

The Independent Church.

TO THE EDITOR TILLAMOOK HEADLIGHT.

Every Christian is a unit to the one proposition, that but for the life, death, burial and resurrection of Christ the Saviour, there would be no such a thing as salvation. Blot out this one affair and mankind would have no more hope of a life beyond than an animal. The crucifixion was complete, in and of its self it redeemed. Every sense of debt, burden, ordinance and self sacrifice is banished so long as we remain in the light of the cross. Before we can differ we have to leave the doctrine of the cross.

The Independent Church proposes to anchor at the cross that leaves us with nothing to do or undo to be saved. We were born saved. We did not need the circumcision of Abraham, or the baptism of John. All that has been done to save us from our infancy has only hid from us the light of the cross. God became reconciled to us at the time of the cross. We don't have to presume anything. The provision was made for sinners and no one else.

The mere assent of the mind that we were saved at the time of the cross is faith exemplified. To my mind the popular revivalist that I was raised to adore, is the biggest humbug going. "Don't you want to be saved?" infers that when Christ saved the world you were left out. Again, take all the people that have been agitated by the Moody & Sankey class of meetings, and it would be hard to find enough for a corporal's guard. While if a man once acquires faith in the cross he seldom throws it up.

The fact is, the cross does not need any fixing. God is satisfied with us through the cross just as we are. The traditions of men detract from the cross and are the greatest obstacle in the way. One man sets up a Sunday howl, another total abstinence.

One thing and another, if we turn from the light and liberty of the cross and listen to the puritanic mob we soon loose the peace we enjoy by believing, and find ourselves in a dilemma fit for a mad house in despair.

My friend points me to the cross, my enemy to something else. To destroy my faith in the cross is to leave me hopeless.

A Sprained Ankle.

As a rule a man will feel well satisfied if he can hobble around on crutches in two or three weeks after spraining his ankle, and it is often two or three months before he is fully recovered. This is an unnecessary loss of time, as by applying Chamberlain's Liniment, a cure may as a rule be effected in less than one week's time, and in many cases within three days. Sold by Lamar's Drug Store.

Cured of a Severe Attack of Bronchitis by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

On October 18th last, my little three year old daughter contracted a severe cold which resulted in a bad case of bronchitis," says Mrs. W. G. Gibson, Lexington, Ky. "She lost the power of speech completely and was a very sick child. Fortunately we had a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house and gave it to her according to the printed directions. On the second day she was a great deal better, and on the fifth day, October 23rd, she was entirely well of her cold and bronchitis, which I attribute to this splendid medicine. I recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy unreservedly as I have found it the best, safest and quickest cure for colds, both for children and adults, and any I have ever used." For sale by Lamar's Drug Store.

A Wild Bissard Raging

ings danger, suffering, often death thousands, who take colds, coughs and lagrippe that terror of Winter and Spring. Its danger signals are stuffed up," nostrils, lower part nose sore, chills and fever, pain back of head, and a throat-gripping cough. When Grip attacks, as a value your life, don't delay getting Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle cured me," writes A. L. Ann, of Pine Valley, Miss., "after being laid up three weeks with it." For sore lungs, Hemorrhages, Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, its supreme. 50c., $1.00. Guaranteed by Chas. I. Clough.

Foley's Kidney Remedy will cure case of kidney or bladder trouble that is not beyond the reach of medicine. It invigorates the entire system and strengthens the kidneys they eliminate the impurities from blood. Backache, rheumatism, kidneys and bladder troubles are cured by this great medicine. Chas. I. Clough, Tillamook.

Saved at Death's Door.

the door of death seemed ready open for Murray W. Ayers, of West Bridge N. Y., when his life was wonderfully saved. "I was in a sad condition," he writes, "my tongue was almost yellow; eyes sunken; tongue coated; emaciated from losing 60 pounds, growing weaker daily. Virulent liver trouble pulled me down to death in spite of doctors. Then that matchless medicine, Electric Bitters cured me. I gained the 60 pounds lost and now well and strong." For all stomach and kidney troubles they're supreme. 50c. at Chas. I. Clough.

Passing of the Organ Blower.

"The organ blower is passing. He will soon be, like the armorer, extinct," said a musician. "It's a pity. He was a quaint type."

"Most of my blowers were simple minded old chaps who firmly believed they must suit their blowing to the music. In soft, light passages they blew soft and light. When the crescendos thundered forth they worked frantically, blowing with all their might and main."

"Often a facetious reporter on the local paper would refer to the excellent blowing of the organist's assistant, Mr. Bellows. Then the blower in his vanity would develop all the affectations of a Paderewski or a Sousa. Now he'd blow delicately, a dreamy smile on his lips, his eyes half closed. The music would change to a march, and he'd stamp his foot in time, while up, down, up, down, the old bellows, in time also, would be jerked. At a climax his face would redden, he'd bend to his task and blow so fast and furious that the organ would nearly burst." —Philadelphia Bulletin.

Another Case of Faith.

"I wrote a medical friend of mine in London about a curious discovery which I made recently quite by chance, but which I shall never publish to the world through the scientific journals," said a Brooklyn doctor last week.

"Not long ago this friend sent me about fifty little dark colored pellets, and he wrote me that they were a new combination of drugs that he had found particularly good in cases of brain fog. He asked me to try them on my patients and report. During the next month or so I doled out the pellets to several of my patients who came around complaining of tired nerves. All of them said that the medicine did them a lot of good. Yesterday, however, I was going through my office desk and discovered those pellets from London intact in the plain envelope in which I had placed them. A hurried but anxious investigation disclosed that I had been administering to my nerve weary patients some wistaria seed that my wife had gathered, put in a plain envelope and laid inadvertently on my office table." —Exchange.

No Lie After All.

They were telling fish stories, and at last the tall, lank man on the cracker barrel said:

"I went down to the river this morning, and although the water was high almost to a flood, I took a ten foot pike."

"Stop there!" exclaimed the fat man with the corn cob pipe. "Tell us you took an eight pound trout, and I'll sit idly by, but a ten foot pike—never! Ananias died for less than that."

"I took a ten foot pike pole," continued the unruffled tall, lank man on the cracker barrel, "and in less than five minutes I hooked out a fifteen foot bass!"

"See here! See here!" yelled the man who owned the grocery. "You'll have to go way from here to finish that lie. I ain't got no lightning rod on this store yet."

"I hooked out a fifteen foot bass-wood log," persisted the tall, lank man, "and I want to ask how much you think I kin git for it?"

Not Aply Worded.

An absurdly worded statement of a fact which was not in itself remarkable recently tried the gravity of the listeners. It was on the occasion of the funeral of an elderly woman in a New England town. She had left an old mother, nearly ninety years of age, and an only son who was well on toward fifty.

The services were conducted by a timid young clergyman recently settled over the parish. After praying for many and various things he said:

"And two we especially pray that the Lord will comfort and sustain in their loss and sorrow. One is the orphan, who, although no longer young, is an orphan still and must so continue. The other is the mother, far advanced in years, who has survived her daughter, although considerably her senior." —Youth's Companion.

Physicians in Japan.

Medical students in Japan must have had eleven or twelve years of preliminary training in the lower schools. No one may practice medicine who has been convicted of a crime. All physicians for the first ten years during which they follow their calling must keep full written records of all their cases, and they must not issue boastful advertisements or claim the exclusive right to any healing invention with a secret formula.

The Best Proof.

Little Ted, seven years old, was sent to the bathroom for a "good scrub" before dinner, but returned so quickly that his mother declared he couldn't possibly have washed himself. He replied, "Truly I did, mother, and if you don't believe it you can just go to the bathroom and look at the towel." —Delicategator.

Cutting.

Miss Homeleigh—Perhaps you won't believe it, but a strange man tried to kiss me once. Miss Cutting—Really! Well, he'd have been a strange man if he'd tried to kiss you twice. —Illustrated Bits.

A Great Success.

To shock people is often better than to please them. The majority of mankind need the shocking. —Emerson.

What a Poet Writes.

"You never can tell whether poetry is loaded or not," said a Columbia professor descending upon the muse, "and what a poet writes in the moments of his fine frenzy rolling may be susceptible of changes which would make him curse the pen did he but know whence it pointed. Now, listen to this couplet:

"Help us to save free conscience from the paw Of hireling wolves whose gospel is their maw."

"It sounds like some kind of a family poem, doesn't it, with paw and maw coming in to make the rhyme? Do you imagine the poet when he wrote the lines ever thought of the parents represented in such a homely way and how the meaning of the whole thing could be changed by changing the meaning of the end words of two lines? Was he a beginner? Oh, no; he was not a beginner. He had written several very classy things. He was John Milton. You remember he wrote 'Paradise Lost' and two or three other pieces of considerable merit, though he never quite got into the 'six best sellers' list, and these two lines I have quoted close his sonnet to Lord Protector Cromwell, written in 1652." —New York Herald.

The Southerner and Corn.

The southerner feeds himself, his pigs and his progeny upon corn. He slept in his frontiersman's cabin upon a mattress made of the husks. Today he contributes some of its pith to the manufacture of gun cotton with which to blow the enemy to Beezebug and some more of it to the manufacture of cellulose to pack behind the armor of his country's battleships to prevent them from sinking when projectiles pierce their plates. He plants corn as early in the springtime as the season will permit and gets up at dawn to go into the fields and tickle its spreading roots with a double shovel plow. In midwinter he smokes his corn cob pipe before a corn cob fire. Looking into a bed of glowing embers through a blue haze of the smoke of incense burned to Mondamin, he returns thanks for the cornmeal in the cupboard and dreams happily of the "ros'n ear" of the golden summer to come. His appreciation of the value of Indian corn is high. His affection for it in its various forms is abiding. —Louisville Courier-Journal.

Argyll and Longfellow.

The great Duke of Argyll was visiting his son, then governor general of Canada, and met Longfellow in the American poet's ancient colonial mansion at Cambridge, Mass. As they sat together on the veranda the duke persistently asked the names of the various birds he saw and heard singing in the poet's trees as well as of the flowers and bushes growing in his extensive and beautiful garden. Longfellow was neither botanist nor ornithologist and did not know.

"I was surprised to find your Longfellow such an ignorant person," said the duke subsequently to an American acquaintance.

"Indeed! Pray, on what subject?" "Why, he could not tell me the names of the birds and flowers to be heard and seen in his own garden."

"May I ask how many languages you speak?" the American asked.

"Certainly—but one." "Mr. Longfellow," was the answer, "speaks six and translates freely from almost all the languages of Europe."

Rise of Russia.

In the history of Europe down to the middle of the eighteenth century Russia is a blank. The foundation of the kingdom was laid by Rurik the Norseman in the ninth century. In the tenth century the Russians were Christianized, adopting the Greek form of Christianity. In the thirteenth century the Russians were completely overrun by the Tartars under Garghiz Khan. From the Tartars Russia was delivered by Ivan, who became czar in the time of Elizabeth. It was Peter the Great (1672-1725) who gave Russia for the first time a place in the states system of Europe. —New York American.

The Mistletoe.

The mistletoe is a Druidical contribution to Christmas. It was held in great veneration by the Druids in ancient England, and the cutting of it was attended by sacrificing and feasting. With weird incantations the priest climbed the tree on which the mistletoe grew and cut it away with a knife of purest gold, no base metal being allowed to touch it. As the twigs fell they were received below in a mantle of spotless whiteness.

Modest Greatness.

Reporter—Senator, to what do you chiefly attribute your successful career? Eminent Statesman—Entirely to heredity, young man. I deserve no credit for it whatever. My father had ambition, and my mother had talent, and I happened to inherit both those qualifications. —Chicago Tribune.

From Experience.

Mrs. Especk—I learned today that Bob Smith and Mary Jones were secretly married ten months ago. Just think of it! Married nearly a year and nobody the wiser! Mr. Especk—Oh, I don't know! I'll bet Smith was a whole lot wiser before he had been married a month.

In Stock.

Joker—Do you keep smokeless tobacco? Clerk—Sure, we do. Joker—What kind is it? Clerk—Chewing tobacco, of course. —Cornell Widow.

Down on the Bival Plants.

Wife—John, the bees have scratched up that eggplant seed you sowed. Hub—Damn 'em! Jealousy, I suppose. —Boston Transcript.
