, in a few years would have become well off, for he and his brother were on the right road to make a success in dairying. The county can ill afford to lose such industrious young men who are ambitious and industrious, especially when there are so many young men who have no ambition to succeed in life, and who prefer loafing around pool rooms with a bottle of whiskey in their pocket, whenever they manage to get a few dollars ahead, and we are sorry to say there are too many young men in Tillamook of that character who will never amount to anything as long as they spend their time in such places in idleness and mischief.

It looks to us if anyone is to blame for unsafe bridges it is the road supervisors and not the county court. But there are a few "knockers" who have it in for the county court and they go for them, anyway, whether they are at fault or not. The bridges and culverts in this county are so numerous that it is no surprise to us that an accident will frequently occur until a different system of inspection is inaugurated and different material is used in their construction. Other counties have their troubles with bridge accidents as well as this, and to avoid them as much as possible in the future, it is necessary to use material that will not rot out in a few years. Therefore, we are of the opinion, now that the county is opening up quite rapidly, with a great deal more and heavier travel on bridges, that they should be more substantially built with iron and concrete. It will entail a large outlay and a number of years to bring about, but the Headlight believes that it is economy to do so and the best preventative to accidents, for when life is endangered we feel sure that the taxpayers would gladly acquiesce in the additional taxation it would entail in building substantial bridges which will not rot and decay in a few years. This is our solution to prevent accidents in the future, in fact, had we had anything to do with building bridges in this county, we would have discarded wooden bridges years ago. If anyone is to blame for bridge accidents in this county, then it is that the change from wood to iron and concrete is not taking place fast enough, and in that respect we are more or less all to blame in not keeping pace with the growing needs of the county.

Abner Griest has returned to Tillamook county after spending five years at Malta, Ohio, and has located at Beaver, where his son has started a blacksmith shop. Mr. Griest could not stand the change of weather in that state, from extreme cold to intense heat, so sold his farm and decided to return to this county, where the weather conditions are more agreeable and where dairying is carried on with such big profit.

The Sue H. Elmore left on Saturday with the following passengers, Ralph Bleako and wife, Mrs. H. F. Holden, Marie Holden, John Mort, C. L. Rogers, C. R. Day and wife, R. Myers, Miss Savage, P. Axel Johnson, a bucker employed at the Wheeler Lumber Company's logging camp on Nehalem bay, was so badly crushed by a log rolling over him, while at the work in the camp on Thursday, that he died a few hours later. The body was taken to Astoria on the tug Vosburg and were taken to Clatskanie for interment. The deceased was a native of Sweden, 23 years of age, and his only known relative is a brother, Ernest Johnson, who resides at Clatskanie.

A divorce suit was filed in the circuit court on Wednesday, in which John Conklin sued his wife, Mary Conklin, for a dissolution of the marriage contract. These parties were married in Portland on the 22nd April, 1900, and four children were born of the union. In the complaint Mrs. Conklin is accused of behaving in a cruel and inhuman manner towards the plaintiff, with threatening his life, using profane and vulgar language, sending threatening letters through the mails that his wife would be taken if he did not leave Tillamook, as well as immoral conduct the defendant had wrongfully accused her husband of. With that state of affairs in the home the plaintiff came to the conclusion that he could not live with his life any longer and prays the court to dissolve the marriage and for the custody of the children.

James Walton came near running his automobile over the cliff between Bay City and Holsonville on Sunday, and, as good luck would have it, the machine as it went over the bank happened to get caught by a log, which prevented the occupants and the machine from being hurled down the bank. Besides Mr. Walton, the auto contained Mrs. Walton and child, C. W. Talmage and another gentleman. The machine was in such a dangerous position that it was thought unsafe to hitch a team to it for fear that in pulling it loose it might pull the team over also. A camping party happened along after the auto accident, and the team becoming frightened, ran away and several children were thrown out of the wagon and received some bad cuts by the fall. The wagon was smashed up some. The Walton party was so excited over their own accident that they were not aware that a runaway accident had occurred. With the assistance of a number of men the auto was pulled back onto the road and Mr. Talmage phoned for a rig to bring him home.

Died, at his home, near Tillamook City, on August 10, James M. Mapes, aged 51 years, 5 months and 10 days. Deceased was born in Richland county, Richland county, Wis., in 1858. He came to Oregon in 1888 with his wife and family, and since that time made his home in Tillamook. He united with the Presbyterian church while Rev. Foster was pastor. He was first married to Miss Sadie Hawthorn, who only lived two months and 15 days after they were married. Later he married Miss Julia Hawthorn and four children were born of this union. Three years ago his wife died, leaving the deceased and four children. Two years ago he was married to Mrs. Jane Conklin, of Tillamook. For a year before he died he had been suffering with cancer of the face, but under the terrible ordeal he was always cheerful and bore the pain with Christian fortitude. He leaves a loving wife and four children, besides his mother, a sister and brother. The remains were laid to rest in the Oddfellows' cemetery at Bay City, Rev. Thos. Robinson, pastor of the Presbyterian church, conducting the religious service.

The Revival Meetings.

A great union meeting is now in session at the big Tabernacle, under the leadership of Dr. French Oliver. Although the meeting has been running a little more than a week the interest has grown and the crowds have increased from night to night, until the whole city has been stirred as never before, and the surrounding county has felt the momentous of the meeting. Last Sunday in the afternoon men's meeting the interest reached the climax, when over one hundred strong men declared their determination to live better lives. During week nights 57 have given themselves to God. We are expecting greater results the closing nights of the month, and especially in the women's and men's meetings Saturday and Sunday afternoon, at 2:30 respectively. Dr. Oliver is indeed master of the situation a workman that needeth not be ashamed. Prof. Oliver is installed as musical director. We are desirous that all the people may have a part in these meetings and likewise may share in its blessings.

The Goddards Divorced.

Mr. and Mrs. Goddard, who resided in this city for a while, were divorced in Portland last week.

Happy when she was married, a woman was made happy a second time when Circuit Judge Gatens granted her a divorce. Carrie Louise Goddard told of her various talents, which include plowing and pulling stumps on a Hood River farm and teaching elocution. Greenville Goddard, her husband, is also gifted, being a professional operatic singer. But, unlike his wife, he does not possess a fondness for hard work. She said he was a genial "good fellow" when he had money. This, his wife said, she was compelled to furnish, besides providing for her own living. Mrs. Goddard said, too, that her husband was addicted to the use of cigarettes, but that he promised to reform. She sent to San Francisco, where he was at the time, the money for his railroad fare, and he returned to Hood River and lived with her four months. They had trouble again last April, Goddard dragging her, she said, to the washbasin and threatening to kill her. She married him at Hood River, November 20, 1900. Judge Gatens gave her permission to resume her former name, Boyden, besides granting the divorce.

FATAL BRIDGE ACCIDENT

Horse Backs Off Bridge with Rider, who is Killed.

A fatal accident happened to Alfred Wyss on Friday afternoon on the Wilson river. In company with Godfred Kaufman, Wyss went up the river to look at some cattle, and both were horse back. On their return, and while crossing a bridge, with Wyss in the lead, and while looking back talking to Kaufman, the horse which Wyss was riding either became scared and restive and swerved around or was driven too near the edge, but as to that there appears to be difference of opinion, the first reports saying that a plank flew up and scared the animal. However that may be, the rider and the horse sudden went off the bridge, breaking the end of a plank as the horse lost its footing and fell. They fell about 10 feet. Wyss fell on his chest on some logs and the horse on top of him, and he was instantly killed, but the horse escaped. Kaufman went to Wyss assistance, and finding that his companion was dead, released the animal, which arrived home before Kaufman to tell the sad news, when Wyss' lifeless body was removed from the fatal spot. Deceased was an industrious young man, and with his brother, Godlieb Wyss, was engaged in dairying, and success was attending their efforts. He was 22 years of age, was born in Switzerland and came to Tillamook about ten years ago. He has six brothers and four sisters, all living.

No inquest was held on the remains as it was considered purely an accident.

The remains were buried on Monday in the Oddfellows' cemetery, the religious service being performed by the Rev. Paul Ebinger, of the German Reformed church.

Archbishop Ireland: "The great cause of social crime is drink. The great cause of poverty is drink. When I hear of a family broken up and ask the cause—drink. If I go to the gallows and ask the victims the cause, they answer—drink. Then I ask myself in perfect wonderment, why do not men put a stop to this thing?"

The president has indulged in a public handshaking preceding his departure from Washington on a summer trip. Mr. Taft shook himself into the presidency. He must be careful not to shake himself out.

The president wants the interstate commerce law amended in a way to make it necessary that a rate, when fixed by the commission, shall be contested before and not after it is effective. The necessity of waiting may grow out of the necessity of getting a test case, but it is likely that the railroad lawyers have always had other reasons, which they will not reveal until they have to.

Champ Clark estimates his loss through cancellation of Chautauqua dates, while attending the tariff session, at $7000. This is a better monument to him than any they can build at St. Charles.

With an estimated agricultural product this year exceeding that of last year, the United States will certainly be able to keep the wolf from the door and put all the other animals on their good behavior.

Some foreign nations are said not to like our new tariff law. But then we haven't had a tariff law to suit them since we were inflicted with the Wilson-Gorman act of "perfidy and dishonor."

We imagine that water will not be the only thing investigated by the Waterway Commission during its junket in Europe. It is sent abroad to investigate the waters of Europe, but there are no specific restrictions as to what sort of waters and wealthy water is not barred. Besides, the government pays all the bills.

I bought one box and used about two-thirds of it and my eyes have not given me any trouble since. This salve is for sale by Lamar's Drug Store.
