Pointed Scraps.

Republicans are never in better fighting trim than when free from overconfidence.

Young Harry K. Thaw is soon to be discharged from bankruptcy, but not from Matteawan.

Many of the big senators are retiring from the Washington game on account of the high cost of living at the capital.

Perhaps Dr. Cook has forgotten that Barnum always had something to show after exciting the curiosity of the public.

Trust in the ability of the Democratic party to run the country again would be the biggest trust, and also the shakiest.

Democratic papers which say that Mr. Hearst is standing pat ought to know that he won't stand even when hitched.

Much damage has been done to fruit, but just think how many undesirable insects have been wiped out by the cold snap.

Many of the early crops destroyed can be replanted, and when there is a shortage in fruit bananas and pineapples are not so bad.

Opinions differ as to the comet's effect on the weather, but if old Sol can catch the tramp it ought to be consigned to the woodyard.

The new tariff law is bringing in so much money that there is a pressing demand for a postal savings bank law to preserve the surplus.

It is said that Hungarians excel all other Europeans in learning English, and the variety they like best is the United States language.

Indiana Democrats are having a hot time fighting over the spoils. The reason why there are Democrats has materialized in that state.

In connection with the proceedings of the D. A. R. the women have the same kind of excitement that men get in a county convention.

Mr. Bryan says his good luck was always running when he was defeated for president. And it will run again whenever Mr. Bryan does.

In consenting to make speeches in the present prohibition campaign it is surmised that Col. Bryan hopes to benefit from the vintage of 1912.

Mr. Roosevelt is said to have been awed when standing before the monument of Napoleon Bonaparte in Paris. But that was only a statue.

The art of cattle roping is said to be almost lost. The absence of Mr. Roosevelt abroad may account for this. But he is coming home now.

Mr. Bryan remarks that he has a higher ambition than to hold office. Nevertheless, he has made as many hefty trials to get office as any politician of his time.

At a very early period in his career Mark Twain discovered that there was nothing in politics, and he had the good sense to turn back before it was too late.

Working and smoking to the last, Mark Twain reached the age of 74. Constant occupation is a preservative and the case against tobacco is still pending.

A cut of three cents a gallon in the cost of whisky is announced. Now will the Democratic party admit that the new tariff is not rushing up the necessities of life?

The only quiet thing in Paris during Mr. Roosevelt's three days' visit was the election for members of the Chamber of Deputies. The vote was the smallest in many years.

A large number of Italian immigrants continue to arrive in this country. Lineal descendants of the ancient Romans take a lively interest in America and Americanism.

Associate Justice Hughes, 48 years old, will pull down the average of the Supreme Court members, which Justice Lurton, a recent appointee, at 63, raised to the highest mark ever touched.

Democratic papers pretend that the American people have changed their minds on the subject of a protective tariff. When the issue is joined the same old jolt will be the response.

A government scientist is said to have discovered 92,000,000 germs on one $1 bill. The fact, if it is a fact, may account for Mr. Rockefeller's anxiety to get rid of his money. How many germs does Mr. Rockefeller own? Nebraska's Supreme Court has decided that a woman elected county treasurer may hold the office. A Nebraska woman who can get the ballots stands on solid ground, as is usually the case with vote getters.

A leading packer declares that high living is one of the reasons for the high price of food. If the trouble is a rush for the choice cuts with a pocket full of money the average consumers can produce numerous exceptions.

The enemies of Speaker Cannon are sure to say that the bad luck of Danvill's nine in the Three-I League at the opening of the season is a hoodoo for "Uncle Joe" this year. But wait until your uncle himself begins to pitch. He will give a dozen or so insurgents home runs.

The little rebellion which is projected in Cuba, and which is expected to bring American intervention once more, will, if it takes place, be the last of the series. Messrs. Roosevelt and Taft sounded the warning to the Cubans two years ago. When the stars and stripes goes up in Cuba again it will stay up.

Dairying in Holland is the principal occupation. The land is worth from $500 to $1000 an acre, yet the people pay their rents or interest on the investment by producing butter and cheese, which they place on the European market in successful competition with that produced in America on land of less than one-fifth value. The secret is—efficient cows, excellent care, co-operation and superiority of butter and cheese.

That the ladies can grow as parliamentary as men was shown in the case of Miss Wilcox, charged in the recent meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution, with violation of discipline. When the debate opened Miss Wilcox was denied the floor on the high parliamentary ground that she was the subject matter of the debate. Bravo! No czar or despot who ever ruled the House of Representatives at Washington has ever done anything like that.

It is said that ex-President Roosevelt's talks and the receptions which are being extended to him by crowned heads and populace wherever he goes, are stimulating emigration to the United States. This is probably true, although other influences are at work in the same direction. It is noted that the bookings for passage to the United States from Hamburg, Liverpool and other big ports in Europe at the present moment are beyond the capacity of the vessels, and that several weeks more will elapse before the shipping can catch up with the work already cut out for them.

In discussing the problem of the assistant professor in American universities, in science, Prof. Guido H. Marx of Stanford University says: The rapid increase in the cost of living in the past twenty years has made the situation acute; for there has been no general increase of salaries commensurate with this, and as a consequence these men find themselves driven to a lower and lower standard of living. This is a grave menace to the efficiency of the institution both present and future, for it must not be forgotten that the highest ranks must be recruited from time to time from men whose development has necessarily been limited by the conditions surrounding this rank.

Men of science are generally agreed that birds are nature's great check on the excess of insects, and that they maintain the balance between plant and insect life. Ten thousand caterpillars, it has been estimated, could destroy every blade of grass on an acre of cultivated land. The insect populace of a single cherry tree invested with aphids has been estimated by a prominent entomologist at no less than 12,000,000. The bird population of cultivated country districts has been estimated at from 700 to 1000 a square mile. This is small compared with the number of insects, yet as each bird consumes hundreds of insects every day, the latter are prevented from becoming the scourge they would be but for their feathered enemies.

Montclair, N. J., will try the novel experiment of letting the children decide by a vote as to whether the town should have a quiet Fourth of July this year or whether the usual fireworks' celebration with its inevitable accidents and deaths will be a feature of the day. The Columbus News, commenting on this plan, says: "When children once are brought to comprehend what modern celebrations of the Fourth cost in death and injury, besides personal discomfort, it is not so certain they will vote to continue the present plan. At any rate, the New Jersey suggestion is worth a trial." The Springfield Republican thinks it will be like letting the liquor dealers decide the license question.

The Santiam News, published at Seio, says: "The Oregonian is still yelling for the Assembly." The News is still yelling against the Assembly. The Oregonian is a republican paper and the News is a populist paper, so there you have it. The populists can hold an Assembly if they want to; the republicans have no objections. Then, what is the odds to the populists if the republicans should get together for united action? The truth is it is not the objection to the assembly that the democrats, populists, socialists and other ists are complaining about. They want to endeavor to keep up some kind of strife in the republican party, in the hope of getting an office.—Lebanon Criterion.

An exhaustive census investigation of farm interests throughout the United States showed that in the last ten years the total number of farms has increased 18 per cent. In the older states, from Ohio eastward, there has been going on for twenty years a tendency toward the amalgamation of farms distant from market into larger holdings. There are now almost three times as many farms as in 1870, and an unprecedented increase in the value of farm lands and live stock is the even more momentous fact revealed by this inquiry. The land in farms, with their buildings, improvements and live stock, is today almost $32,000,000,000, a gain of 44 per cent in ten years. Present values are two and one-half times the farm values of thirty years ago. In the North Central States the increase in the value of farms is 43 per cent; in the South Central States, 58 per cent; in the North Atlantic, 13 per cent and in the South Atlantic, 34 per cent.

World-wide interest has been excited in the case of the young man who was serving a ten-year sentence in the Minnesota State Prison for burglary, but who has just been pardoned and who left the prison last Monday on his 24th birthday, still known as "John Carter," the name given to him by the prison authorities, and under which he leaped into fame as the writer of verse which had appeared in the Century and other magazines and had won high praise for its literary worth. It was largely through the friendly influence of Editor Underwood of the Century and other prominent literary lights that the Minnesota pardoning power was invoked successfully, the basis of the appeal, however, being the youth of the prisoner and the circumstances of his confessed theft. He was only 19 years old and was out of work and beating his way from Winnipeg to St. Paul in winter, when he was caught by a train hand and thrown off the train at a small station, where, being out of funds and hungry, he broke into the station at night and took $24 from the till. It appears that he had been sent to Canada by his family in England, after having failed to hold his job as a bank clerk. He was much of a bookworm and had a fine musical training. The circumstances of his literary achievements and his release from prison have been extensively exploited in the press of the world.

Chamberlain's Liniment.

This is a new preparation and a good one. It is especially valuable as a cure for chronic and muscular rheumatism, and for the relief from pain which it affords in acute inflammatory rheumatism. Those who have used it have invariably spoken of it in the highest terms of praise. Lame back, lame shoulder and stiff neck are due to rheumatism of the muscles, usually brought on by exposure to cold or damp, and are quickly cured by applying this liniment freely and massaging the affected parts. Soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercise or injury, is allayed by this liniment. For sale at Lamar's drug store.

A CONTRARY WOMAN.

Things That Cured Her Sometimes Killed Other People. "Appendicitis does not hurt me like it might other people," said her Bavarian neighbor when the woman had complimented her upon her appearance after the attack. "Nodding effer hurts me the same as other people—nodding. Tings dat gure me kills odder people sometimes. Did I neffer dell you about de dime ven I vas a child, ven I had sgarled vaffer? No? Experience of a Camping Party in Yellowstone Park.

In the Yellowstone park all wild animals are allowed to roam as they will, and it is against the law to shoot them. Some of these animals have become very tame and do not look on man as an enemy. In fact, the bears seem to think the hotels built there are for their convenience, as they visit the garbage cans nightly for their meals. Even tiny chipmunks will stand and scold people as they pass by on the road, and such little thieves as they are! They live in style on grain they steal from the hotel stables.

One night a party camped near one of the pretty ravines, and, being tired from a day's tramp, they had early gone into their tents to sleep—all except the boy, who enjoyed slumbering in a sleeping bag with the stars for a roof.

Early in the night they were aroused by a noise of falling pans in the kitchen wagon. Those who were not afraid rushed out and discovered a big black bear calmly eating his supper from the provisions. Not being allowed to shoot him, one grabbed a whip, another a broom, and they flourished these weapons about. Frightened and grunting, bruin clumsily scrambled away, when suddenly there was a livelier grunting from the bear, accompanied by an unearthly yell. Mr. Bruin in his hurried flight had stepped on the unnoticed outdoor sleeper, frightening him so much that afterward he slept under the tent roof.—Detroit Free Press.

Didn't Know Beans.

A young woman was talking in a restaurant. "You see," she was saying, "it was my first experience in cooking beans. We are so fond of them I wanted to be sure and have enough, so I ordered three pounds at the corner grocer's. This looked about the right amount, and I put them on the range and left them to boil tender. When I went into the kitchen again the range was covered with beans, so was the floor, and out of the kettle poured a steady stream of beans. I took part of them out, added more water and again left them. If you'll believe it I had to take out three more large portions of beans before the original mass became manageable. So I'm not ordering beans just yet even at a restaurant."—New York Sun.

The Truce of God.

The "truce of God" was introduced by the clergy of Guineu around about the year 1030. It was adopted in Spain about 1050, in England about 1080. According to this famous treaty, a cessation of all violent quarrels was enjoined under heavy penalties during all church festivals and from every Wednesday evening until the following Monday morning. This left only about eighty days in the year available for shooting and stabbing one's neighbors. The truce seems to have accomplished much good, notwithstanding the fact that it was very imperfectly observed.—New York American.
