Whipped again! How many times does it take to whip a blind pig?

It is too bad that a good business street like Main street should be discriminated against on account of the blind pig joints on that street.

Sheriff Crenshaw has proof that the soft drink joints have been selling beer for nymph. What is the City Council going to do about it. Close its eyes?

It looks as though Sheriff Crenshaw had the drop on the blind pigs with those commitment papers in his pocket. Wonder whether they will be good now?

The seven blind pigs who squealed on themselves after they were caught ought not to say one word about those who squealed upon them, for they're all in the squealing class.

Of course, Tillamook City is becoming famous. It has a Blind Pig Councilman, and the Blind Pig Councilman helping to revise the city charter. Gee! Isn't that enough to make a hog laugh.

Why not make a popular bond loan, in denomination of $100 up for the Port of Tillamook, so as to give the people of the county an opportunity to put their money into a safe investment and become bond owners?

$3,050 added to the county's treasury, by the bootleggers this week, after paying expenses, will more than pay the salaries in the Sheriff's office. Sheriff Crenshaw is certainly looking after the county's interest when he can do this in one round up.

It may be all very well for the small vessels to go out over the bars, but it is taking too much risk to do so. One of these days a serious accident will occur, with loss of life and those who are drowned will be called fools for taking so many risks of accident.

Can't the business men see, or won't they see, the bad reputation that the bootleggers are giving Tillamook City? In Eugene the bootleggers are classed amongst the lowest class of society and undesirable citizens, and they are given the opportunity to leave for other parts.

Colonel Dunne said at the opening of the Tillamook Commercial Club that this county was renowned for its cheese and its timber and a peculiar animal called a blind pig and it is plain to most everybody that the blind pigs are the most undesirable, lawless and low-down citizens, bringing Tillamook City into disrepute.

Who says it don't pay to prosecute the bootleggers? The county is put to some expense in procuring evidence, but a few more fines of over three thousand dollars added to the county's treasury will help some, as the taxpayers of the county have had to go down deep into their jeans in the numerous attempts to enforce the local option law.

Here is a question we want to put up to every voter in Tillamook county: As the city officials of Tillamook City fail to regulate pool and soft drink joints, or revoke their licenses when they violate the law, what prospects are their for the city council to regulate saloons should the county go "wet"? The answer is plain. If they won't or can't regulate soft drink joints, they won't saloons.

There were a number of advertising agents in the city pulling the legs of the business men this week. It is certainly remarkable how easily some of our business men "bit," and especially those who never advertise in the local newspapers, but they readily take up with some outsider's advertising scheme. And the advertising schemer goes away rejoicing with a bunch of money jingling in his jeans. Yet business men are continually advising that the home newspapers advise people to patronize home industry and home merchants.

Any person with ordinary judgment will admit that the City Council should close up the blind pig joints, after this another exposure and round up by Sheriff Crenshaw. But has the City Council the moral backbone and courage to do so? Now is the time to prove whether the Tillamook City is being run in the interest of the bootleggers or in the interest of the citizens, and law and order. Surely it is up to Mayor Coates and City Attorney Holmes, as well as the rest of the Councilmen, to take some action for the better regulation of these places, as it is licensing the soft drink and pool room joints. We wait with some little interest to see what the City Council will do, as, no doubt, a number of citizens are doing the same.

Another advertising proposition was placed before the Executive Board of the Commercial Club to have printed a dinkey little album with several dinkey little pictures and a dinkey little write up, and the Board recommended that the County Court allow $100 to have some printed. The snap shot man fought the proposition, for in his judgment it did not justify the Board in recommending it or the county in allowing the money to have them printed, as there is hardly sufficient money left to get out a decent write up of the county. We are sorry to differ with our colleagues on the Board, but when a person makes a false statement that he will give the club $75 worth of plates after the edition is published, which the snap shot man knows any half tone establishment would turn out for $15 to $20, we began to think that the person was imposing upon the members of the Board who did not know different. We hope the County Court will turn it down and turn down all similar propositions as well, from outsiders. A little over $91 was paid to Vanciel for a bum write up and $25 was paid to Editor Hofer for a write up in the Salem Journal, which we consider is money thrown away. The snap shot man takes the position that there is enough brains in Tillamook to get out a presentable edition without opening the county's sack so that every Tom, Dick or Harry who happens to come into the county can get their fingers into it.

Winning Suffrage.

Raymond Duncan, apostle of classic Greek dress, and a great many other unexpected things, has passed on leaving a piece of novel advice for the suffragettes worthy the nimble fancy of Bernare Shaw. Mr. Duncan says of the militant woman suffragists:

"Woman is man's equal. Woman, however, does not know what freedom is. Those who are seeking equal suffrage preach and bundle themselves up in a barbarous steel corset and crown themselves with a big, massive, ugly hat, and beg for suffrage. Why, if they would stop wearing hats for six months, they would get their suffrage and equal rights because they would injure the retail hat and other trades to such an extent the men would be glad to give them what they want."

Have the women ever considered bartering their big hats for the ballot? We trow not, even after having trowed several times on the subject.

But we think Mr. Duncan's plan might be worked more successfully in an entirely opposite direction. Suppose the women set out to wear bigger and bigger hats until the men give in; that would be a more glorious victory and more fun; the men had already begun to lose heart and pine away under the sickly shade of the merry widow hat when the women relented. They are too soft-hearted, these women; the merry widow should have been amplified until the men, for the sake of a little better sunlight, would have exclaimed: "Take anything you want, ladies, only abolish these hats."

RAILROAD OFFICIALS VISIT TILLAMOOK.

Tillamook Commercial Club Gives a Banquet--Officials Well Pleased with the Improvements in City.

Last Friday Mayor Thos. Coates and several members of the city council and President Webster Holmes, of Tillamook Commercial Club, with several members of the Executive Board of the club, went to Nehalem to meet and welcome the railroad officials who came in on an inspection of the Pacific Railway & Navigation Co.'s road, which is being rushed to completion after five years in its construction. It was eight o'clock when the party left this city on the railroad, and when they arrived at Nehalem the railroad officials, which included, Mr. J. P. O'Brien, general manager of the Harriman system in the Northwest; Superintendent Fields, of the O. R. & N.; President E. E. Lytle, of the P. R. & N. Co.; and his brother, Mr. C. E. Lytle, who is superintendent of the line; and Engineer Geo. L. Davis, were at the landing on the river. The railroad officials made several stops on the journey to this city, especially at Lake Lytle, where the question of the location of the depot was decided, and arrived at the depot grounds at noon. In the afternoon the railroad officials went to Bay-ocean Park and made an inspection of that seaside resort, taking passage on the Henrietta.

In the evening the Tillamook Commercial Club tendered the distinguished visitors a banquet at the Palace Restaurant, when covers were laid for about 80. President Holmes, of the Commercial Club presided.

Mayor Coates made a few remarks in welcoming the visitors to Tillamook City.

The first speaker was Mr. O'Brien, who expressed himself as well pleased at meeting so many of the business men and the welcome that had been extended to them. He said that he had come to Tillamook to see what Mr. Lytle was doing with the money in building the Pacific Railway & Navigation Co.'s railroad, and after going over the entire road, as he had done the past few days, he was satisfied that a large amount of money had been expended and that it would take considerable more before it was finished, for it was a most difficult country to build a railroad in. As an illustration of this Mr. O'Brien stated that Mr. Sweeney had expended about $60,000 in making roads for hauling in supplies. He thought that the company would have to make the rates on the railroad somewhat higher than in other places on account of the large expenditure in its construction, and he asked the co-operation of the people of Tillamook in making the first railroad that built into this county a success, and he would have should any misunderstanding occur between the railroad and the people that they be settled without referring them to the Railroad Commission. He thought that the new railroad, with the exception of a few curvatures, was the equal to any road in Oregon. Mr. O'Brien showed his interest in bay and bar improvements by asking a number of questions, and as to the United Railways building into Tillamook, he said his experience had taught him to offer no opposition, for the railroad that he represented would get its share of business. He stated, however, that an electric line helped to build up a community, and would, no doubt, be the means of increasing the population, but it would be the steam road which would help the county and carry out the lumber and the dairy produce, which he was surprised to hear had bought $50,000 into the county last year. Mr. O'Brien expressed himself as well pleased with the spirit of progress that he saw in Tillamook City since he was here two years ago.

Mr. E. E. Lytle was the next speaker, and he took up the matter of the construction of the Pacific Railway & Navigation Co. He said he came to Tillamook in 1906 for that purpose, and he hoped, when he first commenced work that it would have been completed before this, but owing to the labor troubles and having to go through one financial panic, the work was closed down for 12 months. Mr. Lytle stated that when they first figured on building the road, the estimate was $20,000 per mile, but owing to the labor trouble and the enhanced cost of material, it was again estimated that it would cost $30,000, but it had since been estimated that it would cost $41,700 per mile, with out equipment. He thought if the labor situation remained satisfactory, there would be no more trouble in getting the road completed, but should there be more trouble in the labor or financial world, he did not know whether it would not take more than $41,700 per mile to build the road. They had a large number of men at work and it was progressing most satisfactory. There were 42 miles completed from the Hillsboro end and in a few weeks about 84 miles will be completed this end, leaving about 10 miles between the two contractors. Mr. Lytle paid Mr. O'Brien a compliment when he stated that if it had not been for him he would not have had any railroad, for he had only a limited amount of money, but when he went to Mr. O'Brien it was he who furnished the money. Mr. Lytle also thought that they would have to make the rates on the railroad high enough to pay working expenses and leave sufficient to pay the stock holders a small interest on the investment. In regard to the United Railroads building into Tillamook, Mr. Lytle stated that it would cost that company $80,000 per mile. He was pleased to meet with so many of the business men of this city and he hoped that the business relations with the Pacific Railway & Navigation Company would be most pleasant and that they would give it their support, for if it had not been that work had started on the railroad into Tillamook when it did, in all probability there would not have been any railroad building into the county today.

Mr. C. E. Lytle and Engineer Davis made a few remarks, the latter recommending the pioneer railroad into Tillamook.

Mr. H. T. Botts, who had a great deal to do with the Railroad Committee, and who is President of the Port of Tillamook, was called upon, as Mr. O'Brien was anxious to know something as to what was contemplated in harbor improvements. First he undertook to inform the railroad officials that to make the railroad pay it would have to run trains, and now that the road was nearly finished to Wheeler, he thought that a train should be put on between this city and there. He then outlined what the Port of Tillamook had planned in regard to harbor improvements, but one difficulty that they had met with was in floating the bonds, and he asked Mr. O'Brien if he could assist them in some way or other as he was connected with those who were buying bonds. The bond buyers appeared to be a little timid of Port bonds, as it was a new thing on the market.

In answer to Mr. Botts, Mr. O'Brien stated that it was their intention to put on a train between this city and Nehalem as soon as the road was finished, and he assured Mr. Botts that he would be glad to assist the Port in disposing of its bonds if he would write him in regard to the matter so that he could refer it to those buying bonds. He was glad Mr. Botts had mentioned these matters because their visit into Tillamook was to decide about putting on a train and the location of the depot building.

James Walton, Jr., and others spoke, and altogether the banquet was a success. It showed the railroad officials that the business men were alive to the city's and county's growth and development, and who would heartily accord the P. R. & N. Co. their every assistance in their power, and at the close of the banquet several hearty cheers were given for the railroad and railroad officials, as well as the Tillamook Commercial Club.

Not having seen the new quarters of the Tillamook Commercial Club, Mayor Coates and President Holmes took the railroad officials to the club and they were greatly surprised and well pleased with the splendid quarters, which convinced them again that the business men of Tillamook City are alive to the improved situation incident to the building a railroad into Tillamook, and in future proof of the pleasure they felt in visiting the club room P. J. O'Brien, E. E. Lytle, W. K. Lytle and Geo. L. Davis signed the membership cards to become members of the club.

In Washington D. C., a group of evangelists and reformers have organized a church to be known as the "Church of Happiness." In its papers of incorporation this church defines its creed as that of music and merriment. It declares that the old religious creeds were designed to frighten people into the church, and goes on thus: "The new religion recognizes that crime is hatched where there is no mirth. Depravity flourishes in the shades of darkness. Music and merriment will be the important elements in the religion of the future." The leader in this movement is Theodore Vallant.

BOOTLEGGERS CAUGHT IN MUCK RAKE AGAIN.

After "Squealing" on Themselves Justice Stanley Imposes $3,050 in Fines.

Sheriff Crenshaw created another surprise on Thursday afternoon in gathering into the muck rake seven of the bootleggers who have defied the will of "the people" and the law of the State, as well as bringing Tillamook City into disrepute, and more especially Main street, where the blind pig joints are quite numerous and appear to flourish, especially as the City Council took no action to revoke the soft drink and pool room licenses or to have their bonds forfeited after the sheriff had rounded up the bootleggers and proved that it was the proprietors of the pool room joints and their paid flunkies who are the cause of so much drunkenness and Tillamook City, at the last term of the Circuit Court, when Judge Burnett imposed jail sentences and sent the blind-piggers to the county's pen. Owing to the defiance of the law breakers, the county officials, whose duty it is to enforce the local option law, succeeded in obtaining the aid of a detective agency that guarantees to obtain evidence against bootleggers that will stick. It was not many days after two detectives arrived in the city that the detective agency proved that it could make good, but the funniest part of it was after the arrests had been made the detectives, not being known at the time, kept visiting the blind pig joints and heard the numerous threats that were made and what they were going to do to those who had "squealed," which would make quite interesting reading if it was published. For some months the respectable, lawabiding citizens have been complaining about the manner in which the city authorities have allowed the pool room joints to run and remain open after one o'clock.

Those arrested were W. J. Stephens and one of his bar tenders, Dan Gilbert, who is a confessed bootlegger and was sentenced to jail sentence at the last term of the circuit court; Clyde Clements, who served time in the county jail for bootlegging, and Thomas Buffin, the former's bar tender; Ed. Laughlin, who is a city councilman and constable for the second justice district, and his partner, Tom Johnson; and Ed. Hadley, who is the most flagrant bootlegger in the city and who served a term in the county jail. With the exception of Hadley, all are connected with the soft drink joints.

Finding that the State had an open and shut case against each of them, Tillamook City's notorious blind piggers began to "squeal" on themselves as they owned up to their guilt, when Justice Stanley imposed fines amounting to $3,050 upon the following persons:

- Ed. Hadley, on three charges, was fined $500 on the first charge and 30 days in jail, and on the other two charges was fined $300 and 60 days in jail, making $800 in fines and 90 days in jail.
- Clyde Clements, $500 fine and 30 days in jail.
- Dan Gilbert, $500 fine and 30 days in jail.
- W. J. Stephens, $300 fine and 20 days in jail.
- Thomas Buffin, $200 fine and 15 days in jail.
- Ed. Laughlin, on two charges, $500 fine and 40 days in jail.
- Tom Johnson, $250 fine and 20 days in jail.

The justice remitted the jail sentences, and there were some surprise that the justice had taken this course. However, Sheriff Crenshaw has the commitment papers and any further attempt at violation of the local option law by these persons they will not only have to face other charges but will have to serve the remitted time as well.

HINTS FOR THE BUSY HOUSEWIFE

Device For Removing Fruit Jar Caps.

An implement for removing the caps of glass fruit jars when they stick has been invented by a Pennsylvania man and will be found a great convenience by housewives. A strong metal band formed into a circle the circumference of a jar top is attached to one end. The band, which has a free end and acts as a spring, is fitted around the cap of a jar and the cutter blade is inserted between the cap and the rubber band that encircles the mouth of the jar to make the latter air tight. The knife is then moved around the jar till it has loosened the cap sufficiently to permit its removal. The admission of air through the path of the knife is enough to accomplish this and it will then be easy to unscrew the cap. This method is an improvement over other methods whereby the center cap is gripped with a implement, which in some cases results in the breaking of the jar.

Grease Extractor.

A grease extractor is a very useful thing to keep for removing stains from dresses. It can be made by beating together in a mortar one-fourth pound each of soft soap and fuller's earth. Form the paste into cakes and let the dry. When wanted for use make the greasy spot with water, rub it on the cake and allow the latter to dry on. Then rub the spot with a sponge and warm water.

To clean paint that is not varnished take a flannel and squeeze nearly dry out of warm water and dip in a little whitening. Apply to the paint, and with a little rubbing it will instantly remove grease, smoke or other stains. Wash with warm water and rub with a soft cloth. It will not injure the most delicate color, makes it look like new and lasts much longer than if cleaned with soap and water.

Ices and Sherbets.

Lemon Sherbet.—Mix three-quarters of a cup of sugar with the juice of one and a half lemons. When it has until nearly melted add slowly two cupfuls of milk. If you do not do so carefully the lemon juice will curdle the milk. Pour into freezer and freeze. The sherbet will be smooth, soft and as white as milk.

Orange Ice.—Six oranges, six lemons juice and rind, three pounds of sugar, four quarts of water. Mix well the juice and sugar. Let it stand awhile. Add water and mix well. Freeze.

Lemon Custard.

Grate the rind of one lemon, add one cupful of sugar and mix thoroughly with two rounded tablespoons of flour, beat the yolks of two eggs and mix with sugar, flour, lemon juice and rind. After mixing these add the size of a walnut (method) one cupful of milk, and stir all. Let of all whip the whites of the two eggs stiff and mix in. Put in crust and bake for any custard and bake slowly and to bake without weying it.

Tomatoes Canned Whole.

Select small round tomatoes, wash by putting in wire basket and draining once or twice in boiling water. Remove skins and put tomatoes in jars, add teaspoonful of salt to each jar, fill the jars with cold water, put jars in boiler and boil ten minutes after reaching boiling point. Tomatoes are the most easily kept of all vegetables.

To Distribute Fruit in Cakes.

It is often disappointing when eating a fruit cake to find that most of the fruit has settled to the bottom. To remedy this put half of the fruit in the pan before the fruit is added, then put the fruit to the remainder of the batter in the bowl, stir well and add to that in the pan. The fruit is thus evenly distributed.

Potatoes au Gratin.

Slice one quart of cold boiled potatoes. Put layer of potatoes in a baking dish, season with salt and pepper and grated cheese. Make a sauce of one pint of milk and one tablespoonful of flour. When this reaches the boiling point or becomes thick pour over the potatoes and bake for half an hour.

Whipping Cream.

When cream is whipped a little long it will granulate. To bring it back to the right consistency add about two tablespoonfuls of a pint of cream. Then turn the cream a few times.
