

Hattom's

President Taft congratulating the Captain of the Winning Team.

From the Saturday Evening Post of June 4th, 1910.

WHEREVER you go, in this country, you will find a good clothing store selling Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes; with a progressive, live business man---or men---at the head of it. You will find it, in fact, or rapidly becoming, the leading clothing store in town; headquarters for the trade of men who want the best.

As a rule you'll find a store doing business in a way you like; there's something in association with high-class goods like ours which helps to develop high-class methods; it affects the salespeople; the advertising; the proprietor; the whole spirit of the business.

In spite of the fact that retailers pay more for ours than for ordinary clothes, they'd rather sell these than the ordinary goods. The staunch all-wool quality in fabrics, the thorough, shape-keeping tailoring, the perfection of smart style, the assurance of satisfaction the wearer feels in finding our name in the garments, and the sense of security in knowing that we stand behind them; these things our retailer appreciates; they give him a profit greater than the money he makes on the sale; they build his business on the continued good will of the public.

Our clothes are so widely known, and so satisfying to wearers, that they are easy to sell. Men of taste and judgment in clothes want them, and prefer to go where they are sold.

You probably know who in your own city sells Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes; most of them are proud of the fact and want everybody to know it.
