

A New Method of Rescue

People wondered why I took such interest in aeroplanes, why I continually practiced at driving them, why I studied different makes. Then, when I had taken a flight into a distant land, no one knew where, and after my return all my interest in air navigation had vanished, they wondered still more.

I have been a great traveler, though I am not yet thirty years old. Some years ago while in Russia I made the acquaintance, followed by the friendship, of a member of the American embassy of St. Petersburg. In this way I saw something of court life there. One night at a function at the Winter palace I was introduced to the daughter of a general in the Russian service. Not for an eridom would I give her name, so I shall call her Sophia. In my travels I have picked up a number of foreign languages. Russian I speak tolerably, and Sophia spoke some English. There usually comes in a man's life, if it comes when he is young, some woman who appeals to him as no other woman has ever appealed to him. From the moment I met Sophia I knew that one had risen up in my path whom I must possess, else the vitality had passed out of my life.

I went to my hotel after my first meeting with her to lie awake half the night with the comfort one feels in having found a mate, and the other half I dreamed of her. From that time for several months I was with her as often as Russian etiquette allows. I danced with her, I skated with her, I met her at the opera and on court gala occasions. She gave me unmistakable signs that in me she had found what I had found in her. But when I came to tell her my story her whole manner changed.

"No, no, no!" she moaned. "I have permitted myself to sink into a dream. You have awakened me. I have done very wrong. Go away from me. For get me."

What there was between her and me that led her to talk thus I could not induce her to tell. I left Russia and tried to forget her. I continued my travels, but the interest for me had gone out of the curiosities of travel. The pyramids, the Coliseum, the works of art that had before fascinated me, were now unable to move me.

One day I took up a newspaper and saw by telegraph from Russia that a conspiracy against the life of the czar had been discovered and that the daughter of a prominent general had been implicated. Something told me that she was Sophia. I returned to St. Petersburg to learn that my intuition was correct. The girl I loved had already been sent to Siberia. Now I understood her action toward me.

I felt that a great work had sprung up before me—the work of liberating Sophia. A famous traveler was in St. Petersburg at the time and was about to start, with the permission of the Russian government, to write up the condition of Siberian exiles. I succeeded in inducing him to appoint me his secretary, or amanuensis. In this way I would be able to locate the girl I had made up my mind to free. On arriving in the prison region I learned that Sophia's father had been enabled to secure for her simply exile, not imprisonment. She was living in a hut close by a prison. Escape for her was as impossible as if she had been within stone walls. But her position was encouraging for me, whose life work was to take her out of Siberia.

I saw her, talked with her and told her that during the same month (August) the following year to expect me with means by which to give her her freedom.

That autumn and winter I was known to be one of the principal devotees to the navigation of the air. I tried every kind of aeroplane that had been invented. I made long flights both by day and by night. I flew to the Land of the Midnight Sun in the dead of winter, that I might become used to flying in the cold. I tried for no prizes, entered no contests. I worked with one purpose in view. That was to make a flight to Russia, swoop down by the hut in which lived my love and bear her away to freedom.

I pass over the details of study by which I found a machine especially adapted for my purpose. I transported it by sea to Sweden. From there to my destination was not far, but I must make the journey at one flight with one supply of fuel. One morning I rose to a height of 500 feet and drove my machine eastward. I purposely kept at a considerable height till I stood directly over the sphyar-but that I might attract the least possible attention. From where I was poised was a slanting course down to the hut. I hoped that she might be outside, but she was not. I descended to her door. She was silent. I was about to leave the machine to enter the hut when I saw her face at the window, and in another moment she was sitting beside me on the machine.

I had provided for starting by fitting my machine with apparatus especially adapted to the purpose, and, though keepers were by this time running toward us from every direction, we rose above them and the shots they sent up in time to save ourselves.

After a ride high in the air we came down in Sweden, nearly frozen. From there we traveled southward, not stopping till we reached Marseilles, where we took a steamer.

We are now both in America and are soon to be married.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Bush, Who Is Playing Sensionally For Detroit.

Shortstop Owen Bush of Detroit is the sensation of the American league this season. His fielding and timely batting are helping the Tigers to win many games. Bush is only twenty-one years of age and is the smartest new on the Tigers. In 1907 he was secured from the South Bend (Ind.) team by Detroit. In 1908 he helped Indianapolis to win the pennant, and that fall he joined Detroit in time to enable the Tigers to win the championship. His work in twenty games was a big factor in Detroit's success that year. In 1909 Bush played in 157 championship games and had a fielding average of .925. His record showed 308 put-outs, 567 assists and 71 errors, an average of a trifle more than six chances per game.

Pacer Dan Patch Retired.

Dan Patch has been permanently retired from the racing and speed exhibition stage. M. W. Savage, his owner, is authority for the statement that Dan Patch will never again be asked to start in attempts to lower the world's records. He says that this greatest of all horses has done his share of work and that his life from this time on will be spent in enjoying a well earned rest. In watching other harness horses struggle to lower his record and in perpetuating his greatness through his get. While the champion will not be called upon to make any of the mighty efforts that have made him famous, he will still do some traveling and during the summer months and fall will be an attraction at a large number of fairs all over the United States.

Big Baseball War Brewing.

According to a rumor, a big baseball war is brewing between the National and American leagues, and it is scheduled to break at the end of the present season. It is said the National will break away from the American next fall and, instead of the two working in harmony, there will be keen competition between them. If this should come to pass it might furnish better and cheaper baseball, but it would not last and eventually would prove bad for the game. Wars of such a nature invariably fail, and some master hand gathers in all the profits.

National Athletic Meet.

In preparing for the A. A. U. national athletic championships, which will be held in New Orleans this year, a quarter mile cinder track is being constructed which is expected to be the equal of any in the country. It is being modeled after those at the Jamestown and St. Louis expositions. It will have 220 yards straight away for hurdles and the furlong dash. The inner field has football, gridiron and basket ball courts and several jumping and vaulting pits.

Homer Michigan's Track Captain.

Joe Horner of Grand Rapids is captain of the Michigan track team for next season, although he cannot be said to have been elected to the place. Horner and Ralph Craig of Detroit were conceded to be the men between whom lay the honor of the captaincy. The men were so popular that the others on the track team refused to vote and left it to Craig and Horner to decide who was to be captain. They left it to the toss of a coin, and Horner won. He is the intercollegiate champion shot putter.

Changing Teams Sometimes Helps.

Every time a veteran player changes from one team to another a club has to adopt an entirely new set of signals. Tim Murraue says that the continual switching of players from one team to another has been an education all around.

Ex-Husband's Rights.

"Once a woman is married to a man, that man always has some claim upon her, even if she has a divorce. When a woman is married she never can be absolutely free again. Courts can separate them, but in the sight of a law higher than man-made law, in the opinion of all well-meaning persons, the husband still has a claim on the woman who was once his wife." Judge Ralph Latshaw of the Kansas City Criminal Court so declared recently when he reversed a decision of the Municipal Court which held Dr. Milo E. Hartman guilty of an attack on his former wife. Hartman had been fined $500 in the Municipal Court on a charge of having accosted his wife in a dry goods store. When Mrs. Hartman had finished her testimony the court told the defence there was no necessity for them to introduce any evidence.

"Hartman had a right to come up and speak to his former wife and even take her by the arm," he said. "As long as he did not abuse her or swear at her he committed no offense. He had a perfect right to regard himself as a privileged person in his dealings with the woman who had once been his wife. I don't see how any court ever imposed a fine of $500 on a man for speaking to a woman who had once been his wife."

She Likes Good Things.

Mrs. Chas. E. Smith, of West Franklin, Maine, says: "I like good things and have adopted Dr. King's New Life Pills as our family laxative medicine, because they are good and do their work without making a fuss about it."
